Communist Forces Push To 10 Miles Of Shanghai

Secrecy Veils Major Maneuver to Trap 300,000 Nationalist Troops Against Sea

Shanghai, April 25 (AP).—Chinese Communists sloshed through the rain 10 miles northwest of Shanghai tonight, but secrecy covered their major maneuver aimed at trapping 300,000 government troops against the sea south of this city.

The United States consulate warned American citizens that the U. S. Navy planned to move its heavy ships from its Shanghai anchorages and within a few hours the flagship Eldorado moved out to avoid involvement in the civil war. Few of the 2500 Americans in Shanghai asked to be taken out.

The Shanghai garrison command ordered that only its official releases be published. George Vine, editor of the British-owned China Daily News and correspondent for International News Service, was among several editors picked up for questioning by the garrison.

The garrison's 9 p. m. announcement, first of a promised three a day through the official central news agency, acknowledged that Red troops had infiltrated to Nanhsiang, 10 miles northwest of Shanghai.

It denied widespread reports that the Reds had captured Kashing, 53 miles by air and 62 by rail southwest of Shanghai.

Kashing, normally famous only for its production of the ancient eggs beloved by Chinese epicures, is the key to the trap operation. It is on the Grand Canal and is the junction of the Shanghai-Hangchow Railway and of a line that runs miles north to intersect the Shanghai-Nanking railway at Soochow (Wuhsien).

If the Communists are at Kashing, they reached it down the Soochow railway.

Trains Still Operating

The Shanghai command declared that trains through Kashing to and from Hangchow were still operating.

Hangchow, 121 miles by rail southwest of Shanghai, is the seaport and rail base upon which Nationalist troops long have been expected to fall back for a new defense or retreat farther south.

One train did arrive from the south after Kashing was reported to have fallen, but it could have left before such a development.

Reds Demand U. S., Britain Quit China

Shanghai (Tuesday), April 26 (U.P.).—The Chinese Communists' radio today broadcast a demand that America and Britain remove all their "aggressive" forces from China.

The Red radio broadcast an editorial by the Communist "New China News Agency" saying:

"The aggressive military forces of Britain must be withdrawn from China. The aggressive forces of the United States, first of all land naval and air forces, quartered in the territory and waters of China must be withdrawn."

Stuart 'Shocked'

Reds Invade U. S. Envoy's Room at Nanking Embassy

By The Associated Press

Armed Chinese Communist soldiers invaded the residence of Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart at Nanking early yesterday and left a hint that he would be kept prisoner.

An embassy report to the State Department said the soldiers on leaving told one of the servants that the 72-year-old envoy should not leave the residence compound. The order was not given to Stuart or any of his official staff, the report said.

The incident sharpened official concern over the safety of Americans remaining in the former Nationalist capital after the Communists occupied the city, and over the safety of 2500 other Americans in Red-ringed Shanghai.

It also clouded plans to bring Stuart to Washington for a general review of American policy in China. Orders for his recall were disclosed by the State Department only a few hours before word came that the Communists had disregarded the immunity normally enjoyed by establishments of foreign governments.

The State Department ordered an immediate and "vigorous" protest to the Communist military authorities by the American military attache. This was a move of dubious effectiveness in view of the state of relations with the Communists.

The embassy's account said that 12 Communist soldiers persuaded the Chinese porter to open the front gate of the residence compound and then came in the back door. They asked servants how many Chinese and foreigners lived there and where the ambassador was.

Then they went upstairs and entered Stuart's room—giving him

U. S. Reds Aim At Revolution, FBI Spy Says

Ex-Farmer Planted In Communist Party Discloses Teachings

New York, April 25 (AP).—A one-time Arkansas farmer said at the Communist conspiracy trial today that the FBI planted him in the party to "find out what the Communists were doing" in a war-vital aircraft plant.

As a result, Garfield Herron testified, he later heard a lecturer tell a Communist class in Chicago in 1946 that "for the workers to take over here, we'll have to have a revolution."

Herron said he was visited by FBI agents after he subscribed to a Communist newspaper in 1943. He was working for the Douglas Aircraft Co. in Chicago.

"They (the agents) explained they weren't trying to harm the union in any way," Herron said, "but wanted to find out what the Communists were doing in the plant."

At their suggestion, the witness added, he joined the party. Afterwards he reported frequently to the FBI and received from $5 to $60 a month in expenses as a result.

Herron, now a Hot Springs (Ark.) race track employe, said he heard a lecture by Albert Wagenknecht, identified in a court exhibit as a member of the Communist Party review commission.

The witness said Wagenknecht was one of his instructors at a leadership course in Chicago in "May or June, 1946."

"He referred to Bulgaria and countries in eastern Europe," Herron said. "He said they had practically had their revolutions in World War II but for the workers to take over here we'll have to have a revolution."

Herron said 19 persons attended the six-day course on the second floor of a building on Chicago's Division Street, just west of Ashland av.

Other lecturers, the witness testified, were David Engelstein, educational director of the Communist Party in Illinois, and Gilbert Green, district party chairman

Carrier Order Followed Vote Of Staff Chiefs

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson's order to abandon construction of the super carrier United States followed a two-to-one vote—Army and Air Force vs. Navy—on the project in the Joint Chiefs of Staff, it was learned yesterday.

Generals Omar Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, and Hoyt Vandenberg, USAF Chief of Staff, favored the action, with Admiral Louis Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations, in opposition, said informed sources.

However, it seemed clear that the decision was Johnson's. In fact, it was reliably reported that the stop-work order and press release to announce it were prepared before the recommendations of Bradley and Denfeld were submitted Saturday.

In the past, "split decisions" of the Joint Chiefs were uniformly reviewed at length, with the Secretary of Defense considering each side's written and oral arguments after their recommendations were received.

The speed and what Navy men consider the preemptoriness of Johnson's first major decision therefore may indicate a change in operating methods at the Pentagon. Said the Secretary in his terse announcement of the decision:

"I have now received the views of the Chiefs of Staff and after careful consideration and discussion of the matter with the President, I have reached the conclusion that appropriate orders should be issued discontinuing the construction of the vessel."

Actually, under the National Security Act of 1947, the Joint Chiefs as a body are charged with developing military policy and reviewing military requirements, subject to the approval of the Secretary and President. Past procedure has been that their findings on military questions were accepted where unanimous.

In case of a split, a decision was made by the Defense Secretary only after long discussion with the interested parties.

Navy officials expected additional hearing of the carrier question. The suddenness with which Johnson acted not only is expected to bring about Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan's immediate resignation, but it convinced many top military officials that a new relationship between the Joint Chiefs and the Secretary now existed and that the status of the Joint Chiefs had become distinctly altered.

Brannan Won't Estimate Cost Of Farm Plan

Secretary Declares Scheme Would Benefit Growers, Consumers

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan yesterday explained to the House Agriculture Committee how his new farm plan would have benefited both housewives and farmers had it been in effect this year.

It cost the Government 225 million dollars, he said, to support the price of the 1948 crop of potatoes. For the same 225 million, he declared, "we could have reduced the price of potatoes to consumers to about $1 a bushel and retained the farm price at the support level."

He said similar reductions in the retail price of milk and milk products, meats, chickens, and eggs could be made next year without the Government spending more than it will spend under the present price support law.

However, the farm chief declined to answer the $64 question: How much will his plan cost? He said it is also impossible to make an estimate on what the present price support program will cost.

"It has never been possible," he declared, "to make accurate dollar estimates in advance for price operations." He added:

"This question involves many values in adition to dollars."

Brannan showed a willingness—almost an eagerness—to tangle with critics of his plan. He referred at one time to attacks made on it by the "leader of the Health Plan Legislation Introduced

Post Reporter

Ten Administration supporters yesterday introduced legislation in both houses of Congress to carry out President Truman's national health program.

But even its strongest advocates concede there is virtually no prospect that the most controversial feature of the bill—national health insurance—will be enacted this session.

The bill calls for the Government to pay all medical, surgical, dental and hospital bills for persons covered by Social Security and their dependents. The costs would be met by a new payroll tax of one and one-half per cent each on covered workers and their employers, plus about $1,500,000,000 a year in direct appropriations from the Treasury.

The tax would be levied on income up to $4800 a year. For example, on income of that amount the worker would be taxed $72 a year, and the employer a like amount. If the worker earned only $2400 a year he and the employer would be taxed $36 each. The self-employed would pay the entire 3 per cent levy.

The tax revenue, plus the Treasury contribution, would be used to provide medical, dental and hospital care and other services, including eyeglasses, hearing aids and other special appliances, for nearly all wage and salary earners.

Railroad workers are the main group excluded from the insurance plan because they are covered under their own retirement law.

Major provisions of the "prepaid personal health insurance" section of the bill are:

1. A guarantee of free choice of doctor and dentist by the patient, as well as the right to change one's choice.

2. Every qualified doctor, dentist, nurse and hospital is guaranteed the right to participate or not, and to accept or reject patients. These guarantees apply to organized groups of practicioners, clinics, consumer cooperatives and similar health service plans as well as to individuals. Every hospital that participates is guaranteed freedom from governmental supervision or control.

3. Payments to doctors from the fund can be made on a fee-for-service basis (as at present), on a capitation basis (so much for each person who has chosen a particular doctor) or on a salary basis—the decision will be made for each local area by the doctors practicing in that area, but should individuals or groups of doctors in the area prefer a method different from that chosen by the majority, this too is permissible.

4. Each state has the right to administer the system through its

Germans Agree With Allies On Western Government Plan

Frankfurt, Germany, April 25 (AP). — German anti-Communist leaders reached an agreement tonight with the three military governors to rush the formation of the federal republic of Western Germany. The accord ignores Russia.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American Military Governor, predicted the new European state—with a population of more than 45 million Germans west of the Elbe—would come into existence by July 15. That would be four months after the target date fixed last year by the Western Allies.

The republic will be made up of the individual German states in the American, British and French occupation zones. The agreement does not involve Russia which occupies almost a third of the former Reich.

At the end of a six-hour conference between German constitution writers and the Western governors, Clay announced:

"We have reconciled all differences between the occupation powers and the Germans, and the Germans have reconciled all differences between themselves."

A similar announcement was made by Dr. Konrad Adenauer, leader of the conservative Christian Democratic Party. Adenauer is head of the German assembly in Bonn which has been working for eight months on a constitution for the western German government.

Every political party in western Germany was represented at today's conference except the Communists, who bitterly oppose any sort of western German regime.

Clay said details of the agreement will be announced in two or three days. He added: "We agreed that the Germans will go back to Bonn and prepare the exact German wording of the agreement. We will prepare the English wording."

One German conferee said the agreement "more or less" insures strong powers for the individual German states in the republic, especially in finances. He said the conservatives, who had favored strong states rights, won almost everything they had asked for.

The agreement by all parties concerned was reached unexpectedly. For weeks differences between the Western Allies and the Germans and among the Germans themselves had threatened to scuttle plans for Germany's first central government since the war.

All sides apparently made concessions. Adenauer told newsmen: "Everyone had to make a sacrifice in the interests of Germany and of Europe." Twice during today's conference the military governors left the Germans alone to thrash out their problems.

The Germans came to the meeting with a tentative settlement of two of the thorny issues which had blocked completion of the

Kentuckian Joins With General Grant in Favoring Amendment

Chairman Spence (D., Ky.) of the House Banking Committee last night indorsed a Senate-approved amendment aimed to permit early construction of low-rent housing here.

Backing for the Sparkman amendment, which would restore site acquisition power to the National Capital Housing Authority, also came yesterday from Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Without land purchasing authority, Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.) told the Senate last week, NCHA would be the only local housing body in the U. S. prevented from taking full advantage of public housing provisions under the national housing bill.

Measure Before Committee

The House Banking Committee is now holding hearings on the similar Administration long-range slum clearance and public housing measure.

Spence said it would be "very appropriate" to have the NCHA provision in his House bill. "I'm sure the committee will give consideration to that. It's essential to get rid of the slums here," he commented.

He said he felt it a "national obligation to wipe out slums in the Capital City. And from a national viewpoint it is about as essential as anything in the country-wide housing program."

Grant Calls Action Necessary

Referring again to the sickening slum living conditions within view of the Capitol and elsewhere about the city, Spence added:

"Washington is perhaps the most beautiful city in the world, and yet has some of the worst slums. I'd like to see something done to get rid of them. We'll take care

Court Is Told Of Dice Game 'Protection'

Witness Testifies Joe Scheve Claimed High-Priced Payoff

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

An accused gambler told of paying "plenty for protection" of night-long crap games at 2730 Woodley pl., nw., it was testified in District Court yesterday.

He is Joseph Scheve, alias "Big Joe" Henderson, of 4515 Longfellow st., Hyattsville, Md., on trial for assaulting Robert E. Ricker, 32, with intent to kill, assault with a dangerous weapon, setting up a gaming table and permitting gaming.

Ricker testified that when his wife asked Scheve for $850 of the $7500 Ricker said he had lost during three months of shooting craps at Woodley pl., Scheve replied:

"I have been shaken down by experts in my day, and no little tin-horn is going to shake me down. I pay plenty for protection here."

Son on Trial, Too

Scheve's son, Theodore, alias "Little Joe" Henderson, 30, 2521 34th pl. se., Hyman Rosen, 40, 1616 Isherwood st. nw., and Herman "The Judge" Kadan, proprietor of the Woodley pl. address, are also on trial for setting up a gaming table and permitting gaming, in connection with the alleged $50,000 a night crap game. The trial continues today before Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Arthur McLaughlin, the prosecutor, told the jury he would prove that Ricker had been offered $5000 to leave the District of Columbia jurisdiction and fail to prosecute the case.

Charles E. Ford, attorney for the defendants, claimed the four men were in court "only because of their refusal to submit to a dastardly blackmail."

Discussion Of German Situation Requested

Condition Is Ending Of Countersiege By Allies, According To Tass Statement

London (Tuesday), April 26 (AP).—Russia said today she will lift the blockade of Berlin if the Western Powers will set a date for the Big Four Foreign Ministers' meeting on Germany.

The Soviet announcement came on the heels of last night's disclosure in Frankfurt that German anti-Communist leaders and the Western military governors of Germany had reached agreement to rush formation of a separate west German state.

Russia has long opposed formation of a west German state.

In a statement datelined Moscow and distributed in London, Tass said J. A. Malik, the Soviet delegate to the United Nations Security Council, had given Russia's view to the United States delegate, Dr. Philip C. Jessup, at the U. N. March 21.

Want Counterblockade Lifted

The Soviet view was that the Western occupation authorities must simultaneously lift their counterblockade of the Soviet occupation zone and the Soviet sector of Berlin, Tass said.

Tass said the Soviet and U. S. delegates to U. N. started talks Feb. 15 as the outgrowth of telegraphic interviews between Prime Minister Stalin and J. Kingsbury Smith, general European manager of the International News Service stationed in Paris. The two delegates had their last talks April 10.

The Tass statement, distributed by the Soviet monitor here, set this out as Russia's position:

1. A Big Four foreign ministers' council—composed of Russia, the United States, Britain and France—should meet to discuss a single currency for Berlin, "together with other questions bearing on Germany."

2. If a date can be agreed on for such a meeting, "reciprocal restrictions on communications and trade could be lifted" before the meeting

Blockade Began in June

Russia, whose occupation zone surrounds Berlin, clamped on a blockade of land and water communications into the city last June. The USSR said the purpose was to stop currency smuggling in the wake of currency reform in the American and British zones.

Britain and the United States started an airlift into the city. All three Western powers gradually laid on a counterblockade of the Russian occupation zone and the Soviet sector of Berlin.

American and British airmen brought 8939 tons of supplies to Berlin in the 24 hours ended at noon today. It was the second greatest tonnage flown in in one day. The record of 12,940 tons was set April 16.

Gambling Probe Not Directed By Governor Lane

It was reported in Sunday's edition of The Washington Post that A. Gwynn Bowie, State's attorney for Prince Georges County, "recently was directed by Governor Lane to look into county gambling."

An investigation by The Post has shown this report to be incorrect and that the Governor of Maryland has not entered the current investigation.

State's Attorney Bowie, without the direction or suggestion of anyone, initiated the entire probe now being conducted. The Post regrets the erroneous report in the Sunday edition.

JUDGE ALBERT REEVES
Upholds her indictment

By Edward T. Folliard

Judith Coplon will take the witness stand when her espionage trial gets under way, her attorney announced yesterday.

She lost a preliminary round in District Court when Judge Albert L. Reeves refused to quash the indictment charging her with taking documents from Government files to aid Russia.

Archibald Palmer, attorney for the suspended Department of Justice worker, argued that her rights under the Constitution were violated because the grand jury which returned the indictment included nine Government workers. He contended that these Government workers, having taken the loyalty pledge, could not be impartial in a criminal case involving another Government worker.

Judge Reeves, who came here from Kansas City to help with the overloaded docket in District Court, told Palmer that Congress had settled this question in 1935 when it made Government workers eligible for jury duty.

The white-haired jurist said it

6.7% More Felonies Cleared

Rise in Crime Solutions Proves Police Doing Well, Barrett Says

Police Chief Robert J. Barrett yesterday said the annual report of the Criminal Justice Association shows Washington's undermanned police force is doing a good job.

Barrett pointed with pride to association figures indicating police solved and cleared 58 per cent of serious felonies in 1948, an increase of 6.7 per cent over 1947.

This increase is even more impressive, he said, in view of the police manpower shortage.

The asociation reports recommended the force be increased by 180 officers. Barrett requested 196 new employes be hired but the budget submitted to Congress included a request for only 49.

If and when the department gets sufficient additional policemen, Barrett said, he would assign most of them to the First, Second and Thirteenth Precincts in which according to the association report, 45 per cent of all District crime occurred.

Barrett said he also would shorten patrolmen's beats, now too extensive.

The police chief attributed the 62-per-cent increase in serious crimes reported to more thorough police reporting procedures.

The association report itself noted the better reporting procedures, concluding that the increase in reported crimes does not necessarily mean a comparable increase in crimes committed.

When asked about the association's figrues showing indictments declined as crime rose, Barrett pointed out the association plans a special study of this situation. Barrett declined to give any view of his own on this finding.

Presbytery to Try Again

Refusal to Accept Negroes Delays Pulpit Exchange Plans

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

A plan to exchange ministers among Presbyterian churches here for one Sunday has been delayed because only two of 12 white churches consulted agreed to accept Negro ministers for the day.

The Presbytery of Washington City, which is made up of representatives of 42 area churches, three of them Negro and four missions unanimously approved the pulpit exchange plan at its March meeting. It was to have taken place May 1.

The Rev. James Curtis Fahl, chairman of the committee making arrangements for the exchange day, said yesterday that "only two churches, by unanimous action of their sessions, have indicated their desire to have a colored pastor in their church for this Sunday." He pointed out that because of the limited time available for making arrangements, the committee was prevented from making a complete canvass of all 42 churches in the presbytery.

Mr. Fahl, who is pastor of Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, 4th and B sts. se., said his church and Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Chevy Chase cir. nw., had unanimously agreed to have Negro pastors in the pulpit for the day.

Ministers of the churches were asked to request their sessions for unanimous approval of the exchange. The session, made up of the minister and 3 to 15 lay members, is the ruling body of the church.

Members of the committee felt it would be better to drop the proj-

British Ship Doctor Saves 40 by Razor

Hong Kong, April 25 (U.P.).—A young British surgeon aboard the Consort performed major operations on wounded sailors with a straight razor while the destroyer fought a running battle with Communist shore guns on the Yangtze last week.

Lieut. Mark Bentley said all his instruments were shot away in the first round of the two-hour battle. His operations on 40 badly wounded men included several amputations.

"They all lived, too," Bentley grinned.

Chinese Reds Closing Trap

Passengers said Hangchow was full of Nationalist troops, so it could be that a considerable government withdrawal to that point already has succeeded.

Trains for Hangchow were leaving as rapidly as they could be made up, with no attempt to maintain normal schedules.

Reinforcements Reported Sent

The garrison command stated that Nanhsiang, Kashing and Soochow all were in Nationalist hands and that strong reinforcements had gone to Soochow, 50 miles west of Nanking. It acknowledged that the tracks leading on westward to Communist-occupied Nanking had been torn up.

It said only 20,000 Communists had crossed to the south bank of the Yangtze from Kiangsu province (the province opposite the Nanking-Shanghai area) and that others on the north bank were under "surveillance" of the Nationalist air force.

(The Communists have said they have more than one million men on the south bank, 350,000 of them from Nanking eastward toward Shanghai.)

Communist radio announcements from Peiping Monday night, however, said only that Reds troops were now 80 miles west of Shanghai and that others were driving south and southeast in pursuit of fleeing government forces. Their locations were not mentioned. One Red broadcast said all cities on the south bank from Anking to Wusih—a stretch of 230 miles—were in Red hands.

Shanghai Waits Listlessly

Shanghai's 5,000,000 population—fourth greatest city in the world—listlessly awaited the Communists at any time. There was none of the riotous disorder that shook Nanking Saturday before the Communists entered Sunday.

There were reports that some government ammunition ships left Shanghai during darkness, but the waterfront appeared quiet.

Few troops were to be seen around Shanghai, and no fighting was reported.

The warning to Americans from U. S. Consul General John Cabot said that the Communist attacks on four British warships last week made it unwise to leave evacuation ships in vulnerable waters.

For that reason, it said, American "heavy units" shortly would move from their Whangpoo River anchorages facing Shanghai to the lower Yangtze estuary.

Flagship Remains

Americans going aboard were warned that they might be uncomfortable and might not be permitted to land again, but that "when these facilities are no longer available, no further facilities of any kind will be provided by American authorities for protection of American citizens in Shanghai."

However, the Eldorado, flagship of Vice Adm. Oscar C. Badger, U. S. Western Pacific Fleet commander, remained at its usual buoy Monday night.

Despite bad flying conditions, with visibility only a few hundred feet, Chinese National Aviation Corp. and Central Air Transport planes continued to take off all day Monday for the south and for the Island of Formosa.

Most of their passengers were government officials and wealthy Chinese refugees.

Pan American Airways and Northwest Airlines reported they were sticking to their normal schedules but might add a few extra flights later in the week.

London, April 25 (AP).—Britain is reinforcing her fleet in China waters with two aircraft carriers and a group of submarines bound for Hong Kong, official sources said today.

Tonight a spokesman for the British admiralty said all British vessels will be withdrawn from China proper— probably to Hong Kong.

The spokesman said this was the meaning of an admiralty statement that the British intend to withdraw their vessels from Nanking and Shanghai and "continue normal procedure with regards to visits to foreign ports."

44 Lives Lost

The cruiser London, the destroyer Consort, the sloops, Amethyst and Black Swan have been under Communist fire on the Yangtze River, with the loss of 44 British lives. The Amethyst is now below Nanking and the others are in Shanghai. Other British vessels in China proper, the admiralty spokesman said, are the destroyer Constance and a frigate, both in Shanghai.

Official informants said the two carriers and the group of submarines will be sent to Hong Kong to reinforce the two cruisers, eight destroyers and four sloops already stationed in the Crown Colony.

The admiralty said the cruiser Jamaica had been ordered to leave Bermuda for the Far East. It said other reinforcements will be sent to Hong Kong.

Special Cabinet Meeting

The cabinet held a special meeting today to consider Parliamentary criticism. Winston Churchill, Conservative leader, has asked the government for a statement and may call for a full dress debate.

Questions have been raised in the British press as to why the Amethyst, the first ship fired upon last Wednesday, was sent on a mission up the Yangtze at that particular time when the Communists were preparing an offensive.

Attlee is expected to answer the criticisms himself. Defense Minister A. V. Alexander canceled plans to sail for Norway today so as to be on hand when the debate takes place.

Reds Invade U. S. Embassy

"something of a shock" according to the State Department's account.

The first to enter spoke in loud and angry tones but did not actually threaten Stuart, the embassy advised. Those who followed were more civil and said they had come to look around.

"They wandered about the bedroom, inspecting its contents and making remarks to the effect that all this would eventually go to the people to whom it should belong anyway," the embassy reported.

The group questioned the ambassador's private secretary, Philip Fugh. The soldiers forced an attache, Edward Anderberg, jr., back into his own room at the point of a gun, inspected his room and other bedrooms, the report said. Then the soldiers left without removing anything.

No other houses in the compound were visited.

The Communists had avoided molesting United States consulates in Peiping, Tientsin and other cities they have overrun. Diplomatic officials were hopeful they would exercise the same restraint at Nanking and thereby avoid danger of incidents which might involve the United States more deeply in China's difficulties.

Deep concern also is felt by Secretary of State Acheson and his advisers over safety of the 2500 Americans in Shanghai. Officials believe the Communists may bypass the city for the time being but meanwhile there is a recognized peril from disorders. Ships standing by to evacuate Americans in an emergency are being ordered away from the city out of range of artillery fire from the banks of the Whangpoo.

D. C. Trip Planned

Stuart, former president of Yenching University at Peiping, has been ambassador for nearly three years and his prospective trip to Washington would be his first since his appointment. Instructions were sent him last week that after assuring himself of the safety and welfare of the Americans in the lower Yangtze Valley, he was to come to Washington for consultations.

Presumably he would fly first to Shanghai and there board a trans-Pacific plane. Latest fast-moving developments made this uncertain. For one thing, the military attache's plane at Nanking was looted of removable equipment before the Communists moved in, dispatches said.

Four British ships were damaged and 43 seamen were killed when Communist artillery shelled them, starting last Wednesday.

The sloop Amethyst still is marooned in the river, and the Communists have refused to permit her to leave.

The Peiping broadcast reiterated Red accusations that the British had intervened in China's civil war and ha dcaused 252 casualties among Communist troops. Punishment by Britain of "perpetrators of this act" also was demanded.

British King May Be India's 'First Citizen'

London, April 25 (U.P.).—The British Commonwealth conference has agreed on a formula to keep India within the association after she becomes a sovereign republic in August, reliable sources said today.

No details were available, but these sources said the solution involves a revised oath of office by the president of the Indian republic in which King George VI is recognized as "first citizen" rather than monarch.

India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru has sought to keep India aloof from defense blocs, but he spent the weekend with Rear Admiral Earl Mountbatten, Britain's last Indian viceroy, who, reliable sources said, tried to impress Nehru with the need for an urgent and complete understanding between India and Pakistan as vital for Asian defense.

Others have pointed out to Nehru that his country now is flanked by a possibly hostile China, capable of being transformed into a Soviet base.

NLRB Likely to Drop Charge Against Vepco

Baltimore, April 25 (AP).—A National Labor Relations Board official said today unfair labor practice charges against the Virginia Electric and Power Co. probably would be withdrawn.

The charge, filed by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, accused the company of refusing to bargain for wage scale revisions at its Richmond, Va., plant. NLRB examiner Henry L. Segal's statement, came after last night's announcement that union and company officials had agreed on a new contract.

2 Thrusts Aim at Rangoon

Rangoon, Burma, April 25 (AP).—The Burmese Government announced today that two separate rebel forces have struck southward toward Rangoon.

One insurgent column was said to have been checked 30 miles from here. The other rebel force was 73 miles away. Air support was provided for the Burmese army units resisting the advances.

Informants said the closer of the two rebel columns is composed of army deserters, White Flag (Stalinist) Communists and members of the White Band People's Volunteer Organization.

This force of more than 1000 men moved down the Prome-Rangoon highway, reached Taikkyi and then attempted to take Hmawbi, a fortress town 30 miles from here. A government spokesman said Burmese air and ground units heavily pounded the rebels in weekend fighting before Hmawbi.

The second rebel column is operating north and slightly east of the first. It is composed of Karen tribesmen, who seek an autonomous state of their own.

2 Policemen Sentenced

Berlin, April 25 (AP).—Two Russian sector German policemen were sentenced to a year in prison today — for letting holdup men steal their pistols. A Soviet sector court, reported the Russian-licensed news agency ADN, reminded the policemen sternly that they had the task of "protecting the new democracy."

Atom Bomb Group On Way to Britain

London, April 25 (U.P.).—The first American Superfortress group with the know-how for atomic bombing will arrive in England Saturday and put the United States in position to drop an atom bomb anywhere in Europe on short notice, it was disclosed today.

Air Force officers reveal that the famous 509th "Atom Bomb" Group will fly to this Atlantic Pact base for training with its specially equipped, specially trained crews.

Included in the 509th's highly trained personnel will be at least two veterans of the history-making missions which obliterated Hiroshima and Nagasaki, one Air Force source said.

It was learned the group's 30 planes will not come equipped with the special racks needed for carrying atom bombs. But an Air Force source said "it would take only 5½ hours to install the racks once the planes are here."

(In Washington, an Air Force spokesman said the 509th Bomber Group is being sent to England for training as part of a regular rotation plan that has no connection with its atom bombing experience.

(While the B-29s of the 509th Group have dropped all the atomic bombs to date, the spokesman said, there are now "several" other bomber groups in the Strategic Air Command which are prepared to carry the deadly weapon.)

Swiss Admitted

Russians Ease Blockade, Let Train Enter

Frankfurt, Germany, April 25 (U.P.).—The Russians relaxed their economic blockade of Berlin today by authorizing a Swiss railroad train to cross their occupation zone.

The train will pass, from Switzerland, through the American zone and then across the western part of the Soviet occupation zone with 10 tons of food for the Swiss colony. The train will bring out about 400 Swiss children and 450 Swiss adults.

The Russian action stimulated speculation whether the Soviet government is really, as reported, considering relaxing its blockade of the capital.

The Swiss train will be the second the Russians have permitted to cross their occupation zone from the West for nearly 13 months. A train of the International Red Cross was permitted to cross the Soviet zone January 12.

World Bank's Loan Policy Is Defended

By The Associated Press

The World Bank intends to stick to making loans on economic rather, than "social or relief grounds," Vice President Robert L. Garner told a news conference yesterday.

Gardner described as "a little far-fetched" recent criticism of the bank in a report by a subcommittee of the United Nations Economic, Social and Cultural Organization. He quoted the report as saying "we made loans on economic instead of social or relief grounds."

He said that however "desirable" it might be, it is not the bank's business—under its charter—"to take care of people who may be poor or even sick."

"We wouldn't be able to raise any money out of the (financial) market if we did that," Garner said.

Garner also said the present charter of the bank is "adequate."

Referring to the report's suggestion for another Bretton Woods conference to broaden the bank's lending approach, he said that would present practical difficulties because all 48 member countries would have to approve any change. He added that the decision would have to be "by governments—and not by technical experts."

Garner also told the conference:

(1) He understands it is "pretty definite" that the bank's president, John J. McCloy, has been offered the post of first American High Commissioner for Germany.

He added, however, that he understand McCloy would not take it under consideration until he returns in a few days from London.

(2) The bank likely will make some "moderate" loans for development in Egypt and Turkey "in the course of a few months."

(3) A decision on whether to make some loans to India and for what projects also is probable in in a few months. He said India is interested in railroad improvement and in power and irrigation projects.

West Germans, Allies Agree

constitution. These had to do with the division of financial powers between the federal and state governments and the division of authority between the upper and lower houses of Parliament.

They had hammered out this settlement quickly after the Western Allies made concessions last week which the Social Democrats (socialists) considered a victory for themselves. During the period of disagreement the Social Democrats had demanded strong powers for the central government. The Christian Democrats, like the Western Allies themselves, favored decentralization.

Berlin Inclusion Indicated

Dr. Otto Suhr, deputy from Berlin in the constitutional assembly, told newsmen the military governors had indicated that the western sectors of Berlin ultimately might be incorporated into the west German government. He quoted them as saying:

"We hope that the Berlin chair can be drawn up to the round table of the West German Bundesrat (proposed upper house of states) as soon as there is one.

Clay gave this timetable for the birth of the new federal republic:

Approval of the final text of the constitution by the Bonn Assembly by May 15.

Ratification of the constitution, either by the Parliaments of the individual German states or by popular plebiscite.

Election of the Parliament of the republic by July 15. That body in turn will choose the executives of the republic.

Termination of the Western Allied Military Government, almost simultaneously with the election of the Parliament. The Allied generals will be replaced by Allied high commissioners.

Veto Powers Awarded

The upper house in the Parliament fro western Germany will represent the states and the lower house will be popularly elected. An indication that the central powers of the federal government were curtailed was seen in the report that the military governors awarded the upper house power to veto certain acts of the lower house.

It was reported that the upper house was given veto power over any legislation leading toward socialization. If true, this was a victory for German conservatives and American policy and a defeat for left wing German Socialists and views of the British Labor government.

The Germans will administer their internal affairs subject to supervision by civilian high commissioners of the Allies.

Many of the 20,000 Allied military government's employes will lose their jobs. There is little likelihood of troop reductions. The Allies have about 267,000 troops in western Germany.

Austria Talks Resume; Reds Not Budging

London, April 25 (AP).—Russia showed no sign today of softening her demands when the deputies of the Big Four foreign ministers resumed their talks on a treaty of independence for Austria.

The deputies now have held 153 sessions in two years. Today's discussion, first since the Easter recess, brought them no closer to their goal. At the conclusion of the conference a high American source said:

"It is clear the Russians are not prepared to make any move toward breaking the deadlock at this moment. They appear to feel the time still is not ripe to make a step forward and obviously they have received no new instructions from Moscow."

Soviet reparations demands on Austria constitute a major point of disagreement.

Before it convened United States, British and French diplomats had hoped the Soviet delegation would show itself more conciliatory. Their hopes were based in part on rumors that Russia was seeking a new get-together with the West on Germany.

Some observers thought the Russians were waiting to see how events develop in Europe before relinquishing their position in the center of the Continent. The Russians were said to be particularly interested in Germany and in the fight Yugoslavia's Premier Marshal Tito is waging with the Cominform.

Under the proposed treaty, the Soviet Union and the three Western powers would withdraw their occupation forces from Austria within three months of ratification.

5 British Soldiers Held By Russians in Berlin

Frankfurt, Germany, April 25 (U.P.).—Five British soldiers were held by the Russians tonight following a series of border incidents in which Soviet soldiers fired on American, British and German patrols.

British officials in Berlin demanded formally that the Russians return a lieutenant and four enlisted men of the British Third Hussar Regiment captured Friday night by Russian troops along the Soviet zone border. At the same time American military officials at Coburg, Bavaria, disclosed that Russian soldiers fired on two jeeploads of United States soldiers who were driving inside the American zone near the Russian zone frontier last Monday.

They also confirmed that three American zone German border police were kidnaped by Russian troops Saturday after the Russians fired on a small patrol, wounding at least one man.

It was believed possible that a sixth British subject might be in Soviet hands.

Israel Won't Expand Past Its Borders, Weizmann Says

President Chaim Weizmann of Israel said yesterday that his young nation presents no aggressive threat to expand beyond its present frontiers.

"We have plenty of work to do," said the bearded Jewish leader. "It doesn't enter our minds to transgress the frontiers allotted to us."

He said his nation hopes it can provide a home for all of Europe's displaced Jews, and said that within a year Israel will have a population of one million and could eventually expand to two million if there is a proper balance between industry and agriculture.

Dr. Weizman spoke to reporters after he and his wife were luncheon guests of President and Mrs. Truman at Blair House, together with Vice President Alben W. Barkley and other officials.

"Deeply Moved"

Declaring he was "deeply moved" by his reception and President Truman's "very sympathetic and friendly" inquiries about the development problems facing the Jewish state, Dr. Weizmann gave the President a bronze plaque inscribed with the text of the Israeli act of independence.

Beneath the text was the inscription, "As a token of deep and grateful appreciation of the government and the people of Israel."

In an exchange of toasts, President Truman honored Dr. Weizmann as "a great leader and one of the world's greatest scientists."

Dr. Weizmann said he told the President that as development proceeds in Israel, "it will increase the standard of life of the Arabs, along with the Jews."

Arabs Can Return

He said the Arabs who fled from Israel during the fighting there are "welcome to return if they comply with our laws." He said that 80,000 Arabs are now in Israel, on an equal basis with Jews. The property of 400,000 who filed, he said, is being held in public trust for them.

But any mass return of Arabs, said Dr. Weizmann, undoubtedly would "renew old frictions," and as a group the Arabs would be far better off in some of the more fertile section of the Arab nations.

He said one of the biggest problems in bringing Jews to Israel involves nearly 800,000 who are in North Africa.

Most of these, he said, "have not been prepared for resettlement," lack training for either agriculture or industry, and believes that "the Promised Land" awaits them with full facilities ready for their needs.

Today Dr. Weizmann is scheduled to do some sight-seeing around Washington, and then have lunch with his close friends, Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Felix Frankfurter, before returning to New York. He is scheduled to leave for Europe on May 5 aboard the Queen Mary.

Judge Alerts Jury On Maryland's Subversive Law

Cambridge, Md., April 25 (AP).—Judge Levin Claude Bailey today called the new Dorchester County grand jury's attention to the recently signed Ober law outlawing subversive activities.

He did so as the April court term opened today. Dorsey E. Davis was chosen foreman of the grand jury.

Judge Bailey observed that the anti-Communist measure was now law, and obliged jurors to report on any subversive organizations or persons they might know.

The Ober law makes it a crime even to belong to subversive organizations.

Clay Proposes Association of Free Nations

New York, April 25 (AP).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States Military Governor in Germany, urged today that Germany be integrated into an association of the free nations of western Europe.

Formation of such an association, he said, "will make it difficult for the Communist front to keep intact. It is the only sure way to peace."

In a message to the annual luncheon of members of the Associated Press, Clay reviewed events leading to the agreement of the United States, Britain and France for establishment of a west German government. With its establishment, he said, military government will cease.

Urges Helping Hand

"The time for punitive measures has ended," he said. "Goodwill and a helping hand are needed, not only to create the new government but to make it feel that it is wanted back in the comity of free nations as quickly as it has demonstrated its own will to be free.

"The forming of an association of the free nations of western Europe with Germany integrated therein will create lasting stability in Europe and will not only end the threat of Communist expansion but will make it difficult for the Communist front to keep intact. It is the only sure way to peace."

Clay's message was read by J. Wes Gallagher, Associated Press bureau chief in Germany, who flew here for the meeting. He and Harold K. Milks, Associated Press correspondent at Nanking who is on home leave, gave off-the-record talks on conditions in Germany and China.

The board of directors, in its annual report, said it "is compelled to report a continuation of the trend of governments abroad to control the news."

Communication Prompt

"Nevertheless, in all accessible parts of the globe there is today an Associated Press representative or an Associated Press newspaper, and means of prompt communication," the board said.

Resolutions lauding Frank B. Noyes, late publisher of the Washington Evening Star, were presented. Noyes, who died last December 1, was one of the founders of the AP and served as its president 38 years.

The board of directors said in its annual report that the AP served 1708 newspapers in the United States in 1948 and 940 radio stations. Throughout the world, the newspapers, other publications and radio stations served totaled 4274.

"In 61 countries outside the United States, representative newspapers and radio stations are receiving the service and have embraced Associated Press principles," the board said. "They are also giving their news."

British Papers Expand

London, April 25 (AP).—Britain's thin newspapers took another step nearer prewar size today when the government allowed them to begin printing six-page editions daily for the first time in eight years.

The move still leaves the newspapers a long way from their goal of 24-page issues.

Socialite About to Take Job With AEC Dies Mysteriously

New York, April 25 (U.P.).—Charles A. Richards, jr., 40, prominent in society, was found dead in his apartment under mysterious circumstances today, a few days before he was to take a job with the Atomic Energy Commission in Washington.

Richards' body was found by a maid who arrived for work shortly after 3 p. m. Police said he apparently had died of gas poisoning, but they were unable to determine the source of the gas.

The maid, Margaret O'Connell, found the body lying on the floor between the kitchen and the dinette of the expensive apartment. The gas jets on the nearby kitchen stove were turned off and were not leaking, police said.

Miss O'Connell called the apartment superintendent, Reinhold Soutta, who notified police. Other residents of the building said they had smelled gas in the morning, but could not find the source.

Richards, who is listed in the New York Social Register, served with Naval Intelligence during the war. He was to go to Washington next week to take up his duties with the AEC. His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Richards, sr., already were in Washington, police said, where the elder Richards also has a recently acquired job with the commission.

Police speculating on the death, said that it was possible that Richards had been sitting on a stool near the stove, had been overcome by gas, and in falling off the stool had brushed against the stove and turned off the jets.

An autopsy will be held Tuesday.

Sen. Vandenberg Gives Russia Formula for Assuring Peace

New York, April 25 (AP).—Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.) declared tonight that Russia's leaders hold the key to world peace, and he blue-printed a method whereby they could assure that peace.

The Kremlin leaders could produce an effect more powerful than "our whole storehouse of atom bombs," he said, if they were to announce:

1. That Moscow seeks to heal the East-West breach;

2. "That communism is ready to drop its plans for external conquest and subversion;

3. "That the Politburo is truly ready for mutual, good-faith efforts to create a livable world in which free self-determination shall decide any nation's accepted ideology;

4. "And that effectively disciplined, adequately supervised, universal disarmament shall be the world's progresive goal on a new agenda of hope for all the other people in a friendly world."

But he said such an announcement from Moscow must be "backed by deeds to give it some belated semblance of reality," and he added:

"Even to lift the Berlin blockade would be startling sunshine in a dismal sky."

The Michigan Senator, ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, spoke before the Theodore Roosevelt Memorial Association at a dinner in which he was given the 1948 Theodore Roosevelt Medal for public service.

There will be no war unless Communist Russia starts it," he said, "and there will be no prior armed aggression upon the Soviets — least of all from the United States — to provoke any such calamity." But he declared:

"We shall not be booby-trapped. There is no trace of Munich in our souls."

He quoted the first President Roosevelt:

"It is a wicked thing to be neutral between right and wrong. Let us not boast, nor insult anyone, but make up our minds coolly what it is necessary to say; say it, and then stand to it, whatever the consequences."

Pact Nations Rely On Reserve Troops

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Well-armed Western European forces of regular troops plus easily mobilized armies of reserves — rather than huge standing armies in continually increasing numbers —are the defense goal of the Atlantic Treaty nations.

These forces, according to basic strategy behind this nation's proposed first-year outlay of $1,130,000,000 to help arm pact countries, are intended to hold off any European aggressor until United States forces can reach the scene, if and when an attack comes.

Government sources yesterday also disclosed these additional aspects of the Administration's arms aid proposals:

1. Because the bulk of supplies provided by this country will be heavy "capital" goods—guns, tanks, planes, ships—with long-term value, future programs, it was said, probably will be no costlier to the United States than the present one, and may be cheaper.

2. The $1,130,000,000 outlay will be in the ratio of not more than one dollar for every five to be spent this year in rearming Western Europe; the balance provided by the nations themselves.

3. Most of the treaty nations have some spare productive capacity and some have surpluses in manpower; these facilities will augment rearmament production where this can be done without impeding recovery.

British to Rearm Others

4. Great Britain, and other countries which may be in a position to do so, will help rearm other pact countries with whatever weapons or materials they can produce beyond their own needs.

5. United States outlays will be on a grant, or outright gift basis, unlike lend-lease. But this Nation would reserve the right to stop arms shipments at any time, it was said, or could specify that arms to the Dutch, for example, could be used only in Europe and not Indonesia.

6. Arms and materials will be "matched" to manpower, to prevent piling up stocks in any vulnerable area which might be overrun by an attacker.

Based on "Continental System"

The type of defense forces visualized would be based on the "continental system," employed by Belgium, Switzerland and several other nations. Under this system, groups of men are called into service for periodic training, then released to be available for prompt recall to active duty, avoiding the heavy economic drain of providing for fully mobilized troops.

Secretary of State Acheson is expected to discuss the widely-debated relation of the arms program to the Atlantic treaty when he appears on Wednesday before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at the opening hearing on the 12-nation defense alliance.

Unlike the treaty, which requires action only by the Senate, the arms program—which has not yet been formally presented to Congress—requires action by both Houses of Congress.

Acheson outlined the arms program to the Foreign Relations Committee at a closed session last Thursday. Following that meeting, Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) announced that the arms plan called for about $1,450,000,000 in global aid, $320,000,000 of it to such countries as Greece and Turkey and the remainder to countries in the pact.

Gurney Renews Question

The often-raised question of whether the aid program will weaken American military strength at home was asked anew yesterday by Senator Gurney (R., S. D.), ranking Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee. Gurney said this does not mean he is opposed to the arms aid, but merely seeks careful scrutiny of the plan.

While the program will include the use of arms surpluses in this country, and shipments of raw materials abroad, both these categories bear a small proportion of the overall outlay, it was learned.

In addition to heavy armament, the program includes considerable amounts of replacement parts for American weapons already in European hands — we equipped 10 French divisions in the last war, for example—and a number of smaller naval vessels, mine sweepers, net tenders, possibly some destroyers.

U. N. Assembly Votes Russia Should Let Aliens' Wives Go

Lake Success, April 25 (NYHT.)—At the close of a debate that included whether wives are supposed to cook meals for their husbands, the United Nations General Assembly voted today, 39 to 6, to ask Russia to suspend her laws forbidding Russian wives of foreigners to leave the Soviet Union.

Russia, which has no intention of heeding the recommendation, charged the whole case was a plot cooked up by the United States and Great Britain to make an occasion for heaping slanders on the Soviet Union.

Besides, said Russian Delegate Semen K. Tsarapkin, Russian women who married foreigners and left the Soviet Union soon found out that they had made a bad decision.

He quoted from a letter written by a Miss Galavanoff, who married an Englishman and ran into such persecutions in London that she said she couldn't stand it and returned to Russia.

"It turned out," said her letter, "that not only had I to cook meals for my husband but I had to know the exact minute when he entered the house and at that minute the hot dishes had to be ready on the table."

Hector McNeil, British Minister of State, indignantly said he frequently asked Mrs. McNeil to have a hot plate waiting for him, and that she didn't seem to mind. In return, he observed, he usually prepared Sunday lunch himself for the whole family, and often helped with the sweeping.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to know:

"Who does the housework in the Soviet Union? Is it always done by the men, or all the services performed through some communal arrangements?"

Prayers for Rain End Greatest Drought in Italy

Rome, April 25 (AP).—Prayers were said in Rome's more than 400 churches today for rain—and rain came.

It broke the greatest Italian drought in 30 years. Because of it, electricity has been rationed throughout Italy.

Rome's meteorological office reported rain was falling in Rome, Siena, Florence and many other parts of Italy. Over Sardinia there were promising clouds.

"Preposterous!" I exclaimed . . .

"Honey, we just can't afford a vacation this year. I'm not made of money. Prices are too high!"

If you've said this to your wife, she has probably come back with . . . "Well, the Smiths and the Jones are going away. How do they do it?"

The simple answer is that they save a little each month. Remember—it's not what you earn. It's what you save that counts.

New Curbs Asked On Foreign Agents

By The Associated Press

Sweeping legislation to expel "subversive" aliens from the United States won support in Congress yesterday amid charges that Moscow-directed agents are seeking to foment "revolutionary" discontent.

The charges were made by Senator McCarran (D., Nev.), chairman of the Senate Judicary Committee. He offered a bill which was quickly backed by Senator Cain (R., Wash.) and Senator O'Connor (D., Md.), among others. It would:

1. Deny visas to persons who, in the opinion of the visa-issuing officer, seeks to enter the country to engage in espionage, sabotage, organizing subversive activity, or participating in the work of any organization listed as subversive by the Attorney General.

2. Provide for the deportation of any alien connected with Communist front organizations designated by the Attorney General.

McCarran told the Senate a judiciary subcommittee has "conclusive and alarming evidence" that foreign agents, many of whom entered this country as attaches of international agencies, carry instructions from "their Communist masters."

Elsewhere on Capitol Hill, meanwhile, the House Un-American Activities Committee was told that the American Slav Congress is "subversive" and that its principal aim is to "cripple our national defense apparatus."

Judge Blair F. Gunther of Pittsburgh, who left the organization after helping to found it, said there is now "every evidence of Moscow direction and control."

The Slav Congress replied that Gunther is "pouring out his venom" after, it said, he was repudiated by the organization.

Officials of the House committee said that another witness, Milosh Knezevich, gave the committe the names of "nine or ten Communist leaders' 'in a key industrial area in Pittsburgh. These leaders were not publicly identified.

After questioning Knezevich behind closed doors, committee officials said the man himself is a former Communist who got "fed up" and that he works in the Westinghouse plant in Pittsburgh.

In addition, the committee:

1. Said it hopes its present hearings on communism will lead to a report on "the history of Russian espionage in the United States as well as in certain foreign countries." Chairman Wood (D., Ga.) said that in a statement.

2. Obtained testimony from Harry A. Sherman, also from Pittsburgh, as to alleged Communist operations in the CIO-United Electrical Workers Union. Sherman used to be an attorney for three UE locals.

He told reporters he supplied the committee with party cards and dues receipts showing that "a very substantial number" of Communists are "concentrated in the Turtle Creek Valley," an industrial area in East Pittsburgh and some suburbs heavily industrialized by Westinghouse Electric, Westinghouse subsidiaries and other important plants.

In offering his bill, Senator McCarran said it is a "cold, hard fact" that every person who comes to this country as an attache of an international organization from a Soviet-dominated country is "an agent of international communism."

He said the subcommittee has obtained a copy of the oral orders he declared are given to all such persons. He said these instructions read in part:

"We need to incite discontent, uneasiness in the the capitalistic, bourgeois states. The greater is the discontent in each capitalistic and bourgeois country, the ground for communism is more fertile."

McCaran said the purpose of his bill is to plug the loopholes of the present immigration law "so that any alien—and I emphasize the word 'any'—who engages in espionage or other subversive activity must be excluded or deported."

Senator Cain (R., Wash.) told the Senate that under McCarran's bill there is "little question" that the Attorney General would be required to remove Movie Actor Charlie Chaplin, a native of England, from the United States.

Support for the bill also came from Senator O'Conor (D., Md.). He told his colleagues that "we can no longer continue to tolerate the flagrant violations of our interests by Communist agents."

in Chicago and one of the 11 defendants.

Edward C. Wallace, special assistant to the attorney general, told the court that the review commission, to which Wagenecht purportedly belonged, was "responsible for the personnel" of the Communist Party.

The 11 defendants are accused of conspiring to organize the Communist Party in the United States to advocate the violent overthrow of the U. S. government.

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina quit his bench for five minutes today in a noisy argument with one of the defendants.

Judge Medina was trying to cut short an argument by a defense attorney when Eugene Dennis arose to make "a brief observation."

"Mr. Dennis, I do not desire any further argument on that point," the court told Dennis, General Secretary of the United States Communist Party, who is acting as his own attorney.

Dennis began again.

"I do not desire to hear you," the court repeated.

Dennis persisted.

"I suppose you are daring me to do something to you," Judge Medina told the defendant. "You can be just as disorderly, just as disobedient as you like but you will not goad me into doing something which will be a source of difficulty later in the trial."

With Dennis still on his feet, Judge Medina directed a five-minute recess and walked out of the courtroom.

Landlord Fights Absent Tenant's Tax Seizure Case

The manager of the Chesapeake Apartments, 4607 Connecticut ave. nw., sought an injunction in Municipal Court yesterday to keep the District tax collector from taking the belongings of a tenant who hasn't been home in months.

The manager asked the collector be held off until a declaratory court judgment is obtained.

The tenant, Charles B. Davison, identified as a contractor, has been telegraphing his rent in on time but owes Guy W. Pearson, tax collector, 627.77 in personal property taxes, it is alleged.

Pearson served notice Thursday on the manager of the Chesapeake, Mrs. Frances McCarthy, that he planned to attach the property in Davison's apartment.

International Propaganda Organ Is Created As World Peace Congress Ends Paris Session

Paris, April 25 (AP).—The World Peace Congress tonight decided to establish a permanent organization on Cominform lines to fight the United States in a propaganda war.

The 2000 delegates at a closing session voted unanimously for a resolution for creation of a world-wide committee which will carry on agitation against "actions which menace the peace" or "infringe on national independence."

For six days speakers at the Communist-sponsored meeting have declared that the Atlantic Treaty and Truman Doctrine are menaces to peace and the Marshall Plan a violation of the independence of the countries participating in it. American "warmongers" and leaders have been pictured as the chief opponents of peace and Russia as the true friend of peace.

A manifesto adopted by the congress demanded the outlawing of the atomic bomb, and a boycott of all books, films, press and personalities considered to favor propaganda for a new war.

It condemned military alliances, colonialism and the "rearmament of western Germany and Japan.

The manifesto omitted any reference to the civil war in China but denounced the conflicts in Greece, Indonesia, Indochina and Malaya.

The permanent committee roster included eight Americans. They were O. John Rogge, former Assistant U. S. Attorney General; Howard Fast, the writer who was defended by Rogge in 1947 in a contempt of Congress case; Albert Kahn, the writer; Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, Negro educator; Paul Robeson, the Negro singer; Donald Henderson, a labor leader; Mrs. Gene Weltfish and the Rev. Arthur W. Moulton of Salt Lake City.

French members of the committee included the Communist chief of the French atomic energy commission, Frederic Joliot-Curie, and his wife, Mme. Irene Joliot-Curie.

The British members included Dr. Hewlett Johnson, dean of Canterbury.

Developments in the closing hours of the congress might be construed as a reflection of Russia's reported desire to resume four-power negotiations on Germany.

One of the final speakers, V. P. Volgin, vice president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, told the delegates that communism and capitalism can live peacefully side by side. He was indorsing a similar statement made Saturday by O. John Rogge, former Assistant United States Attorney General.

The same delegates who booed Rogge cheered Volgin.

Then to the surprise of nearly everybody Rogge's name was included on the permanent committee.

Finally, Yves Farge, a pro-Communist Frenchman in a speech which closed the meeting, declared:

"The issues between the Popular (Eastern) and Capitalist (Western) democracies are less important than the needs which unite them. There are no questions which cannot be settled by negotiation."

Judith Due To Take Stand

would be a different story if Government workers had been excluded from the grand jury. In such circumstances, he said, he would have upheld a claim by Miss Coplon that Government workers were her associates and that barring them from the grand jury constituted discrimination against her.

Selection of a petit jury for the espionage trial began after Judge Reeves' ruling.

There were seven Government workers on the first venire. Defense Attorney Palmer asked all of them two questions: How long they had worked for the Government and whether they had signed a loyalty pledge. He then challenged all seven "for cause."

Judge Reeves ruled against him on the challenges, too.

Miss Coplon, who is 27, five feet tall and weighs 100 pounds, was outwardly calm throughout the day's proceedings. Having taken off the coat of her black suit (part of the wardrobe she finally rescued from her old apartment in McLean Gardens here), she sat at a table making notes and occasionally prompting her attorney. An onlooker, not knowing who she was, might have thought she was part of the array of lawyers.

Attorney Palmer, having been overruled on his challenge of the Government workers in the venire, asked the individuals in the box whether they had read about the Coplon case. Most of them had.

Garth L. Beaver, 44-year-old Government worker, who lives at 4841 Albermarle st. nw., said he had read about it but had an open mind as to Miss Coplon's guilt or innocence.

Palmer said:

"You mean that you have been in the Government 14 years . . ., and you could sit here without prejudice in this case."

"Certainly," said Beaver, "this is America."

Shortly after this, Judge Reeves adjourned the trial until 9:45 a. m. today, when the task of picking 12 jurors will be resumed.

Attorney Palmer, a short, rotund and energetic New Yorker with a flair for quoting the Bible, Shakespeare and Bartlett in general, disclosed his plan for calling Miss Coplon as a witness when he first faced the venire.

"This is Judith Coplon," he said. "She will take the witness stand and tell you that she was a United States Government employe for a number of years; that her forbears."

Prosecutors John M. Kelley, jr., and Raymond P. Whearty, special assistants to the Attorney General, both jumped to their feet and objected to Palmer's going into an argument about Miss Coplon's forbears before the jury had been sworn in.

They were on their feet again a moment later when Palmer said he would show that Miss Coplon never "gave a single thing to any foreign power."

In arguing earlier for a quashing of the indictment, Palmer denounced the action of the Department of Justice in indicting his client twice, first in New York and then here.

He said it was a case of "terror or pressure" to force her into saying what the Government wanted her to say.

He referred to the New York action, where Miss Coplon was indicted along with Valentine Gubitchev, 32-year-old Russian engineer on a charge of conspiring to commit espionage.

Palmer said the Russian, a suspended member of the United Nation's staff, was "the Negro in the woodpile." He didn't elaborate. However, he said at one point that Miss Coplon would be "worse off" in her New York trial because "the Russian will sit there in the court room."

Palmer also charged that the reason the Government indicted Miss Coplon a second time here was simply to add 13 years to the prison sentence she might get if convicted in both trials.

Government Attorney Kelley, who prosecuted "Axis Sally," offered at one stage in yesterday's proceedings to stipulate that Government workers be excluded from the jury that sits in judgment of Miss Coplon.

When Judge Reeves asked Palmer if he wanted this, the New York lawyer said he couldn't agree. Apparently, he felt that this would endanger an appeal later on. With a smile, he said he thought "precaution was the better part of valor."

Palmer made no mention during the day of the story he told reporters when Miss Coplon was arraigned here on March 21.

He said then that his client was gathering material for a novel at the time the Government claims she was spying for Russia. He said the novel would have had a Washington background and would have been partly about politics, including international politics, and partly about love.

The Coplon case, it is expected, will be concluded this week. The New York trial is scheduled to start May 2.

Hiss Witness Wins Appeal in Contempt Case

New York, April 25 (AP).—William Rosen, 65, of Santa Monica, Calif., was freed by the United States Court of Appeals today of a contempt charge in connection with the Alger Hiss case.

The appeals court reversed a contempt sentence of six months imposed by Federal Judge Simon H. Rifkind after Rosen refused to answer questions of a grand jury.

Rosen had a right to refuse to answer, the appeals court said, because evidence reaching the grand jury might eventually show that he "was or perhaps is a coconspirator."

The grand jury asked Rosen about the transfer of a Ford roadster by Alger Hiss in 1936 to a man identified as "William Rosen."

The questioning arose early in March while the grand jury was checking Hiss' story of the auto transfer. Hiss is awaiting trial on a perjury charge in connection with his denial that he gave confidential State Department papers to Whittaker Chambers, a self-styled courier for an underground spy ring.

"Under these circumstances," the appeals court ruled, "Rosen was justified in believing that he was in a precarious situation and . . . he had a right to refuse to answer questions which might connect him with the Ford car or might lead to the discovery of evidence connecting him with it, or otherwise link him up with any alleged conspiracy."

State of Siege Is Declared In Panama

Panama City, Panama, April 25 (U.P.).—The National Assembly tonight declared a state of siege and suspended civil liberties and the right of property, effective immediately.

The Assembly action, by a vote of 28 to 8, followed a warning by the Minister of Justice who said the situation was calm only on the surface. He said a state of emergency was necessary and hinted that quantities of hidden arms were in the hands of opponents of the government.

The government's request for cancellation of civil liberties came several days after the unmasking of an alleged revolutionary plot. Thirteen alleged conspirators were jailed in connection with the plot including former President Harmodio Arias, publisher of the newspaper Panama American.

District Attorney Bernardo Conte announced that Arias had satisfied authorities he had no part in the alleged plan to overthrow the government. Conte said Arias probably will be released from jail shortly.

Senators Ask $1000 Pay Cut For Armed Force Secretaries

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force would receive a pay cut of $1000 a year under changes made in the pending unification bill yesterday.

Chairman Millard Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee told reporters after an all-day closed session that the group had tentatively approved all provisions of the legislation except for a new section being drafted to overhaul military budget and spending practices.

Several major changes were made in the original Administration bill, Tydings and other Senators disclosed. They would:

1. Provide that the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff should have no vote and specifically set forth that he would not have the right of command over the heads of the armed forces. The officer would be chief military adviser to the President and Defense Secretary. He would serve two years.
2. Retain the title of "Secretary" for the civilian chiefs of the Army, Navy and Air Force, but cut their pay from $15,000 to $14,000 a year. At present the Secretary of Defense and Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force all receive $15,000. The original bill would have made the latter Undersecretaries, but made no provision for any pay change.
3. Change the title of the new Undersecretary of Defense, Steve Early, to Deputy Secretary of Defense. He would receive $14,500 a year and rank above the Army, Navy and Air Force Secretaries. The Secretary of Defense would continue to receive $15,000 under the bill.
4. Drop the plan to create three Assistant Secretaries of Defense, proposed by President Truman. There would be three assistants to the Secretary as now.

The committee also approved language in the original bill giving Defense Secretary Louis Johnson broad additional powers to more closely unify the armed services.

Dynamite Planted In Kentucky Fight

Evarts, Ky., April 25 (AP).—An apparent attempt to kill the mayor of this small Harlan County community, which has had six police chiefs since last August, was being investigated today by State police.

Bailey

Mayor Elihu H. Bailey said he found 24 sticks of dynamite under his bedroom window about 9:30 o'clock this morning. He said the dynamite was wrapped in friction tape, and the fuse had burned out.

"But I ain't scared," declared the mayor.

"I don't have no idea who coulda done it," he added.

Bailey became mayor of this mining community of 2100 in January, 1948. He had pledged to clean up bootlegging and gambling. Harlan County is legally dry.

The cleanup campaign started a ruckus last August that has not been settled. Bobby McLain, 25, was appointed April 4 as the city's sixth police chief since the rapid turnover started.

One of the former chiefs was slain, another was convicted of manslaughter, and the rest resigned.

Chief No. 5, Isachar Combs, and his assistant, Lewis Deaton, were convicted of manslaughter March 19 in connection with the killing of Bryan Middleton in a gun battle last December 17 in front of Middleton's restaurant here. Each was sentenced to 10 years in prison, but they were granted a new trial on their plea of new evidence.

In Slum Cases

Harris Asks Housing for Evictees

Dr. Edward F. Harris, chairman of the Federation of Civic Association's housing committee, yesterday urged Congress to provide for reoccupancy of rebuilt slum areas by evicted residents.

Dr. Harris, who is also president of the Lincoln Civic Association, disclosed he had written letters to Senators Flanders (R., Vt.) and Douglas (D., Ill.) urging that shelter be provided for persons displaced by clearance projects. The two Senators last week inspected a slum area within a few blocks of the Capitol after its condition was publicized by a foreign visitor.

"If shelter is not provided for the evictees," Dr. Harris contended, "they will simply crowd into other homes and create new slums."

All alley dwellings need not be eliminated, the civic leader declared. "There are many which could be renovated and modernized for occupancy by persons of low income groups," he said. "Many areas classed as slums are really not slums."

Dr. Harris cited testimony he had given in previous hearings on slum clearance relative to misuse of eminent domain proceedings.

He contended that in some instances dwellings were razed to make room for garages, parking lots or other transfer to private interests with no provision for occupants. In one case, he stated, 50 families were evicted for construction of an office building.

of that, I hope, when the situation comes before my committee."

In an interview yesterday, General Grant made it clear he considered immediate construction of low-rent housing, either by NCHA with public funds or by private industry, necessary to help solve the District slum problem.

The planning commission chairman said the long-stading NCHA plan to build 5500 public housing units in the District "certainly was not excessive when you consider that 18,000 families here are in need of decent housing."

Speaking of the Sparkman amendment, attached to the national housing bill, Grant said there was "no reason" why NCHA ever should have lost its site acquisition power to the District Redevelopment Land Agency set up by the local Slum Clearance Act of 1946.

He emphasized that the land was primarily concerned with long-range slum clearance and development of future "balanced" communities, while NCHA had the separate, distinct function of providing housing only for the lowest income bracket.

NCHA should be authorized to operate independently, without having to ask the land agency to acquire its sites, Grant said.

"The housing authority or someone must now build many more low-cost, low-rent houses here than presently exist, or could ever be developed by the land agency," Grant commented.

He suggested that effective enforcement of sanitary codes leading to condemnation proceedings could only take place after more housing was available for evicted persons.

Meanwhile, Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.), chairman of the Health, Recreation and Welfare District Subcommittee, said she would have a preliminary discussion with the Commissioners, health, sanitation and building inspection officials prior to hearings on several District bills at 10 a. m. Thursday. The question of sanitary conditions in blighted areas is expected to come up at this meeting.

Rep. Coffey Eulogized By House Members

The House yesterday eulogized Representative Coffey (D., Pa.) who was killed in a jet plane crash at Albuquerque, N. Mex., last week.

It adjourned out of respect to his memory after a score of Congressmen praised him as an outstanding war hero, student of aviation, diplomat and statesman.

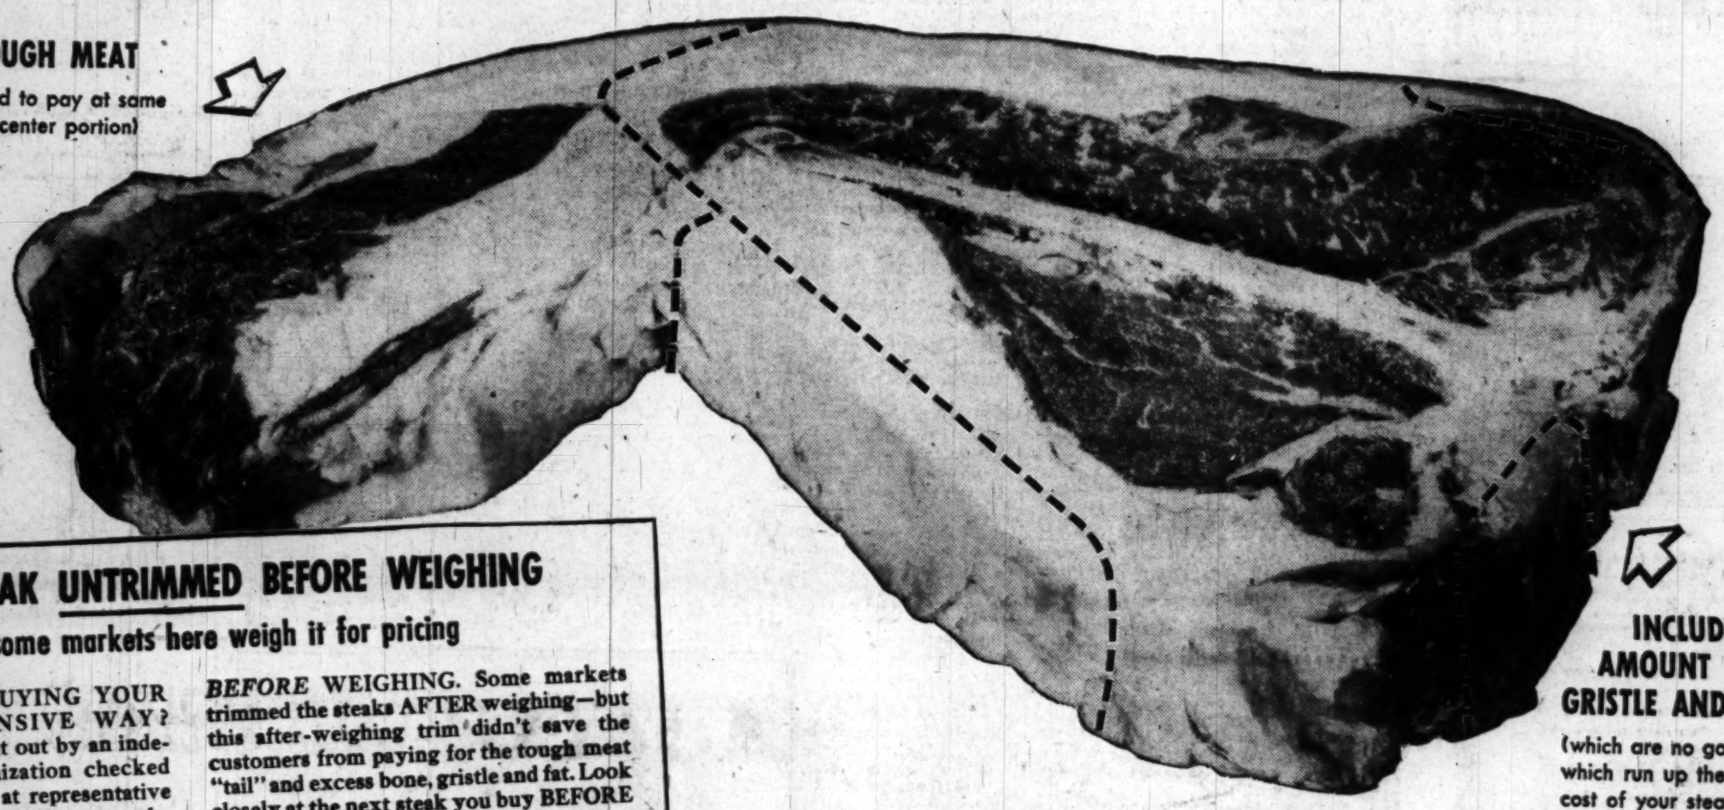
Look Carefully At These Steak Photos

They May Save You An Important Part Of Your Meat Bill. Steaks Like Each Of These Were Bought At The Same Price Per Pound In Recent Test-Purchase Survey

INCLUDES "TAIL" OF TOUGH MEAT
(for which the customer is asked to pay at same price per pound as for tender center portion)



INCLUDES EXCESSIVE AMOUNT OF BONE, GRISTLE AND FAT
(which are no good for eating, yet which run up the weight and cost of your steak)

T-BONE STEAK UNTRIMMED BEFORE WEIGHING
...as some markets here weigh it for pricing

HAVE YOU BEEN BUYING YOUR MEAT THIS EXPENSIVE WAY? Women investigators sent out by an independent research organization checked meat-trimming methods at representative markets all over this area. For example, they bought T-bone steaks . . . and were AMAZED by this discovery: 97% of markets visited (other than Safeway) DID NOT TRIM THEIR T-BONE STEAKS BEFORE WEIGHING. Some markets trimmed the steaks AFTER weighing—but this after-weighing trim didn't save the customers from paying for the tough meat "tail" and excess bone, gristle and fat. Look closely at the next steak you buy BEFORE it goes on the scales! If you can't get your market to trim BEFORE weighing, come to Safeway and get the money-savings modern meat-trimming offers you!

TOUGH MEAT "TAIL" REMOVED BEFORE WEIGHING
(so this almost unchewable meat isn't counted in the weight and cost of your steak)

EXCESS BONE, GRISTLE AND FAT REMOVED BEFORE WEIGHING
(so you don't have to pay at steak prices for these waste parts)

SAFEWAY TRIMMED-BEFORE-WEIGHING T-BONE STEAK
...trimmed so you pay for only tender center portion

MONEY-SAVINGS OF 28¢ to $1.04 per typical 2-pound T-bone steak are secured by many housewives who purchase trimmed-before-weighing meats, the test-purchase survey reveals! In just a few weeks of meat-buying such savings can go a long way to cut down the high cost of living for your family. You are rightfully entitled to GET THESE SAVINGS . . . because every market should trim meats BEFORE WEIGHING. No longer do you need to buy T-bone steaks, for example, on somebody else's say-so. The steak photos printed here show you exactly what kind of trimming to look for. Take these photos to your market. Use them to check the next T-bone steak you buy BEFORE it is put on the scales!

Safeway believes all markets should retail meat this common-sense way—with excess bone, fat and waste-parts trimmed off before the meat is weighed. More and more good markets are doing it. Why don't you ask your market man to trim your next steak before he weighs it?

THE SAFEWAY trimmed-before-weighing beef T-bone steak has in it the kind of meat people want in steaks. NOT the tough meat "tail"—which isn't rightly part of a steak people expect to eat and enjoy! NOT the excess bone and gristle — which should be cut off and thrown away.

Most every good cook and good market man knows that steaks should be trimmed as Safeway does it...before weighing.

The savings cited here on T-bones are typical of savings you make on every cut and kind of meat that's trimmed as Safeway does it—before weighing. You save on rib roasts and chops, on leg of lamb and other cuts—when each cut is trimmed before weighing according to its special requirements. Wherever you buy, insist on pocketing for yourself the money-savings this better trimming method brings.

Safeway buys nothing less than the top government grades of beef . . . nothing less than the top grades of lamb, pork and veal. All Safeway meats are properly aged — brought to you at peak perfection.

Come try trimmed-before-weighing meats at Safeway. Note our special Two-Steak Offer printed at the right.

SAFEWAY'S OFFER: We will give you 2 T-bone steaks at no cost if ever you get from us a T-bone steak NOT trimmed before weighing! Just show the meat to the manager of the Safeway store where you bought it. We won't quibble or argue. We want you to have extra T-bones without cost if we fail to trim as we say!

Laughlin Asks U. S. For County Probe

James J. Laughlin asked the Justice Department yesterday to join his feud with Prince Georges County officials and investigate two of them with an eye to "criminal indictment."

In a letter to Assistant Attorney General Alex Campbell, the Washington criminal lawyer said his civil rights has been wilfully violated in a conspiracy by A. Gwynn Bowie, Prince Georges State's attorney, and F. Bowie Addison, foreman of the county grand jury that has been investigating gambling.

Bowie has issued a warrant for Laughlin's arrest on charges of contempt of court, in that Laughlin failed to answer a subpena.

Laughlin retaliated by filing suit for $208,500 damages against Bowie, charging wilful abuse of process and malicious prosecution.

Campbell would not comment on Laughlin's request that his office enter the controversy, nor would Bowie.

Laughlin also said "it is difficult for me to escape the conclusion that the trial judge, Charles C. Marbury, did not in some way or other participate in this conspiracy."

"If you see fit to order an investigation, I believe it would be well to inquire into his conduct of the matter," Laughlin continued in his letter.

Marbury declined to comment.

Elsewhere on the gambling front, in Baltimore, the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City filed its answers yesterday to complaints against the discontinuance of service to 18 subscribers in the Washington area.

These subscribers have petitioned the Maryland Public Service Commission for orders restraining the C. & P. and United States Attorney George Morris Fay from stopping service, allegedly used to violate District gambling statutes.

Senate Votes to Let CCC Buy Storage Bins, Barter Crops

By The Associated Press

The Senate yesterday approved by voice vote a bill giving the Commodity Credit Corporation authority to acquire a Nation-wide system of storage facilities for farm crops.

The bill now goes to the House. It provides also for bartering surplus United States wheat, cotton and other farm products for strategic materials from foreign nations.

The bartering, however, can only be carried on to the extent approved by the Munitions Board and for only such strategic materials as required by the board for stockpiling.

The bill was passed after four hours of debate during which the authority of the CCC to acquire storage facilities was restricted to:

1. Exclude cotton and tobacco storage and refrigerated cold storage facilities.

2. Require the CCC to determine that privately owned storage facilities within a given area are not adequate before going ahead to acquire new or establish facilities.

3. Require use of "usual and customary channels, facilities and arrangements of trade and commerce in the warehousing of commodities to the maximum extent practicable."

The storage facilities would be used for farm crops acquired either under price-supporting loans or purchased outright.

Brannan Won't Estimate Cost

largest farm organization." (He was referring to a talk made by Allan B. Kline, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, in New York last week.)

Kline, Brannan asserted, "now says that farm prices already are too high."

He also angrily replied to a statement by Senator Taft (R., Ohio) recently that the plan would cost six billion dollars a year.

Taft, he said, likened his program to the British Government's plan to hold retail prices down by paying Government subsidies to producers. "There is no similarity between our program and the British law," Brannan said.

"He might as well compare it to the cost of the Berlin airlift or a military campaign in China," he commented. "The British buy their food from the outside world. All the money our food costs goes to our own people."

Because the British subsidy plan costs two billion dollars a year Taft figured that the Brannan program would cost us six billion because we have three times as many population, Brannan said.

The primary idea of his program, Brannan said, is to give the farmer a fair return, not to keep food prices low. But by keeping food prices down, greater consumption would result, he said, and the farmer would benefit.

Critics who says his plan would cost three to ten billion dollars a year are "reckless." "All of them assume a severe depression and low farm income," he said. "I confess that I do not assume a depression. On the contrary, the whole proposal is designed to help avoid a depression by maintaining reasonable farm income.

Would Let Prices Find Levels

Brannan's plan would halt the present practice of Government buying of surplus perishable products, such as meats, dairy products, fruits and vegetables, for the purpose of keeping prices up to a certain level.

Instead it would let prices find their levels in the retail market place. If that price was below the guaranteed price, the Government would make up the difference.

No change would be made in the method of supporting storable products, such as cotton, wheat, corn, etc. The Government now makes non-recourse loans at the support level on such commodities in storage.

Rep. Poage (D., Tex.) attacked Brannan's plan because of its "bad psychological effect upon the farmers." Such direct payments Poage said, will "break down the fiber of the American people—the character of which we are so proud—as I think it has in the British people."

Instead, Poage suggested that same payments be made, but under some sort of a price insurance scheme, so the farmer wouldn't be "put on a dole."

"We have never insulted another large group of citizens by asking them to take their subsidy straight," Poage said. He said the Government paid industry a subsidy through tariffs, and labor a subsidy under a minimum wage law. "We subsidize newspapers, airlines, railroads," Poage said, but by mail rates and contracts.

Protection Claim Told

McLaughlin Ricker testified he had been shooting dice in the basement of Kadan's home two to four nights a week since early in October, when a taxi driver told him he could be admitted by giving the password "Q-126."

An unemployed former Hawaiian businessman from Lancaster, Pa., Ricker said he had lost $7500 from October to January 6.

On that date, he told the court, his wife came to 2730 Woodley pl. nw., in the early morning, and demanded $850 from Big Joe Scheve. She said she needed the money to pay bills. Scheve offered her $300, but she refused to budge during five hours of heated argument. During this time, the 100-pound Mrs. Ricker stood in front of the door to prevent the 200-plus-pound Scheve from leaving, Ricker said.

Scheve had been drinking, according to Ricker and John Garrahan, of 1314 16th st. nw., a friend who was present at the time, and the Government's second witness.

Finally Scheve put on his hat and coat, transferred a pistol from his coat to his trousers pocket, pushed Mrs. Ricker aside and started out the door, according to testimony. Ricker went to his wife's help, and was struck and floored with the pistol butt by Scheve, he said.

Scheve pulled the trigger several times while Ricker was on the floor, the court was told by Ricker and Garrahan but the gun did not fire.

Under cross examination by Ford, Ricker admitted he gambled frequently and borrowed gambling money from his wife, who in turn he said, borrowed it from her mother.

Mrs. Ricker was not present.

In answer to Ford's questioning, Ricker admitted he lost almost $1000 to bookmakers from October to January. One of the bookmakers was named "Sox," whose headquarters was in the vicinity of R and 14th sts. nw., Ricker said, and the others were in Laurel and Queens Chapel, Md.

The two Scheves and Rosen were described by Ricker as "stickmen and changemen," the persons who raked in the dice and who paid off and collected bets. The dice table was a converted billiard table in the Kadan basement. Kadan, according to Ricker, was the person who admitted craps players to the house.

The last witness before adjournment was Mrs. Emma Felstaub, manager of a rooming house at 1314 16th st. nw., where Ricker lived at one time.

To Give Hospital Check

The South Arlington Lions Club will present a check for $1400 to John Anderson, Arlington Hospital administrator, at 12:30 p. m. at the Little Tea House, 1301 S. Arlington Ridge rd.

The money, raised at a show sponsored by the club on March 26, will aid the hospital's drive for $130,000.

Case Proposes Compromise On Tidelands

A compromise in the tidelands dispute was proposed yesterday by Rep. Case (R-S.D.)

Case said he is introducing legislation which would establish a national reserve of the submerged lands from one mile offshore to the end of Unitel States jurisdiction.

At present both the Federal Government and the States claim title to offshore submerged lands.

Case said in a statement that under his bill proceeds from the mineral recoveries from the proposed national reserves would be divided among school districts of the country

Case said that seacoast States where oil is being pumped from wells in the harbors and offshore "have been badly upset" by a Supreme Court ruling that the Federal Government has paramount rights in the tidelands.

His bill, he said, gives to the States all mineral rights within one mile offshore from low tide mark. It also guarantees State titles to land under inland waters.

Norfolk Line Plans to Start Service May 5

Passenger and freight service between Washington and Old Point Comfort and Norfolk will be resumed by the steamer District of Columbia on the night of May 5, Robert E. Dunn, president of the Baltimore Steam Packet Co. said yesterday.

The company, also known as the Old Bay Line, purchased the steamer after an October 31 collision put it out of service, and it has been rebuilt in Baltimore.

Trips from Washington will be made every other night, return trips being scheduled for alternate nights.

A city ticket office will be opened at 1422 H st. nw. by May 2, Dunn said. The passenger rate is $4.67, plus tax. Passenger cars will be carried for $5, plus tax.

Court Opens Way for Retrial In D.C. Slaying

The Court of Appeals here was ordered by the Supreme Court yesterday to give its reason for refusing a new trial in a murder case involving a penknife found in the pocket of the victim after the trial.

In a 5-to-4 decision, the minority declared the high court itself should have ordered a new trial for Baxter Griffin, a one-time bulldozer operator.

Griffin, then 42, was convicted here in February, 1947, of killing Lee Hunter, 23, in an argument growing out of a card game in Hunter's home, 1718 9th st. nw. Griffin contended he shot Hunter in self defense. But Griffin admitted he saw nothing in Hunter's hand when he claimed Hunter came threateningly toward him.

Later, however, it turned out that a morgue attendant had found an open penknife in Hunter's pocket. John W. Holzworth, then Griffin's attorney, charged the United States attorney's office deliberately suppressed the evidence at the trial.

After a series of appeals, Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson last July 8 granted a stay of execution, the night before Griffin's scheduled execution and after he had eaten his special "last supper."

In yesterday's majority opinion, Justice Felix Frankfurter spoke for himself and Justices Hugo L. Black, Stanley F. Reed, Robert H. Jackson and Harold H. Burton.

Frankfurter said that the Appeals Court, in dismissing a request for a new trial on the basis of the new evidence, "evidently thought that the ground for dismissing the appeal was too clear to require explication." He called this unfortunate and said the court should consider directly the question of admissability of evidence in the case of the knife.

Frankfurter said that if the court had declared the evidence was not admissable, that would have ended the case. He discussed at length rules of evidence in the District.

The majority opinion "purposely" withheld an opinion on the admissability of the knife as evidence, declaring that the Court of Appeals should decide which rule of evidence should prevail in the District.

Frankfurter cited the fact that in the past 10 years the Supreme Court had in only one other case agreed to review a local murder conviction and he attached a table of these murder appeal cases to his opinion. Hence, he said, it is necessary to let the Appeals Court pass on the question.

The minority opinion by Justice Frank Murphy and joined by Chief Justice Vinson and Justices William O. Douglas and Wiley Rutledge, said Frankfurter's figures on previous appeals are not conclusive.

Said Murphy, quoting:

"Nothing is so fallacious as facts, except figures."

Murphy said it "is clear this evidence might change the jury's verdict."

At the time the Supreme Court heard the arguments on appeal, the much disputed knife itself was passed among the justices.

Griffin was a member of Local 77 of the Operating Engineers Union (AFL) and members of the union contributed to the cost of his trial and appeal.

President J. P. Shields of the local said yesterday that "of course, we'll continue to support him to see that justice is done in the case."

On the appeal Griffin was represented by Attorney Francis J. Kelly.

The question of whether Griffin eventually gets a new trial now will have to await a new Appeals Court ruling.

Maryland Doctors Back Insurance Plan

Baltimore, April 25 (AP).—A medical insurance program covering some doctor bills at home, office or hospital, was approved today by the Medical and Chirugical Faculty of Maryland.

The faculty, top policy-making body for the State's physicians, opened a three-day gathering to commemorate the organization's 50th anniversary.

Under the so-called Blue Shield plan drafted by a committee of physicians, participants would be divided by income groups.

For heads of families earning less than $3500 annually or single persons earning less than $3000, the insurance would pay the total doctor bill. For those in higher income brackets, it would cover that part of the bill set up in a special fee schedule, with the patient making up the difference.

Participants would be able to take out either a policy covering only the doctor bill in the hospital, or a more extensive policy taking in home and office visits as well. Estimated premium rates for hospital treatment only are $4 a month and for extended coverage $6.50.

For individuals the estimated rates would run from $1.50 to $4 a month.

A non-profit corporation, the Maryland Medica' Service, Inc., has been set up. Most of the administrative duties of Blue Shield would be assumed by Maryland Hospital Service, Inc., operators of the Blue Cross.

Health Bill Is Introduced

own state agency, and to divide the state into local areas. The state plan must meet general requirements in the bill.

5. At the Federal level, administration is under a five-man board, assisted by an advisory council of lay and professional people. Three of the board members would be appointed by the President, subject to Senate ratification. One would have to be a doctor. The other two members would be the United States Surgeon General and the Social Security Commissioner.

Under the bill, the national health insurance program would not go into effect until July 1, 1951.

Senator James Murray (D., Mont.) said his Senate Health subcommittee will meet next Wednesday to schedule hearings on the measure. The hearings — which are expected to be stormy — may last six weeks. Murray joined those who said action before next year is doubtful unless a special session is called this fall.

At their press conference sponsors said they believed the only real controversy would be over the prepaid health insurance plan. Many other sections of the measure have bipartisan support and some are similar to laws already in effect.

Foes of the plan, who include Republicans, many Southern Democrats, and the American Medical Association call it socialized medicine.

The Democrats backing the President's measure, however, insisted that substitute measures already introduced by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) and others actually are "medical dole" propositions which will lead to state medicine.

National health insurance as outlined in their bill, the sponsors insisted, "is no more socialized than a mutual fire insurance company."

Senators sponsoring the bill beside Thomas and Murray are: Robert Wagner (N. Y.), Claude Pepper (Fla.), Dennis Chavez, Glenn Taylor (Idaho), J. Howard McGrath (R. I.), and Hubert Humphrey (Minn.).

Besides the insurance plan the bill provides for:

1. Federal grants to States for existing schools of medicine, dentistry, nursing public health and sanitary engineering.

2. Federal aid for expansion of such schools and construction of new ones.

3. Scholarships for students at such schools.

4. Broad authority for the United States Surgeon General to carry out research in such fields as poliomyelitis, diabetes, arthritis and rheumatism, multiple sclerosis, cerebral palsy and epilepsy.

5. A big increase in Federal aid to States for hospital construction.

6. A program of grants and loans designed to encourage doctors, nurses, dentists and other trained personnel to practice in rural or other shortage areas, and for the construction of clinics and other facilities in such areas.

7. A five-year program of Federal aid to farmers' experimental health cooperatives.

8. An increase in grants for expansion of State and local public health services.

9. A new program of Federal grants for research projects "relating to the development of children and the community aspects of child life."

Senate Gets Bill For Treatment of Mental Patients

A bill for treating in St. Elizabeths Hospital persons found on Federal reservations in nearby Maryland and Virginia was sent to the Senate floor yesterday with backing of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Temporary committment of individuals could be ordered by U. S. Commissioners if testimony of two persons, and certificates or testimony of two physicians, indicates the individuals to be of unsound mind.

King Is Wary Of Scott Plan

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King indicated yesterday that he may oppose charging repeater drunks under a law permitting a straight jail term of a year in some cases.

He said he was awaiting a call from Judge Armond W. Scott of Municipal Court.

Last week, the judge said that a policy of leniency here had failed and he might suggest charging repeaters as second or third offenders.

The maximum under the first-offender statute, used universally here, is a 30-day term and a $100 fine, while under "repeater" laws, a jail term of a year is allowed.

King said that if defendants are charged as repeaters they are entitled to a jury trial and that experience has proved that the procedure clutters up the court calendar.

He said it was possible to impose, under the first-offender law, a straight 30-day term and an additional year in jail in case of failure to pay an added fine of $100.

"Very few of the drunks down here have $100," King said. "Therefore, using the method I suggest will give the desired result without slowing down the court."

The Bob Lairds have a Boom-Town Baby!
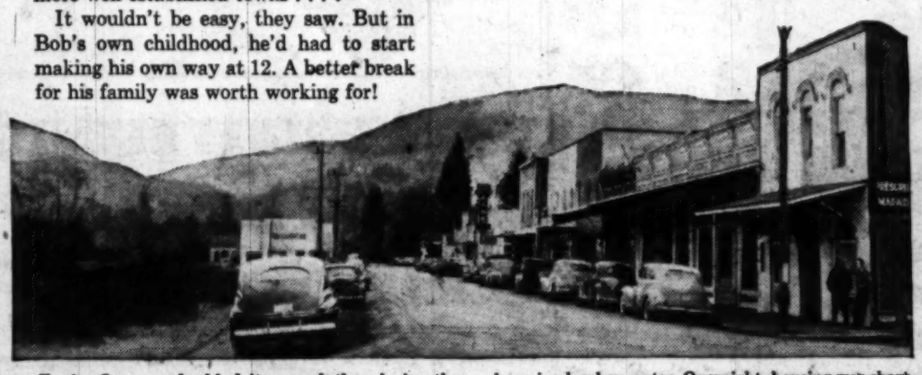
—But they're winning for their family what every child needs...

AMERICAN FAMILY CLOSE-UP
As they go, so goes the nation!
Though 10½-lb. Stuart arrived at an overcrowded house in a crowded town, he was a welcome addition to the family!

Problem enough . . . bringing up a family in today's world. But when Bob and Florence Laird brought little Stuart home to Drain, Oregon, they faced still another problem. The Lairds live in a town that's having "growing pains" of its own! How were they to give their youngsters the advantages that children get in more well-established towns . . . ?

It wouldn't be easy, they saw. But in Bob's own childhood, he'd had to start making his own way at 12. A better break for his family was worth working for!



Drain, Oregon, doubled its population during the war! From a "wide place in the road" it became a booming lumber center. Overnight, housing was short, schools overcrowded; and no play center for children.

Heading production for a local lumber company, Bob Laird is a busy man. Yet he's pitched in on town affairs, too. He's clerk of the school board, treasurer of a drive for a recreation center, active in scouting and church work—all things that help make Drain a town their children will be proud of!

Kathie and Eddie help their parents beat "boom town" prices! They tend family cow, chickens. The Lairds grow vegetables, too. Florence does the baking, feeds 5 for $100 a month. Parties are "potluck."

Even a crowded house has advantages! The young Lairds like being in on all the family affairs. But Bob plans a bigger house for the future. "To feel secure, every child needs a home that can be a center of fun for family and friends," the Lairds believe. The life insurance coverage Bob gets for $50.00 a month has been so well planned by his agent that it provides both protection for his family and educational funds for his children.

And "when we are through paying the bills for the new baby," says Bob, "I'm going to get my agent's advice about more life insurance." Meanwhile Stuart, like his brother and sister, is growing up in the kind of happy home that hard work and good planning provide!

Big plans for these kids! "I didn't get to college," Bob says, "but they're not going to miss out, too!"

THE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES AND THEIR AGENTS

The Lairds, like other American families, prove to all of us that the only way we really solve our problems is by our own efforts!

These stories of real families much like yours also show how much more success, how much more happiness is possible when you have peace of mind . . . the sort of peace of mind that comes from wise management of money now, and from knowing that future security has been adequately provided for.

The Life Insurance Companies and their Agents bring you these American family close-ups because what this country amounts to depends upon what happens to its homes!

3d Brother Accused In 'Hearts' Deaths

Dover, Del., April 25 (AP).—Fifteen-year-old Robert Brennan, held in two "lonely hearts" killings, was implicated in a third shooting today, Col. Herbert E. Barnes of the Delaware State Police reported.

Dether

The accusation came in a statement by George Brennan, 17-year-old Army flier, and older brother of Robert.

Barnes said that George in a new statement related that Robert shot Mrs. Bessie Watkins, a neighbor of the Brennans, two years ago. The bullet lodged in her neck and is still there, he said.

Meanwhile, George became the fourth Brennan to be held for the July term of court in connection with the shotgun slaying of Wade N. Wooldridge, who met Mrs. Inez Brennan, mother of the boys, through "lonely hearts" correspondence, and was slain for his money, Barnes said.

He reported that statements by Mrs. Brennan, Robert and George and their half-brother Raymond, 23, said that Robert fired the fatal bullet on orders from his mother, a plump 44-year-old brunette.

The police official said the four also have signed statements admitting the fatal shooting of Hugo Schulz, 61, Concord, N. J., another man Mrs. Brennan met through the "lonely hearts" letters.

Meanwhile, Barnes announced that George A. Dether, 74, of Damascus, Va., father of George and Robert, will come to Dover Tuesday to tell police "some very important things."

Psychiatry Called Cause Of Anxiety

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

The present popularity of psychiatry is "actually creating anxiety," one of the Nation's leading psychiatrists protested yesterday.

Dr. C. Charles Burlingame, psychiatrist-in-chief of the Institute of Living, Hartford, Conn., attacked the publicity trend in his annual report to the 127-year-old institute's board of directors.

Hordes of people, said Dr. Burlingame, are given the impression they need the services of psychiatrists. Then they are advised that the shortage of psychiatrists makes it impossible for them to get psychiatric help.

In the same vein, he continued, persons are being warned that one out of 20 to 25 of them will wind up in a mental hospital. Then they are given a terrifying picture of the horrible conditions in mental hospitals.

Two-Edged Sword

Calling publicity a "two-edged sword," Dr. Burlingame said that overpopularity and overemphasis are inevitably followed by loss of public confidence and respect.

"A campaign of ridicule about mental disorders," he said, in reference to cartoons and jokes about the profession, "does not indicate a growing public confidence in psychiatry any more than a campaign of jokes about cancer or tuberculosis would show public confidence in those branches of medicine.

"The ridicule being aimed at psychiatry is only one indication of the need for reeducating the public about psychiatry as an enduring, scientific branch of medicine."

Decries Horror Stories

The "horror" stories of mental institution care gives the public the erroneous idea that nothing good or decent has been done in any public psychiatric institution for the past 50 years, Dr. Burlingame said.

"This is not only untrue, it is unfair to the friends and relatives of psychiatric patients now in those institutions, and it is unfair to the fine persons who literally have devoted their lives to caring for these patients," he asserted.

He decried the tendency to compare conditions in State mental hospitals with those of private institutions charging up to $200 a week as "one means of putting the State institutions in the worst possible light."

"There is not the slightest chance," stated Dr. Burlingame, "that organized society will in the reasonable future appropriate $100 to $200 a week for the care of a single patient, regardless of what his illness may be, nor is there any sense of fair play in implying that care at that cost is what every psychiatric patient needs."

In Alexandria

Zone, Code Hearing Is Postponed

A hearing on charges against Samuel T. Weaver of violating the Alexandria zoning ordinance and building code was continued yesterday to Monday by the Alexandria Civil and Police Court.

Weaver, 40-year-old real estate salesman, was taken into court by his Beverley Hills neighbors who claimed he (1) closed in a screened porch without a building permit, (2) built a small tool shed in his backyard without a permit and (3) used his one-family house as a two-family dwelling in violation of the zoning laws. He lives at 3212 Old Dominion blvd.

In court yesterday, Weaver said an employe in the building inspector's office told him last fall he didn't believe a permit was needed for the tiny tool shed.

Judge James R. Duncan postponed the hearing on the alleged zoning violation so another witness could be present. He postponed disposition of the other charges so Building Inspector A. R. Lash and police can first inspect the property.

Lynching Bill Launched by Senate Unit

By the United Press

The first racial rights bill of the current session of Congress was started down a rocky road in the Senate yesterday.

By a vote of 4 to 1, a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee approved a measure that would let the Federal Government punish local law officials if they failed to prevent lynchings.

The bill is one of the cardinal points in President Truman's controversial civil rights program which touched off the Dixie Democratic revolt against the Administration last year.

Eastland Dissents

The subcommittee is headed by Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.). The dissenting vote was cast by Senator James O. Eastland (D., Miss.).

Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) said he hopes fo rfull committee approval next Mondty. Senate Democratic Whip Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.) refused to venture a guess as to when it will reach the floor until the full committee acts.

The bill would subject to Federal prosecution any State or local officer failing to take all reasonable steps to protect lynch victims. Convictions would carry maximum penalties of $5000 in fines and five years in prison.

10 Years, $10,000 Fine

If the Federal Government established a conspiracy between a lynching mob and an officer, those participating would be subject to heavier penalties ranging up to 20 years in prison and $10,000 fines.

The measure also provides for civil damage actions by lynch victims who survive, or their relatives, against persons failing or refusing to prevent lynch mob action. This is a substitute for a clause which would have permitted suits against local governments.

Sen. Margaret Smith Sets Bill Hearings

Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) yesterday set hearings for 10 a. m. Thursday on three District bills before her Senate District Subcommittee on Health, Education and Recreation.

The bills would: (1) strengthen present laws for removal of weeds in the District, (2) fix a six-day week for barbers here and (3) authorize issuance of a District license as an osteopath to Maria G. Waksmundzka, now a resident of Miami, Fla.

4 Veterans' Groups Favor Housing Bill

With prospects for House acceptance of the multi-billion-dollar low-cost public housing and slum clearance bill steadily growing brighter, representatives of four veterans' organizations yesterday added their approval.

Spokesmen for the Jewish War Veterans, the American Veterans Committee, the Disabled American Veterans and the Paralyzed Veterans of America appear before the House Committee on Banking and Currency. The committee this week is continuing its hearings into the Administration program which passed the Senate last week by a 57-to-13 vote.

The veterans' group asked the committee to amend the legislation to drop the five-year limitation on preferential treatment for veterans.

Amended From Floor

The Senate lifted the limitation for veterans of both World War I and World War II by amendment from the floor.

Bernard C. Shufelt, president of the Paralyzed Veterans of America, asked Congress to make special provision for paralyzed veterans in the construction of houses with wide doors, low ramps, and specially designed bathrooms.

Bernard Weitzer, National legislative representative of the Jewish War Veterans, indorsed slum clearance and low-rent public housing, and also asked Congress to provide incentives for the building of low rent housing for families whose incomes range from $40 to $60 a week.

Says It's a "Sorry Record"

Joseph A. Clorety jr., national vice chairman of the American Veterans Committee, told the committee:

"Action must come now at this session of Congress, without further delay and compromise. It is a sorry record to look back on the record of the last four years and see how housing legislation has been kicked around."

The Disabled American Veterans, represented by Charles E. Foster, stressed the need for Government encouragement of private enterprise in the building of houses for families of modest incomes.

Representative Wolcott (R., Mich.), one of the leading opponents of public housing, virtually threw in the sponge yesterday.

Of the Senate-passed slum clearance, public housing measure, he said:

"It still looks like socialism to me. But the 57-13 vote by which the Senate approved the bill Thursday is a little too much to combat. I don't know that we are going to try to stop it."

Sparkman Hails It

Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.), who successfully steered the bipartisan measure through the Senate, told the Southern United States Savings and Loan League yesterday that decent housing is "a bulwark of democracy."

"Bad housing," he said, "constitutes a threat to democratic ideals and institutions. People living in crowded slums and dilapidated country shacks, with their children constantly exposed to disease and unsavory surroundings, are more susceptible to foreign ideologies than those who are adequately housed."

Painter Dies In Fall When Rope Loosens

A painter was killed instantly yesterday, and another painter narrowly escaped falling to his death, when a scaffold loosened.

Robert Stanley Frye was killed when he fell about 60 feet to the sidewalk in front of an apartment house at 1474 Columbia rd. nw. Police could not immediately determine his address but said he lived somewhere on F st. ne.

His fellow workman, Clark Pope, 30, of 1009 4th st. ne., managed to hang onto a hook at the end of the staging until he was rescued by other painters with a ladder.

The scaffold was lowered about 3 feet from the roof of the 5-story building and Pope was standing at one end, when Frye, apparently jumped from the roof to the other end of the scaffold, according to police.

The short jump jolted the scaffold and the end of it swung loose. Frye fell to the sidewalk. Pope slid the 20-foot length of the scaffold as it swung loose, and managed to hang on to a hook at the end of the dangling end until his rescue.

Repairing Jail

Inmates Face Cell Shortage In Arlington

Beginning today, Arlington Sheriff J. Elwood Clements will have nearly 30 prisoners on his hands—and less than half a jail to put them in.

A wrecking company is scheduled this morning to begin demolishing a portion of the county's venerable jail to make room for a new Arlington Courthouse wing.

Clements yesterday moved 10 of his charges to the Fairfax County Jail, where they will stay until the new Arlington Jail is completed on the top floor of the new wing.

The sheriff estimated he can keep a half dozen inmates in the unrazed portion of the local jail leaving some room for possible new arrivals.

Alexandria said flatly its city jail was overcrowded with no room for the Arlington evictees.

But Clements yesterday said he thought the Fauquier County Jail at Leesburg might be able to take five or six Arlington prisoners, with the rest going to the Prince Williams County Jail in Manassas.

Prisoners will have to be transported between both cities and the Arlington courts in a newly contrived Arlington "paddy wagon"—a converted panel delivery truck.

Woman, Brooding Over Spouse, Ends Life

A 52-year-old Beltsville (Md.) woman, who believed she had "nothing left to live for" following the death of her husband last November, yesterday was found drowned in her bathtub.

The woman, Mrs. Edna M. Jones, was pronounced a suicide by Dr. John T. Maloney, a Prince Georges County medical examiner. Maloney said death was caused by "asphyxiation by drowning."

He said the woman had been dead for about two weeks.

Mrs. Jones, who lived alone in a modest bungalow on Montgomery rd., Beltsville, left two notes. In one she wrote: "I have nothing left to live for," and asked that her body be buried in Callahan, Fla., next to that of her husband, Robert Preston Jones, former Western Union operator.

Another note, in the form of a will, left $3 to a sister, Mrs. William A. Becker of 6240 Simpson ave., North Hollywood, Calif. Declaring that the sister was "disowned," the note continued: "It is my wish that what is left will go to my nurse (Mrs. F. M. Reed, 1310 Eutaw pl., Baltimore) . . . my constant companion during my darkest hours . . ."

Police said the woman had cut her throat in a suicide attempt last January and had been treated in a Baltimore hospital.

The body was discovered in the half-filled bathtub by Waldo Burnside, Mrs. Jones' attorney, and police, who had been called by neighbors, concerned at not seeing Mrs. Jones for two weeks.

All the beds in the bungalow were carefully made, and the house was in order. A batch of personal papers was stored in a suitcase in the bedroom.

AWARDED THE FASHION ACADEMY GOLD MEDAL AS THE "FASHION CAR OF THE YEAR"

"I'm so proud of my floors!"
says Mrs. E. H. Smith

"It was really an experience to see how Cellowax made my floors shine. The minute I saw the demonstration, I knew it was the wax I'd been looking for. I've liked using it ever since because it holds up. It's more lasting. One waxing lasts a good three weeks now. Cellowax gloss is hard. With some waxes you have to use two coats. You don't have to use two coats with Cellowax. It has a brighter shine, too. And my, how easy it is to use! I'm so proud of my floors now, I've told all my friends about Cellowax."

It's true! New high-Gloss CELLOWAX makes floors sparkle as if wrapped in cellophane. And so easily—just pour a beautiful floor. Try a can and see how different it is from your old wax. How much higher gloss Cellowax gives — and how much longer lasting. If you're not delighted and excited over the new glamour of your floors, Cellowax guarantees return of full purchase price!

Initial Step Is Taken To Remodel Capitol

Workmen moved into the Capitol grounds yesterday to prepare for remodeling the House and Senate Chambers beginning July 1.

They launched the project by starting a temporary two-story office building for the Consolidated Engineering Co., Inc., of Baltimore which will do the remodeling job.

Roofs over both chambers are to be replaced, steel framework supporting the present roofs will be removed, and the chambers remodeled throughout. The roofs will be replaced this year, and the project completed in the last half of next year.

Officials made clear that the work is to be done in a way that will keep the two chambers roofed at all times. A temporary roof will be built over the chambers under the present roofs while the work of putting in the permanent roofs goes on.

'Santa' Accused

Harry Heim Faces State Tax Charge

Harry H. Heim, sr., Savage, Md. Christmas tree ornament manufacturer who developed an early-American style village there and called it Santa Heim, yesterday faced a charge of failing to pay his State income tax.

A presentment was returned by the Baltimore grand jury on Friday against Heim, but the charge was not made public until Heim posted $1000 bail with the clerk of the Criminal Court yesterday.

Although the presentment identified Heim as a resident of Baltimore at the time he should have filed his State return last April, his address on court papers was: "Santa Heim, Santa Novelties, Inc., Savage, Howard County."

The presentment alleged that although he had an income of $31,200 for the year 1947, Heim filed no return and failed to pay the taxes due. The amount of taxes allegedly due was not given.

Witnesses in the case are William Walters, described as an official of Heim's business enterprise, and three officials of the State comptroller's office, Martin J. Carey, Joseph N. Shriver and Evert L. Stamper.

Heim took many of the dilapidated houses in the quiet little Howard County village, renovated them, and announced that he intended to restore the community as an early American village, accentuating a year-'round Christmas motif.

He sold many of the homes at prices below their current real estate value, supplied buses to transport workers from Baltimore, and announced his plan to bring many improvements to the little town.

Heim's firm also operates a branch in California. He is called one of the largest producers of hand-painted Christmas bulbs in the country.

The ornament manufacturer could not be reached for comment last night.

Fairfax Tax Debate Ends In Stalemate

A three-hour debate on raising the Fairfax County tax rate 10 cents to build one school highlighted yesterday's public hearing on the county's proposed $3,304,795.62 budget for 1949-50.

The board of supervisors adjourned, however, without taking action. By law, it must adopt the budget before midnight Saturday. The new, fiscal year begins July 1.

If the supervisors adopt the budget as it was advertised, the tax rate on real estate and personal property will be increased from $3.19 per $100 assessed value to $3.29.

All the increased revenue—about $50,000, according to officials—will go to the school board which has said it will be used for an emergency school unit.

Support for the tax boost yesterday came from the County School Emergency Committee, County Federation of Citizens Atssociations, various Parent-Teacher Associations and a number of individuals.

It was opposed by the County Taxpayers Advisory Association which also opposed last year's 12-cent tax boost. Association President Edward T. Gibbons said without the tax boost the schools would receive $584,000 more than last year. The $50,000 could be squeezed from this sum, he said.

Hubert Gerken, chairman of the School Emergency Committee, quoted figures to show the need of the rate increase for schools. There are now 1710 children in temporary classrooms and 200 on half-day shifts, he said. He said the normal rate of increase in the county school system is 1000 a year, and 500 more will be added next year when the affect of the new eighth grade is felt.

The tax increase will provide only stop-gap aid, Gerken said. He urged county officials to press for State aid.

The proposed budget is $3,127,791 less than last year's. But last year's budget contained nearly four million dollarss in anticipated loans from the State Literary Fund which were not received.

Jury Finds Parolee Guilty In Culpeper Farmer Slaying

Culpeper, Va., April 25 (AP).—A Culpeper county Circuit Court jury tonight found Thomas Brown, 31-year-old parolee, guilty of first degree murder in the pistol slaying of tenant farmer James G. Brown.

It fixed his punishment at life imprisonment. Judge Burnett Miller, however, postponed imposition of sentence.

The jury of 12 men deliberated only 44 minutes after receiving the case at 8:35 p. m. The defendant had pleaded innocent to the murder charge.

Brown also has been indicted for rape of the farmer's wife, Elsie, 23. No date has been set for his trial on that charge.

The defendant took the stand today to deny that he was the man who on March 7 shot the farmer as the man awakened at his home.

Brown said he went to a movie on the night of the shooting and later went riding in a car with some friends from Fredericksburg. He said he could not recall their names.

Brown also denied he owned the gun the State charges was used to kill the farmer.

Mrs. James G. Brown, wife of the slain man, took the stand to describe events on the night of the shooting.

She said her husband arose to turn on a light and that when he did so he was shot by an intruder who apparently was standing on the porch.

She said the intruder ordered her to come out of the house or be shot. She obeyed, she said, and that the man subsequently attacked her.

Thomas Brown was arrested the day after the shooting after police launched a search for him for questioning.

Following his arrest, police described him as a parolee from the Federal penitentiary in Atlanta, where he had served three years of a 20-year sentence for rape imposed by an Army Court Martial in England.

Lane Sets Dates For House, Garden Days in Maryland

Annapolis, Md., April 25 (AP).—Governor Lane today issued a proclamation recognizing April 29-May 9 as the official dates of the twelfth annual Maryland house and garden pilgrimage.

Sponsored by the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland, the pilgrimage is a series of tours to scenes of historic interest throughout the State.

Beginning Friday, 17 tours will cover the counties of Montgomery, Howard, St. Marys, Charles, Talbot, Queen Annes, Harford, Kent, Cecil, Carrol, Baltimore and Anne Arundel.

Witness Illness Delays Rape Trial in Virginia

Martinsville, Va., April 25 (AP).—The trial of Booker T. Millner, one of seven men under indictment for rape, was postponed today by agreement of counsel because of the illness of a witness.

Millner is the third of seven men charged with rape of Mrs. Ruby Stroud Floyd here January 8 to go on trial. Two of the seven were tried last week, found guilty and were sentenced to death. They were Joe Henry Hampton and Frank Hairston, jr.

Nazi Trial Prosecutor Rejects Polish Medal

THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE
SO Plain Old Pearson's hereby apply for membership in the New York Stock Exchange and with tongue in cheek, submits seven outstanding qualifications:
1 We're the world's only Liquor Stock Exchange, which ought to make us eligible for something!
2 We have a "Big Board" listing all the famous brands we stock, giving PAR, BID and SELLING prices, just as you do—and our "stocks" are fully well known as yours.
3 We change Bid and Selling prices three times a day, at 10 a. m., 2 p. m., and 6 p. m., based on the findings of our Five Mysterious Men. (Is that how you work too?)
4 We go you one better, because our customers always profit, through our SELLING price being so much lower—and we let 'em park for free on our huge lot!
5 We do enough daily volume of trading to qualify because at the end of the day our "floor" looks exactly like yours!
6 We don't have real "seats" anymore than you do—but our customers can sit on the piles of cases in the aisles!
7 We've really got a better system than yours, because when we have a "crash" our customers save money.
There is only one thing, however, if membership costs anything, we don't want it! Plain Old Pearson's sells so much for so little that we can't go throwing money around—except to our customers! On second thought maybe YOU'D better join OUR Exchange—it's a grand institution!

D. C. Timber

The voteless District of Columbia League of Women Voters has added to its numerous community services a slate of citizens who would be well qualified for appointment to the Board of Commissioners. Of course, the league is not committed to any one of the eight citizens it has singled out for mention to the President. It is strictly nonpartisan. Instead of supporting or opposing candidates for office, the league encourages political responsibility by spreading accurate information about government and by urging citizens to participate in governmental activity. In this instance, however, the league has assumed the obligation of naming names as a means of indicating that the community has able men and women who, while not actively seeking the commissionership, could doubtless be drafted for it.

This is a commendable example to other civic groups. Some of our civic organizations have a tendency to carry their aloofness from politics to the point of neglecting basic community interests. The League of Women Voters has demonstrated that the great public interest in the forthcoming appointment of a Commissioner can be served without danger of becoming involved in any partisanship. For the only partisanship its list reflects is partisanship for good government. If other civic groups would submit lists of good timber for the commissionership, there would begin to emerge some indication as to the will of the community. Certainly that would be of substantial aid to the President in making this nomination, and it could easily mean the difference between a mediocre and a first-class choice.

Duty Of An Embassy

An inordinate fuss has been made over the charge, made by a former Polish military attache, that the Polish Embassy here is a "nest of spies." All embassies, including our own in foreign countries, are in the business of getting information. The United States keeps military attaches in foreign capitals for the purpose, among others, of sending military data back to Washington. If our own embassies are worth the cost of maintaining them, they are not content with official hand-outs or with material that appears in the newspapers. A good embassy has its own informants, under an unwritten code as old as diplomacy itself. The Soviet military attache in Canada violated this code in clumsy fashion, as the Gouzenko case showed; but sometimes it is an exercise in semantics to know whether official information-gathering is "spying" or diplomacy.

Here in Washington a foreign embassy can waste a good many precious dollars by using paid informants. There is no need to go in for melodramatic spying. Our military appropriations are matters of public record and public debate. Our strategic policy is often argued out in public, as the present controversy over the Navy's supercarrier makes clear. In other countries the search for this kind of material would require the employment of scores of agents. Here it is freely available, and properly so, for anyone who wants to buy the printed records of congressional committee hearings. A conscientious diplomat here can have little trouble in getting information. His real difficulty is, first, in selecting intelligently from the mass of information that pours in upon him day by day, and, second, in appraising it accurately for his government at home.

The United States should be less concerned about the snippets of illicit information sent by code to eastern Europe than about the appalling inaccuracy of so much diplomatic reporting from Washington. There is some evidence that the Soviet Embassy, for example, chooses to depend on the distortions of the Tass News Agency or the misinformation peddled by minor American Communists and fellow travelers. The great danger in our relations with the Soviet Union, as General Marshall used to point out, is that our peaceful purposes, our strength and our determination are not communicated to the minds of the suspicious men in the Kremlin. Why should we not encourage the eastern European diplomats here to attend the coming public hearings on the North Atlantic Treaty? Perhaps they will learn for themselves, and report to their governments, that the treaty will be approved overwhelmingly, just as the Marshall Plan was a year ago. Why not encourage them to get on a train or a bus occasionally for the Pacific Coast or the Middle West from time to time, so that they can feel the pulse-beat of the American people? What have we to hide? Far from cutting off the contacts of the eastern European diplomats or from branding their embassies as "nests of spies," we should be doing everything possible to see that they get accurate information and evaluate it truthfully.

Task For The House

The House of Representatives is to begin work today on its hardest task of this session. Its problem is not whether to vote repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act; even the sponsors of that law now seem to agree that it should be modified in some respects. The troublesome issue is what shall be enacted in place of the T-H law. On this there is no agreement and no satisfactory bill before the House.

President Truman's bill, which bears the name of Representative Lesinski, satisfies only the partisans of organized labor. And they insist that the labor practices of employers shall be regulated but not the practices of unions. This position is so utterly at variance with the American concept of fair play and with reasonable protection of the public interest that it is not likely to prevail. And even if it should prevail this year or next, a subsequent Congress would have to correct the mistake, as the Eighty-first Congress is now attempting to correct the mistakes of the Eightieth.

It is tragic that the Labor Committee did not present the House with a bill that would correct the excesses of the T-H law without reverting to the abuses of the outmoded Wagner Act. As the Lesinski bill stands, its chief virtue is that it would continue the National Labor Relations Board as a five-member agency and abolish the schism resulting from the divorce of the general counsel from the board. If the House decides to go forward with this bill, we can see no alternative to the addition of numerous amendments.

One amendment ought to retain the present independent status of the United States Conciliation Service. Experience has shown that the good offices of the Government in settling labor-management disputes can be far more effective if the peacemakers are outside the Labor Department. A second amendment ought to provide suitable means of protecting the public interest against strikes that threaten to cripple the national economy. Mr. Truman's dubious claim that he has reserve powers as President to deal with emergencies of this kind ought to make labor as well as employers eager to have on the statute books a precise definition of the powers that may be exercised for this purpose. There is wide recognition of the need for some means of preventing one faction from throttling the Nation to enforce its demands. But it ought to be an orderly exercise of power that everyone would understand, not a series of grandstand plays by the Executive that would be a constant menace to the rights of both workers and employers.

As a minimum, the bill should also include protection of the right to organize and to choose bargaining agents free from coercion by either employers or unions. It should recognize unfair labor practices on the part of unions as well as employers, and both should be required to bargain in good faith. Some means of permitting unions to collect fees from "free riders" should be authorized without allowing them arbitrarily to deprive any man of a livelihood or force unwilling men and women to join their organization. Certainly some accounting from unions to their members should be required, and provision ought to be made to safeguard health and welfare funds that are being set up in increasing numbers.

Merely to list a few minimal suggestions is to indicate how utterly inadequate the Lesinski bill is. We suspect that a large majority of the members of the House know in their hearts that the enactment of this measure without extensive amendment would be a colossal blunder. Of course, they also appreciate the disadvantages of trying to write a complicated bill of this kind on the floor. The best hope of the conscientious members seems to be that if they write extensive amendments into the Lesinski bill, they may force the Senate Labor Committee to reconsider the whole subject in order to avoid sending an unworkable patchwork to the President.

Jobs and Wages

Employment figures not only reflect changes in economic activity, they provide a basis for forecasting business trends. That is why business analysts are paying such close attention to the employment estimates currently being released by official and unofficial reporting agencies. It must be quite a shock to some of them who believe that by purposive planning the United States can maintain employment at high levels to discover how difficult it is to form conclusions on the basis of available data.

For example, Census Bureau March estimates of unemployment were about the same as February totals. On the other hand, the BLS March report—which, unlike the Census Bureau, excludes agricultural employment—pointed to a continuing decline in employment in nonagricultural industries. "The downward drift in manufacturing employment," the BLS report states, "continued into March for the sixth consecutive month," resulting in a decline of nearly 1.2 million from the postwar peak of last September. An upturn in trade employment, attributed to seasonal factors, was said to be the smallest March rise since 1938. However, a late Easter brought subsequent sales increases that will no doubt be reflected in April employment reports. The larger part of the decline in employment, however, occurred in durable goods industries, and it is an open question whether the next survey of conditions will reveal signs of a pickup or register further declines.

Another sign of deteriorating employment conditions not revealed by Census estimates, which put the number of unemployed in March at 3,167,000, is the rise in part-time work and in layoffs. The BLS reports that a shortening of the work week reduced the March gross weekly earnings of workers in manufacturing establishments about a dollar on the average as compared with February, while there was a drop of $1.64 from the all-time high of last December. And there are the laid-off workers to consider. Although they are idle, the Census Bureau classifies them as employed, if they are only temporarily laid off or waiting to start new jobs. Moreover, part-time workers are counted among the employed if they work only an hour or two a week. Because of these and other omissions the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union claims that the Census Bureau's estimates of unemployment seriously understate the actual volume of joblessness.

There is undoubtedly truth in the contention that account has to be taken of temporary idleness and short-time work in appraising the effect of the downturn on employment conditions, present and prospective. The Census Bureau's own figures show that large numbers of persons classified as employed are either temporarily idle or on short time. All these factors have to be considered in appraising the effect of employment declines on consumer purchasing power, and hence on the outlook for business recovery.

So far, however, there is no convincing evidence that unemployment has attained frightening proportion, although there are some local bad spots. Consumer purchasing power still remains at high levels and, as the New York Federal Reserve Bank says, there are many new props within the economy that provide strong assurance "against the extremes of cumulative contraction reached in the early thirties."

Concealment

Happily, the harangue over the Navy's projected supercarrier now has been ended by Secretary Johnson and the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The decision to abandon construction represents the considered advice of a majority of the body charged with planning American defense strategy. These are the men who should know the facts if anyone does. There is no reason to believe that the decision was reached lightly or that it represents an indorsement of the theory that a future war can be won by the Air Force alone.

The question that remains is why the Navy was allowed to start the carrier in the first place. In part the answer may be that the issue, according to the best information we can get, was discussed, but never met squarely by the Joint Chiefs. In part it may also be that no one was willing to take upon himself the responsibility for stopping the carrier. Secretary Johnson, of course, inherited the squabble, and it is to his credit that he forced a decision.

Much of the confusion over the carrier stemmed, it seems to us, from too little information—and only part of the blame for this can be laid at the door of the military. It must be taken for granted that, aside from a small group interested in maintaining their perquisites, both protagonists and antagonists of the carrier, are sincere men legitimately concerned with the best method of defending the United States. The points at issue have been whether the carrier would have been merely a gigantic sitting duck, and whether the B-36 bomber can actually do what is claimed for it. These are essentially matters for military decision, but the public has a direct interest in seeing that the right decisions are made.

Yet the public has had no valid basis for judgment. The results of the Bikini atom bomb tests, on both aerial and underwater bursts, certainly are relevant to the carrier question. But these results, cleared for release by the military, are still hung up on the President's desk. The number of atomic bombs the country possesses is also relevant to the kind of defense planned; indeed, it is hard to see how Congress can vote intelligently without such information. But even the discussion of the wisdom of disclosure has been forbidden by the President, apparently with only cursory consideration.

In similar fashion congressional appraisal of the carrier problem has been distorted by the suppression exercised by the Senate Armed Services Committee. The Navy, apparently unintentionally, misrepresented the carrier to the House last year as having had a specific go-ahead signal from the Joint Chiefs. Yet, as we gather from extensive inquiry, the Senate committee did not make public a letter it received from the Air Force specifically reserving the Air Force position and presenting a considerably different picture of the discussion by the Joint Chiefs.

Finally, of course, there has been the continual round of exploits by the B-36 and the debunking by the Navy. There has been less than frankness in some of the Air Force claims, and considerable spite in some of the Navy's counterclaims. But how is anyone not omniscient to know where the truth lies? The only satisfactory answer is in a policy, first, of competent evaluation of such claims, and then of prompt release of nontechnical information to permit informed judgments. The country's greatest safeguard against wrong decisions is in the fullest and freest information—and the lesson of the supercarrier ought to be taken to heart by the Executive and Congress as well as the defense establishment.

DAR Resolutions

I found it difficult to credit my eyes when I read in your columns that the Daughters of the American Revolution characterized the program for a limited federal world government as an "un-American activity."

Perhaps the crowning glory of the Revolution of 1776 was the now-famous stroke of genius of the summer of 1789; the formulation of a practical plan for a limited, federal government as a method by which a group of sovereign states might live together in peace, under a rule of law and not under a rule of force. Was it an "un-Virginian activity" for Mr. Washington to preside at the meetings in Philadelphia; was it an "un-Pennsylvanian activity" for Mr. Franklin to lead and guide the discussions?

What the sponsors of limited federal world government now advocate is that the great, and truly American, ideal of the rule of law through government be extended beyond our borders to encompass all the other nations of the earth. Does the DAR now suggest that the keystone and basic philosophy of the great American experiment, and the great American triumph, has, in the interval of 150 years, become an "un-American activity?"

PHILIP WERNER AMRAM.
Washington.

The resolutions recently adopted by the DAR at their national convention reveal the tattered, crumbling framework of their once powerful and influential organization. The DAR has apparently become a retarded group of chauvinistic women valiantly clinging to pre-World War I ideals and beliefs in a last-ditch effort to salvage their organization.

Why is it that newspapers feel compelled to give such complete, lengthy coverage to the Daughters of the American Revolution conventions? Every convention time I am appalled at the complete coverage given such bigoted, narrow-minded proceedings.

China Policy

From recent publication of Secretary Acheson's letter to Senator McCarran, we can easily draw the conclusion that the State Department has not any definite policy toward China and this no-policy will be continued for a considerable length of time simply because the "dust hasn't yet set upon earth."

I suggest (1) that the State Department immediately declare a policy with respect to China that the United States cannot let any dictatorship enslave the people of Asia and against any kind of imperialistic aggression; (2) that the United States Government indicate that it will help those who advocate freedom and human rights and denounce a return to power by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek in favor of Li Tsung-zen and local leaders and people who can resist Communist dictatorship; (3) that the United States immediately plan an aid program on principles of military help to those who keep peace in terms of democracy and against dictatorship, regional direct help to Chinese people who will live under a free and democratic system, finance and economic reconstruction on a Federal basis to united China, relief and support for cultural workers and students to study abroad; (4) that the declaration indicate that if the Communists change their policy of enslaving people and set up a true democratic and free system, the United States will offer technical assistance to the Chinese people.

All in all, nothing is worse than no policy. Nothing will injure the Chinese people and the interest of the United States in the long run more than a wait-and-see and do-nothing policy.

Hands off means retreat from Asia. Hands off means that the United States will lose all Asia in the future.

Today State Department experts may ignore China; tomorrow they will see an Asia-European federation under the leadership of Communists

Doctors' Fees

Dr. Thomas E. Mattingly says in his letter of April 22:

"Despite its high sounding name, the Committee for the Nation's Health repudiates every principle of collective bargaining Mr. Green champions. Mr. Green would allow the Committee for the Nation's Health to dictate the wage-work agreement for 175,000 qualified worker-doctors."

Under national health insurance, as provided in the pending legislation, the fees for doctors' services would be determined in each community by groups representing both doctors and consumers. The process would be much like collective bargaining, with the doctors probably pushing for higher fees, the consumers working for more moderate payments. The result would probably be fair to all—at least it would not be work-wage agreements dictated by the Committee for the Nation's Health.

Gas Station Congestion

Driving into a service station and getting near a gasoline pump is not always a simple procedure. After maneuvering through traffic to reach a station, a motorist frequently finds one or more cars facing him on each side of the pumps. If he waits for one side to clear, there is a 50-50 chance that other cars will drive in—in back of those already there. The surest method is to turn around if possible, drive out of the station, and come in the other entrance.

Busy company and private stations and customers would benefit if "Enter" and "Exit" signs with large arrows were posted for each lane at the pumps, thereby eliminating undue congestion and ruffled tempers and contributing to a more efficient distribution of gas and oil.

Fair Employment

On April 7, there appeared in another Washington newspaper a help-wanted advertisement for middle-aged white men to run the elevators of a Northwest apartment house. This house at present is employing colored men and women as elevator operators. Its advertisement is a disturbing reminder of the practice, rather generally followed in the previous period of depression, of summarily discharging colored workers to give the jobs thus vacated to unemployed white men and women.

Such employers are acting within their legal rights, and therefore, can be reached only by public opinion, aroused by those Americans who, pledging allegiance to this country, mean from their hearts to follow its principles of "liberty and justice for all."

Arlington Farms

On April 11 I received word (along with 4000 other residents) that Arlington Farms residence halls would close as of September 30. I understand the Public Housing Administration reported it has been operating the dormitories at a loss for two years.

Most girls pay $24.50 a month rent. However, if it is necessary for us to do so, I do not think any girl would mind paying as high as $5 more a month.

The six buildngs at Arlington and one at Langston were built in 1943 for wartime accommodation of women employed by the War Department, Navy Department, Treasury Department, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and many other agencies. On the grounds are tennis courts, a cafeteria, administration and service buildings, a modern infirmary, and a huge recreation center.

If Arlington Farms is closed, many of us may have to quit our Government jobs and go home, as our families would not feel it safe for us to live in the average boarding house, and most cannot afford apartments.

Seeds of Discontent

Paul Robeson's recent statement concerning nonparticipation of Negroes in the case of a Russia-U. S. A. war is highly questionable. I think, however, that it can be stated with reasonable validity that there is a growing unrest among Negroes as well as other minority peoples as a result of the inexcusable and inexplicable indignities they have experienced.

A multiplicity of factors such as the concept of "white supremacy," economic, political and social discriminations, religious intolerance, etc., all operating in a vicious cycle each influencing the other, is and has been formulating a basis for internal disintegration.

The question of Negro nonparticipation in a Russian-United States war should not cause us as much concern as the underlying factors that would lead to such action. Unless we are willing to eradicate the existing disparity between our theory and practice in our form of Government, we can only hope to become victimized by our traditions and intellectual stupidity in neglecting to do so.

R Street Hazard

Recently, a 1949 Buick, going west, tore into the side of a coupe going north up New Hampshire ave. Three occupants were in the coupe. Two of them, girls somewhere in their twenties, were badly hurt.

Ever since the Dupont Circle job has been going on, and rerouted traffic has made R st. heavily traveled, accidents at the corner of New Hampshire and R have become the rule rather than the exception.

The stop sign on R, at New Hampshire, just isn't capable of coping with the heavier traffic load. With a number of cars going west on R st. at the same time, it is hard, if not impossible, for many of them to see the sign. At night, shadows add to the difficulty.

The result has been a rash of accidents which, by their very number, indicate that drivers aren't completely at fault. If these accidents are to be eliminated, something beyond the obviously inadequate stop sign is needed.

A blinker or stop light now will do much to prevent this needless toll.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Taft's Housing

FOR A long time now Congress has been batting back and forth that word, housing. If all the speeches on the subject were laid end to end, they would reach so far out into space as to escape the sight even of the great new Palomar telescope.

But Congress seems actually about to pass a substantial housing bill. It will mean direct Government aid to build decent homes for some of the lowest income families. The filthiest, most disease-ridden and overcrowded slums will be cleared away.

In spite of all that the private housing lobby could do, the Senate has now passed a bill calling for construction of 810,000 home units over a period of six years. For slum clearance, the measure provides $1,500,000,000 in Federal loans and grants. The Senate, of course, has done this twice before and a hardful of obstructionists in the House have always blocked it.

Today, however, there is general confidence the House will be allowed to vote on the bill and, if it votes it will adopt it. Both Speaker Sam Rayburn and Majority Leader John McCormack have expressed their optimism to President Truman.

If these confident forecasts prove true, several people will be able to step forward and take merited applause. One will be the President, who has consistently ever since he has been in the White House, and long before that in the Senate, urged the need for Government help in building homes for families whose incomes are so low they cannot afford a decent place to live.

ANOTHER will be Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio. Taft's sponsorship of housing by Government subsidy goes nearly back as far as the President's. In 1945 he joined with two Democrats, Senators Robert Wagner of New York and Allen Ellender of Louisiana, to sponsor a public housing bill.

Taft, who favors more limited assistance than the Administration proposal, has had his ups and downs as a champion of public aid in home building. In both the Seventy-ninth and Eightieth Congresses the Senate passed bills of which Taft was a sponsor. But in spite of all the prestige and power he wields in the Republican Party, he could not move the half dozen leaders in the House who were holding the door shut against any consideration of the bill.

So far as his convictions go, Taft has never wavered. The intensity of his feeling came out once again in the highly publicized episode of his off-the-record speech before the Republican Policy Committee.

That speech, in which he told his fellow Republicans that the party could never win an election so long as they opposed every measure of social reform, puts Taft in the most interesting political spot in the Capital. He becomes the blunt, outspoken challenger feared within both the Republican and Democratic parties. That has always been more or less his role, but until his speech he has never so openly challenged the right wing of Republicanism.

IN HIS own party, Taft is resented particularly by such men as his Ohio colleague, Senator John Bricker. Bricker, an avowed spokesman for the real estate lobby, sees Taft in the same light that Franklin Roosevelt's rich and conservative friends regarded the late President—that is, as a traitor to his class and background.

Taft is up for reelection in Ohio next year. It should be the sharpest and most significant contest in the country. From the Bricker wing of the party he can expect, at best, indifference. On the other side, organized labor is out to defeat him for sponsoring the Taft-Hartley Act.

If he wins, Taft will be able to claim a strong middle position between the Truman Fair Deal and the do-nothingism of the extreme Right in both parties. The political logic of this middle ground will be highly persuasive not only for his own party, but for a great many independent voters with no strong ties. That, of course, points directly toward 1952.

It explains why the Democratic National Committee will concentrate so much money and time toward knocking Taft out in Ohio next year. The Bricker type is not feared. Their complete and total reaction is almost self-defeating. But a Taft, claiming the middle ground of reform and progress in health, housing, education—that is another and far more serious matter.

That is the kind of political competition out of which advances have come in this country. It sometimes seems hopelessly slow, but usually—as now, with housing—it comes along.

Washington's Slums

I think the Washington papers have left out some very important pictures and information on the slum conditions in the Nation's Capital. You forgot about the many white people living in slum conditions much worse than the conditions of colored people shown in your paper. They, too, are victims of poor working and living conditions. I feel that the real rat-infested, crime-breeding disease shacks should be publicized for the whites as well as the colored to get a quicker action from Congress.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

China And U. S. Policy

MR. ACHESON, like General Marshall before him, is under fairly heavy fire because he does not come forward with a plan of action for China.

LIPPMANN

Things have gone against us not only in China but in almost the whole Far East. Nothing in our foreign policy, except the defense of the Western Hemisphere, has been so settled and fixed as our friendly interest in China. It was our refusal to surrender China to Japan which made the conflict in the Far Pacific irreconcilable and brought about the war with Japan. Yet now we see China passing into the hands of men who regard us as their enemies. And Japan which we conquered in order to liberate China has no future—except as a sullen and rebellious dependency which we have to govern, support, and defend—if it is cut off from that Chinese mainland which is now controlled by men who are unfriendly to us.

THE BITTER truth is that collapse of Nationalist China has for the time being at least left us without strong friends or effective influence in the Far East. We are alone. Our European allies have interests but little power or influence. The British in Malaya, the French in Indo-China, and the Dutch in Indonesia have just about enough strength to hang on where they are in the hope that something can be saved by an orderly retreat.

The Marshall-Acheson policy, which is a policy of nonintervention in the Chinese civil war, is easily open to the criticism that it solves none of our problems. But the critics of this policy, especially the congressional critics, can fairly be asked whether they would in fact wish to involve this country in a serious effort to turn the tide of the Chinese civil war.

THERE IS, of course, a frivolous fringe who think or pretend to think that another billion dollars or thereabouts given to Chiang Kai-shek would make the difference. But no competent military man, beginning with General Marshall, who is a most competent military man, has ever supported the notion that a victory for Nationalist China can be or could have been bought on cheap and easy terms.

The American policy of nonintervention may not be glorious and inspiring but at least it rests on the hard truth that the United States can do nothlong effective in the Chinese civil war unless it is prepared to send American troops in there to fight the battles. The critics of the Marshall-Acheson policy can fairly be asked whether that is what they are prepared to vote for. If they are not, then a little less rhetoric and a little more forbearance and understanding would be becoming. For those who are not prepared to put up must have the grace to shut up.

WHILE WE wait and see, it will be useful to get a new pair of eyeglasses for looking at China. The geography of China is not at all what the ordinary maps that we are used to make it appear. We are inclined to think that China is our neighbor across the Pacific. But actually, if we look at a globe, we find that Japan and Russia lie between China and the United States. A ship heading straight from San Francisco to Shanghai would have to make a detour to avoid Japan. Airplanes flying straight from the center of the United States to the interior of China would have to pass over Russian territory.

Even more significant is the fact that China and Russia have a common land frontier which extends from the shores of the Pacific 4000 miles into the heart of Asia. Our access to China is only through the ports on the Pacific Ocean, and what goes on beyond this coastal region—in the thousands of miles inside Asia—is beyond the reach of our power and our influence. Yet it is in the deep interior that the destiny of China will be worked out, and of the many non-Chinese peoples who are legally a part of China.

FOR THESE reasons alone there can be no such thing as an American policy which "solves" the Chinese problem. Our policy, when we are again in a position to have one, will necessarily be limited to making such contacts as we can on the best terms that can be arranged with the Chinese authorities on or near the coast of China. Whether they will also have authority in the deep interior no man can say. It is quite conceivable that there will not be for decades, perhaps for generations, any Chinese government which, except in name, is obeyed by all the Chinese.

There are as many Chinese in China as there are Europeans in Europe. Europe is not united, nor within sight of unity, and it may well be that what the Europeans cannot do, the Chinese who are much more primitive, will not for long ages to come be able to do.

NLRB Rules News Vendors Have No Bargaining Rights

The National Labor Relations Board ruled yesterday that licensed news vendors of four New York daily newspapers are independent contractors and the newspapers are not compelled by the Federal labor law to bargain with them as employes.

The newspapers are the Journal-American, Post, Sun and World-Telegram.

The decision was occasioned by the petition of the New York Newsboys Union No. 471, affiliated with the AFL Printing Pressmen's Union, for the NLRB to give the union bargaining rights for the vendors.

In dismissing the petition the NLRB said Congress intended the board recognize as employes those who "work for wages or salaries under direct supervision."

It said Congress intended to exclude those who "undertake to do a job for a price, decide how the work will be done, usually hire others to do the work, and depend for their income not upon wages, but upon the difference between what they pay for goods, materials, and labor and what they receive for the end result, that is, upon profit."

"Applying such standards," the NLRB ruled, "it clearly appears that the news vendors claimed herein are independent contractors, and not 'employes' within the meaning of the act."

New Demands By UMW Aim At 4 Points

By The Associated Press

John L. Lewis and his 200-man policy committee shaped new contract demands today with four major goals: More pay, shorter hours, equalized employment and greater safety in the pits.

At least a half dozen more objectives were approved by the United Mineworkers' October convention. But none of them was specific.

Lewis has preferred in recent negotiations to keep the coal operators guessing about what he wants until he meets them face to face.

The present one-year agreement expires June 30. Talks leading toward a new pact are expected to start in the next month.

Lewis and his advisory group went over a multitude of union problems, some only indirectly connected with the forthcoming contract negotiations.

The UMW boss reviewed the economic picture and reported on recent financial transactions of the union.

The union has acquired another Washington office building and there have been unconfirmed reports that the UMW also has taken over control of the National Bank of Washington, oldest such institution here.

On the contract issues, Lewis has thrown out strong indications that he will concentrate on the four big aims.

Incinerator Ruling Upheld By Virginia

Richmond, Va., April 25 (AP).—An Arlington County Circuit Court decision in a case involving a dispute over a contract for a county incinerator was affirmed today by the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

One of the questions involved was whether the lower court erred in ruling that there was legal competitive bidding for installation of a new incinerator for the county.

Six Arlington residents and the Morse Boulger Destructor Co. brought the case for legal test and asked the court to compel award of the contract to Morse Boulger instead of Nichols Engineering Co.

They contended the Morse Boulger Co. actually was low bidder on the contract.

Concerning the disputed low bid, the high court said the county board "had the clear right to consider the bids in the light of the operational cost as well as of the installation costs in ascertaining which bid best served the interest of the county, and that the method of evaluation used to that end was proper."

Court Upholds AEC Refusal To Recognize Electrical Union

The Atomic Energy Commission was upheld yesterday in its refusal to permit recognition of the CIO Electrical Workers Union in a General Electric Co. laboratory at Schenectady, N. Y.

Judge F. Dickinson Letts of District Court dismissed the one-million-dollar damage suit brought against the AEC and General Electric by the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union.

The jurist said the AEC was empowered by law to take the step it did, and that no "substantial constitutional question" was involved.

The AEC had ruled the union could not be recognized at the Knolls Schnectady plant unless the unions' officials took an oath that they are not members of, or affiliated with, the Communist Party.

The suit, in addition to seeking money damages, asked a court order barring the commission and the company from disturbing its contract as exclusive collective bargaining agency for workers in General Electric plants.

Named as defendants were Chairman David E. Lilienthal, the Atomic Energy Commission, all of its members, and General Electric.

Civic Group Backs 10-Cent Tax Increase

The Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring, Md., last night endorsed a tax increase of 10 cents per $100 assassed evalution as a means of amortizing a proposed 5 million dollar bond issue for school construction.

At the same time the group, which represents 20 citizens' associations in the area, requested the Montgomery County Council to take advantage of a State grant of $1,260,000 which would be given to the county if the balance of the 5 million dollars is borrowed from the State.

Group officials pointed out that although the term for repayment of the bonds to the State is shorter than that granted by bonding companies, the interest rates would be less, in this case 1½ per cent.

The group approved the increased tax assessment if no other means of amortizing the bonds is found.

At the meeting held in the Liquor Control Board Building in Silver Spring, the group also requested the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission to make immediate repairs on all playground equipment in the recreational centers throughout the counties.

It further voted to request the planning commission to meet with the Allied Civic Group's playground committee headed by W. M. Davies, to make a survey of all playgrounds as to the location, suitability, services and proposed swimming pools.

Victor Richter, president of the civic group, appointed Ralph D. Boyd as chairman of the annual banquet to be held in June.

D. C. Pressmen Get Report on Berry Will

A report on claims that the International Printing Pressmen's Union is entitled to part of the $750,000 estate left in the will of George L. Berry was delivered last night at a meeting of Local No. 1 in Pythian Temple.

Officials of the local would not divulge the nature of the report and stated that no specific action would be taken until the international board of directors completes a three-day meeting at Pressmen's Home, Tenn., slated to open today.

Berry, a former Democratic Senator from Tennessee and president of the International Printing Pressmen's Union, died last December.

The investigation centers about disposal of Berry's interest in the International Card and Label Co., which was financed reportedly by union funds.

The bulk of the estate was left to Berry's widow and to a Mrs. Alva Berry of Mooresburg, Tenn., known variously as a "friend," "niece" and "cousin" of Berry.

Republicans Woo 1950 Farmer Vote

By Jack Steele
NYNT News Service

The Republican Party will give top priority in the 1950 campaign to a drive to regain the confidence and votes of the Nation's farmers, Representative Scott of Pennsylvania, Republican national chairman, said yesterday.

Scott, at a press conference after three days of party strategy conferences here, accused President Truman of treating the American farmer as "the biggest sucker of modern times" and branded the Administration's farm subsidy program as "flypaper to catch votes."

He said the farm program, sponsored by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, would so regiment agriculture that farmers would be reduced to "farming acres of questionnaires."

He announced that the first of a series of party regional conferences, probably to be held in Des Moines in September, will be devoted to agricultural problems and that a new agriculture division will be created at the party's national headquarters here.

Earlier yesterday, Scott and the chairmen of the partyl's Senate and House campaign committees issued a statement promising to forget their differences in the interest of a unified campaign in 1950.

Scott said that all had agreed that the party budget for this year would be split so as to give the Senate and House committees "substantially" the funds they have requested for their independent campaign efforts.

100 Miles an Hour

Man Caught After Leading Wild Chase

A man who said he once was an Arlington policeman was arrested on three charges in Fairfax County late Sunday night after a 100-mile-an-hour chase in which a county policeman was nearly run down.

Identified as Clement W. Becker, 33, of 1721 N. 12th st., Arlington, he was charged with reckless driving, failing to stop at an officer's signal and attempted felonious assault on a ploice officer. Becker was released under $1600 bond for hearing at Fairfax Trial Justice Court May 6.

Officers Richard Wahl and Pierce Lysinger said they started chasing Becker's speeding car east on Route 50 near Fairfax High School. Wahl said the speedometer in their new cruiser reached 100 as Becker's car kept ahead of them, passing cars on both left and right sides.

The officers finally radioed ahead to another cruiser which waited for Becker at Seven Corners. Officer Roland Heath said he stepped out onto the highway to flag Becker down, but that the car continued on straight at him. He had to jump to avoid being struck, Heath said.

Wahl and Lysinger finally caught Becker near the Arlington County line and forced his car to the side of the road.

Arlington police records show that a Clement W. Becker served on the force several years ago for a few months.

U. S. Is Called Communists' Real Target

The United States, as the outstanding nation of the non-Communist, or capitalist, world is the ultimate objective of Communist conquest, Maj. Gen. William H. Arnold said last night.

General Arnold, budget officer in the office of the Army Chief of Staff, spoke at a dinner meeting of the Military Order of Foreign Wars in the Hotel Mayflower.

"At the moment," he said "the Communists have but the simple aim of weakening our country in every way possible.

Calls for Confidence

"Their hope is that the United States will suffer a depression such as came between the two World Wars and which will so discredit capitalism and free enterprise throughout the world that the spread of communism can be quickly effected.

"For this reason, the 'cold war' is essentially an economic struggle,' he said.

Americans should maintain their mutual confidence in each other, he said, "for the Communists know that with or without a depression, our democracy will never become Communist as long as we have confidence in the honor, the ability, and the trustworthiness of our leaders and fellow citizens."

D. C. Men Elected

Col. Edwin S. Bettelheim, jr., of 3927 Massachusetts ave. nw., was elected commander general of the order earlier in the day. He was installed last night, succeeding Col. James Doherty, assistant business manager of the Providence, R. I., Journal.

Among other officers elected were Lieut. Harry J. Breithaupt, secretary general, and Col. Frederick B. Wiener, deputy secretary general, both of Washington.

The order, which will conclude its biennial convention at 2:15 p. m. today when a wreath is laid at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, also adopted resolutions yesterday. They included a call for closer unification of the armed services, indorsement of the North Atlantic Pact, and a plea to Congress never to reduce the size of the armed forces.

Vice Admiral Harry G. Hamlet, retired commandant of the United States Coast Guard, presided at the dinner.

Senter May Withdraw

Roanoke, Va., April 25 (AP).—Dr. E. W. Senter, Salem physician, said tonight he may not run for lieutenant governor since Lieut. Gov. L. Preston Collins has indicated he will seek reelection.

Against Change

Ministers Oppose Added Liquor Hours

Opposition to any extension of closing hours of taverns and night clubs was voiced yesterday by the Washington Ministerial Union.

The union, meeting at Potomac Heights Community Church, 5200 Cathedral ave. nw., voted unanimously to request the District Commissioners and the Alcholic Beverage Control Board not to change present regulations.

The Restaurant Beverage Association of Washington last Thursday urged the commissioners to extend tavern and night club hours to three a. m. on weekdays, and 4 a. m. for establishments paying a special fee. The present limit is 2 a. m. on weekdays and midnight on Saturday.

In another action, the union praised the Columbia Heights Businessmen's Association for calling off an Easter parade which was to have been held Easter afternoon.

Persons in the area protested and plans for the parade were abandoned. The Ministerial Union will send a letter to the president of the Columbia Heights Business Men's Association approving the action and stating that it "looks with disfavor upon commercializing Easter.'

The action was taken "as a safeguard against possible efforts to promote a similar venture in the future," according to the Rev. Edward B. Willingham, pastor of National Memorial Baptist Church 16th street and Columbia rd. nw.

George A. Barrois, formerly professor of church history at Catholic University who is now on the faculty of Princeton University, spoke to the ministers on "Our Protestant Heritage."

Pulpit Swap Plan Delayed

ect than go ahead when it was unable to find a white church which would accept the third Negro minister, Mr. Fahl said. Later the presbytery told the committee to go ahead with the exchange plan for some future Sunday "with the assurance that the presbytery is back of them."

"We have missed the one great opportunity in years to show a feeling of brotherhood and set an example which God knows is needed in the country now," Dr. J. Hillman Hollister, pastor of Chevy Chase Church, aserted. Dr. Hollister, who sponsored the motion for continuation of the committee's plan, declared that "we still can carry through with enthusiasm and heartiness."

The meeting was held at the Clarendon Presbyterian Church, N. Jackson and N. Irving sts., Arlington, Va.

In another action, the Presbytery voiced its opposition to the Thomas Federal aid to education bill. The bill, which provides for distribution of 300 milion dollars annually among the States to aid elementary and secondary schools, has been approved by the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee.

Under the legislation, aid money may be alloted to private schools if the practice is permitted by the State constitution. A resolution passed by the Presbytery stated that "this provision would result ultimately in a violation of the position of the United States and the Presbyterian Church U. S. A. guaranteeing separation of church and State."

The resolution also stated that in spite of guarantees in the legislation against Federal control of the schools, such control would be impossible to avoid. Financial support for public schools should come from the individual States, the resolution said.

Israel Reported Ready To Deal With Arabs

Geneva, Switzerland, April 25 (AP).—Israel is prepared to enter immediately into full-scale peace talks with the Arab states, an Israeli spokesman said today.

Delegations from Israel and all the four bordering Arab states—Egypt, Trans-Jordan, Syria and Lebanon—are scheduled to meet in Lausanne Wednesday to talk over problems delaying a final peace in Palestine. The meeting is sponsored by the U. N.-Palestine Conciliation Commission.

BIG THRILL that's an even bigger buy

This is what they tell us:

That no matter how much you expect of this ROADMASTER when you take one over, you find you get even more.

That no matter how much you've heard about Dynaflow Drive, and how it works, the actual feel and handling of it is a satisfaction beyond expression.

That there's a real bang in discovering a car that's big and roomy and impressive in bearing—and still nimble as a cat in traffic and tireless as an antelope on the open road.

In short, that here's a thrill that's fresh and new and exciting—and certainly far beyond the price this ROADMASTER carries.

Truth is, ROADMASTER is something really rare in its field—a truly top-drawer car with price appeal! Its merits command your respect—its price tags call for prompt action.

Yes, take a good sharp look at the money side of the big-car market today. With deliveries easing under increasing factory production, one such look will have you getting a firm order in right now!

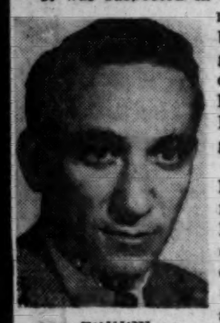
Nats Lose Again, 2-0, to Bosox, for 7th in Row

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

BOSTON, APRIL 25.—There have been worse-hitting clubs than the Nats, perhaps, but they are not easy to recall nor would anybody want to. Pitching for the Washington club amounts to a sentence for the poor devils selected for the work.

It was suspected in Florida that the Nats wouldn't get many runs, but it was not suspected they would be quite as feeble as they are. That seven-game losing streak they now own is no accident. In their last seven games, the Nats have amassed a grand total of seven runs. It's the kind of a batting attack that would give them eighth place to have and to hold.



POVICH

Manager Joe Kuhel is pretty helpless. He nor any other manager can think any runs across the plate. Three times in the last seven games the Nats have been shut out. On two occasions they were held to one run. The dreariest statistic, however, can be found in the fact that only once since the season started have the Nats come up with a two-run inning.

IF THE PITCHERS around the league are drooling at the prospects of facing the Nats, and they are, it's no surprise. Even when the Nats do manage some hits, pitchers aren't going to be hurt badly. Of the 38 blows they have totaled in their last seven games, 33 of them were singles, just to give you an idea. That's a sign of feebleness.

Nobody on the club is hitting, with the exception of Gil Coan, who was supposed to be the great gamble. Eddie Yost, the sensation of the exhibition games, is being stopped almost cold by better pitching. Al Kozar and Al Evans can't get up a gallop. Funny thing about Clyde Vollmer—he has power only when he connects, which hasn't been very often.

In desperation today, Kuhel benched Ed Robinson. He'd been no help outside of hitting a home run in a losing game at New York. At this moment when Buddy Lewis was showing signs of meeting the ball again he was benched by a lame leg. The whole club is dragging badly, and no help is in sight.

THE PITY is that such all-fired good pitching is being wasted. Paul Calvert has reason to wonder why he fought to stay in the big leagues, to the extent of buying his release from Toronto. He has made two starts for the Nats and in 16 innings they haven't got a run for him yet. He lost a 3-0 game at New York and today he took a 2-0 beating.

Washington pitchers can be forgiven for taking the attitude that any run they are given to work with may be their last. Kuhel is in a far rougher spot than if his pitching were going sour. At least he would have a choice of 10 pitchers and could try to juggle a bit. But he has only one ball team, and when that's not hitting he's stuck with it, painfully.

Kuhel's pitchers have come through nobly. The staff was supposed to be hard hit when Walter Masterson came down with an appendectomy, and Joe Haynes was slow recovering from his arm operation, and Milo Candidni and Ed Klieman suffered wrenched knees. But Calvert and Forrest Thompson moved in and pitched three beauts only to lose 'em when the Nats gave them a total of only one run.

THE ONLY CONSOLATION for Kuhel is that the Nats must improve, on the theory that they can't stay that awful. He can't quite give up on Robinson, who batted in 86 runs for Cleveland last year, or Yost who was belting that ball so solidly the last part of last season. In former years, Al Evans was always a tremendous spring hitter.

Kuhel has been in a worse spot, it is remembered. Last year, over one stretch, the Nats lost 18 in a row and barely averted a new league record for futility. He is a little bit philosophical about it, at that, and somehow has maintained a sense of humor. "Some day," he said, "we're gonna get a run, and end our losing streak, 1-0."

All of which recalls the observation of ancient Spence Abbot, minor league manager who lost 10 in a row with weak-hitting clubs. "We're going to win some day," said Abbott. "We're going to beat the daylights out of some club that's weak on pop flies."

Season Hits Peak

54-Lb. Channel Bass Caught By D. C. Angler at Oregon Inlet

By Ralph Murdock

Channel bass fishing at Oregon Inlet struck a new high for the season over the weekend. Official count on the scoreboard showed that 67 of these gamesters were taken in one day.

The largest fish was caught by Thomas Basnight, jr., of Washington, D. C. The scales balanced at 54 pounds. He was fishing from Capt. Lee Dough's boat.

One morning a large school of bass surfaced about a mile off shore. With the aid of ship-to-shore phones and a private plane above directing the fishing fleet, 20 boats moved in for the kill. The boats nearest the whirling fish got the best of the luck.

Herb Goodman, Joe Brennan and the writer, luckily happened to be on the right boat. We were actually in the midst of the fish. The water looked red with bass. As we trolled alongside of them Capt. Hugh Tillett, the skipper of our boat warned us to get set for a strike. We had three lines overboard.

In a flash, Joe yelled, "I've got one." Then Herb cried, "Me, too." Almost instantly, the writer hooked one.

Goodman, who weighs a mere 265 pounds, had met his match. In his effort to land his fish, he circled the boat twice, tripped over a swivel chair, fell down once, but gallantly held on to his rod. After a series of grunts and "oh, boy, what a fish," Herb finally steered the gamester alongside and the captain used the gaff that hauled a 40½-lb. bass on deck. All three of these fish were landed in about twenty minutes.

They were caught with large Pflueger Record Spoons. Total catch, 4 fish—weight 153 pounds. With few exceptions these drum average from 35 to 40 pounds. There are about fifty boats available at Nag's Head, Manteo, and Wanchese. The skippers are all good seamen besides being excellent fishermen. Boat rental is $30 per day.

Several of these boats are being rigged for fishing in the Gulf Stream when the amberjack and marlin season comes in. They have twin screw motors and are well equipped for the 42-mile trip out to the blue water.

Dismissal Of Gardella Suit Asked By Baseball

By Gayle Talbot

New York, April 25 (AP).—Organized baseball went into Federal Court today and asked dismissal of Danny Gardella's damage suit for $300,000 on the ground that it is not engaged in interstate commerce.

Answers filed by the game's leaders denied that the former New York Giants' outfielder had suffered the damages he claims by his five-year suspension from the game after he jumped to the Mexican League in 1946.

Separate answers were filed by Commissioner A. B. Chandler, President Ford Frick of the National League, President William Harridge of the American League, President George M. Kotrautman of the Minor Leagues, and the New York Giants.

The answers specifically denied that radio or television make baseball interstate commerce, or that the game in any way falls within the scope of the anti-trust laws, as claimed in Gardella's action.

Earlier in the day it was disclosed that baseball attorneys had asked Federal Court for dismissal of parts of a $2,500,000 suit brought by Max Lanier and Fred Martin, two former St. Louis Cardinal pitchers who also hopped to the Mexican League in '46.

The contention in this instance was that Commissioner Chandler had not been served a d that he is an indispensable party to the suit. Arguments are to be heard Friday.

In answering Gardella's charges, President Frick declared that the form of player contracts, including the "reserve clause," is designed "to promote and maintain the highest degree of competition between teams, to permit the development of skilled players, to preserve the honesty and integrity of the game and to maintain confidence in the game of baseball on the part of the public and of those participating in professional baseball."

Louis F. Carroll, Frick's attorney, said all the answers virtually were identical.

As for radio and television, Frick maintained that those and other means of communication used to describe games "are merely incidental to the playing of the games in the local baseball parks and are in no way necessary for, or a part of, the giving of baseball exhibitions."

Sewell Beats Cubs Again, 8-2

Pittsburgh, April 25 (AP).—Truett (Rip) Sewell, veteran Pittsburgh Pirate right hander, hung the Indian sign on the Chicago Cubs for the second time of the season tonight as he hurled the Bucs to an 8-2 win.

Sewell, who beat the Cubs 1-0 in the first game of the season, was behind 2-1 going into the seventh when the Pirates came to life and scored five runs. Two of the markers came on Wally Westlake's second homer of the night. A crowd of 35,373 saw the game.

Feller May Be Back in Week

Cleveland, April 25 (AP). — Bob Feller, Cleveland hurler suffering from a pulled shoulder muscle, threw for 10 minutes in practice today and later reported the muscle felt "all right."

Today was the first time the Indian fireballer had handled a baseball since a week ago when he was unable to finish the season opener at St. Louis. Manager Lou Boudreau said it would be at least a week, however, before Feller returns to action.

SLUGGING COLONIAL—Garro Kriokorian, centerfielder of the George Washington Colonials, is throwing fear into opposing pitchers this spring with his home-run bat. Against Maryland, Kriokorian recently hit two homers—one on the first pitch of the game, the other in the seventh inning—as GW won, 9-8. Congratulating him is Joe Famulatte, 3d baseman

Voiselle Stops Dodgers, 3-0, For Braves

Brooklyn, April 25 (AP).—Big Bill Voiselle tamed Brooklyn with six hits today as the Boston Braves whipped the Dodgers, 3-0, in the first meeting this year of the National League's cofavored teams.

Jim Russell drove in two runs with a single in the third inning and Earl Torgeson homered in the fifth to give the husky right-handed pitcher a good working margin.

'Evil Eye' Pays a Visit To Our Town

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

A COMMODITY denied Washington for more than a year—and missed like a vertical hole through the head—has been restored with the return of one Benjamin Finkle to the shores of the Potomac.

Mr. Finkle is the originator and sole operator of the "Evil Eye," in case you didn't know. In case you did, it might be well to assure you he won't be around long. "A mont' or two." he says, "of hustlin' The Eye and I'll shove back toward the South."

Mr. Finkle's "Eye" gets its first workout tomorrow at the wrestling matches at Turner's Arena. He hasn't decided whether the Golden Superman or Mr. America, or Primo Carnera, or Chief Little Wolf deserves his ministrations most.

The "Eye," though, can be hired for almost any purpose. Hitler took a pretty bad beating while the United States Army had the use of Mr. Finkle's optic in Europe, he says. Then there was the guy who ran against Mr. Finkle's candidate for sheriff in Dade County, Fla.

"The old 'Eye' is as effective as ever," our hero confided yesterday, the moment he arrived from Tampa via New Orleans, St. Louis, Lexington, Chicago and Pittsburgh. "But right now I'm using it sparingly so it don't hurt my chances of getting a job."

That Mr. Finkle, who holds the all-time record for ducking

Howard Wins, 14 to 8,

Howard University defeated Fort Belvoir yesterday, 14-8, at Fort Belvoir. The win gave Howard a season's record of 7 wins and 3 losses.

Joost Erratic

Raschi Jinx Again Stops Macks, 3-2

New York, April 25 (AP).—Vic Raschi pitched the New York Yankees to a 3-2 decision over his old "cousins," the Philadelphia Athletics, today with the help of two errors by Shortstop Eddie Joost in the fourth inning. Raschi allowed five hits, Joe Coleman, his opponent, six.

Raschi, who has beaten the A's 9 out of 10 times in his brief major league career, chalked up his second straight win of the season. He shut out Washington in his first start.

Joost, usually a smooth fielder, messed up a grounder by Bill Johnson in the fourth after Yogi Berra opened the inning with a single. Then he threw wildly to third base trying to get Berra for his second error. Berra scored on the play. Dick Kryhoski's single, a hard smash that handcuffed Second Baseman Pete Suder, added the second score.

The Yanks got to Coleman for a run in the first when Gerry Coleman walked, stole second, took third on a sacrifice bunt and scored on Johnny Lindell's fly.

In the top of the fourth the A's tied the score on a walk to Ferris Fain, a wild pitch and Sam Chapman's double to center, their first hit. The Yanks went ahead again with two runs in their half of the fourth.

Singles by Hank Majeski and Chapman and Gerry Coleman's wild throw gave Philadelphia a run in the sixth.

Fain's triple, leading off the eighth, was wasted when Raschi disposed of Majeski, Taft Wright and Chapman.

Brecheen Wins For Cards, 9-3

St. Louis, April 25 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals routed their old jinx, Ken Raffensberger, with a four-run blast in the second inning and went on to defeat the Cincinnati Reds tonight, 9 to 3, before 11,500 fans. Harry Brecheen posted his first 1949 victory and Stan Musial slammed his third homer to open the Cardinal scoring.

Kuhel Tries To Get Runs By Shaking Up Line-up

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Boston, April 25.—Joe Kuhel redressed his Nats with some additional right-handed hitters today but he couldn't disguise their general character. They were instantly recognized and speedily licked by the Red Sox, 2-0, in one hour and 45 minutes.

Washington's seventh straight defeat was mostly the handiwork of left-handed Mel Parnell who took advantage of the Nat' presence in town to record his second shut-out in two starts.

Parnell's chief victim was luckless Paul Calvert — Luckless enough to be pitching for the Nats, who haven't scored a run for him in 16 innings. Calvert could be excused for switching to Toronto, where the going was not as rough.

The Nats reached their peak today when they got a man as far as third base against Parnell in the first inning. After that they attained nothing better than second base with their seven hits. Actually, they outhit the Red Sox, 7 to 6.

Calvert kept the Nats within striking distance in the seven innings he pitched, and never permitted the Sox to get more than one man on base in any inning, but it was all pretty futile.

As early as the second inning the Nats were licked and didn't know it. That was when Bobby Doerr led off with a triple against the center field wall, and scored on Sam Mele's grounder to Dente. They got a second and superfluous run in the sixth when Pesky opened up with a double to left and eventually scored from third on Stephens' fly.

In desperation, Kuhel shook up his lineup in an attempt to shake some runs into it. He benched First Baseman Eddie Robinson, a nonhitter during the losing streak, and moved Coach Mark Christman in at first base. He replaced the left-handed hitting Ed Stewart in the outfield with Rookie John Simmons.

It was no use. The Nats made a mild threat in the opening inning and then flunked out. Dente drew a walk at the outset and Coan singled him to second. Simmons sacrificed the pair along, but Vollmer took a third strike and Christman grounded out.

A chilled crowd of 5341 pneumonia-riskers watched Parnell make his slender early lead stand up. He had the help of Vern Stephens in the fourth inning after Vollmer led off with a single to left. Stephens scooped up a hard smash by Christman over second base and launched a double play.

In the sixth after Coan walked and Simmons singled to left with one out, the Nats again were a double play victim, on Vollmer's swat into the pitcher's box.

All of a sudden with two out in the ninth, the Nats managed to get the tying runs on base. Christman rapped a single to center and Yost banged one to left. In this situation Kozar sent everybody home, but scored nobody, with a pop foul to Tebbetts.

Bob Hope Not Trying to Wear Himself Out Hopping Around Country; He Just Likes It

By Bus Ham
Post Reporter

Bob Hope left word through Rufus Blair, one of his nine advance men, that he would be available on the phone somewhere in the Carolinas.

Old Muscle Nose has been on such a mad whirl through the hinterlands that I was afraid he would wear himself out before the National Celebrities golf tournament rolls around, June 4-5, at the Army-Navy Country Club.

I couldn't even wait to talk with him until he comes to town Thursday for two shows at Constitution Hall, afternoon and night, with the entire troupe of his NBC radio show.

What's the guy trying to do, wear himself out?

Six weeks ago he completed a barnstorming tour of 43 performances in 35 days in 36 cities with 24 golf matches tossed in between meals.

Those golf matches are Bob's way of doing something for charity in many of the towns where he's showing. The town's crack pros and amateurs meet him at the airport, whisk him out to a club for 18 holes before a galloping gallery, and the Boys Club or Milk and Ice Fund or Children's Hospital get the receipts.

Now he's on another series of cross-country hops—Phoenix, El Paso, Chattanooga, Asheville, Richmond, Washington—carrying 50 people in a chartered DC-6, playing 27 performances in 23 cities in 15 days.

Doesn't Leslie Townes Hope know he can't do that to us? He'll have us down to the nub worrying about his health.

BOB HOPE

"Just arrange it so I can play nine holes in the morning and nine holes in the afternoon in the Celebrities," he said over the phone. "My swing is slowing down to a point where it takes me half a day to play nine."

Sorry, but he won't have time to get a little exercise at the Army-Navy Club while in town Thursday. Arrives early in the morning, has a press conference at 11, then matinee and night performances at Constitution Hall.

How come you're on this hippety-hop excursion, Bob? It can't be for the dough that's in it.

The guy can be serious, and he was for a moment:

"I'm doing this because I like it. It's fun to me, even if I can't make anybody believe it, including my doctors.

"I happen to be a guy who can relax, go to sleep anywhere, anytime . . . 30 minutes here, an hour there, in an airplane or auto. I might even snooze at the mike one of these days, if they don't watch out. Or have I?

"Could I, or would I, go on like this, day after day, if I didn't get a lift out of it? If I was doing it for the dough, I wouldn't be able to keep it up not if I considered it work.

"It's just as much fun to me as going out to play a game of golf, and everybody knows I

AT HAVRE DE GRACE

DEAR FOLKS:

The other riders here haven't been able to keep Benny Civitelo from winning, but a cold in the head grounded him. He took the doctor's advice and sat out the Monday program. Jockey Bobby Strange, who has been performing in fine style, also took the day off for the same reason. Jockey Charlie Wahler will have five days of rest, having been suspended for rough riding in last Saturday's seventh race. Jockey Willie Balzaretti returned from New York and said Slam Bang, his mount in the Wood Memorial, broke a bone in his foot during the running. Jockey Bobby Mitchell, thrown Saturday by War Champ, suffered only minor bruises and was back in action. Jockey Steve Brooks, who many contend is the best rider here, is leading the journeymen saddle artists and may threaten Civitello before the meeting is ended—BILL.

Double Pays $453; Two $90 Victors

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., April 25.—Many bet and few collected as this track broke out in a rash of long shots today. The program had favorite players thinking about ways and means of changing their luck.

The card opened on a monetary downbeat when J. M. Gross' Raw Cord surprised the talent by winning over 11 other 3-year-olds at a $21.20 mutuel while handled by Jockey Aubrey Snellings. In the second, B. S. Campbell's Quick Party, a son of Laugh Clown, gave the horse laugh to the opposition to the tune of a $55 mutuel after clever handling by Jockey Pete McLean.

For those who had the 11 and 1 combination of Raw Cord and Quick Party in the daily double there was $453.80 waiting at the pay-off window for the popular deuce investment.

The long-shot parade extended into the third event when King Ranch's Flying Mane, Jockey Steve Brooks up, took down a nose decision at a $20.80 mutuel. Mutuel department stock went down in the fourth race but still there was a beaten favorite. R. E. Carter's Snowflares, piloted by Jockey Charley Givens, was the winner at a mere $6.80 but the Sidney Jacobs' entry of Partition and Baltimore Jim was favored.

Then came the telephone numbers again. William McClaney's Magnet, running as if he had just had his battery charged, bounded home and brought his backers a return of $90.20 for $2. Apprentice P. S. Boyle was aboard the son of Fenelon.

In the featured Bainbridge Purse the crowd of 7768 installed Grant Thorn's Andy Handy as the choice which was enough to put the curse on the son of Andy K. Anyway, he didn't win, the victory going to Clover-Del Stable's Cer Vantes, booted by Jockey Ken Scawthorn. Two and a half lengths back came the aforementioned Handy Andy with C. S. Popovitz's Love Sonnet third.

Cer Vantes paid $12.80 and was clocked in a capable 1:45 3-5 for the mile and a sixteenth over a fast track and under cloudless heavens—cloudless, that is, until a sky-writing plane came along to puff out an ad for a soft drink.

Pirate Gold was the appropriate name of the seventh-race winner. With Apprentice W. J. Passmore in charge of the saddle work, this 3-year-old daughter of Snark kept the long-shot ball rolling with a $16 payoff. The short-priced horses in the field ran like so many cattle.

The card ended as it began, with money flowing freely to the lucky few. A. D. Adams' Pine Tree cut down the old favorite players to produce a winning mutuel of $94.

Coaltown Scratched From $15,000 'Cap

Havre de Grace, Md., April 25. Calumet won't make a walk-over of the $15,000 added Havre de Grace handicap this weekend as was the case in the Burke Handicap when Coaltown breezed over the course unopposed. Trainer Jimmy Jones today scratched Coaltown, Armed, Fervent and Free America which was the cause of much rejoicing among many owners and trainers.

This leaves only Faultless to carry the Devil's red and blue. H. L. Straus' Pilaster was assigned top weight in the mile and a furlong test, getting 124 pounds. Faultless has 122 Christiana Stable's Service Pilot gets in with 116 with 113 assigned to Mrs. E. H. Augustus' Seven League. Both will tune up tomorrow.—HAIGHT.

A Plebe Speaks Up

Zug Zastrow to Put Zing in Navy Squad

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, April 25 (NYHT).—At the same hour the news broke that Frank Leahy would quit as Notre Dame's football coach after two more seasons—that is entirely true, and the successor already is chosen—it happened that some Notre Dame guys were lunching with some Navy guys in Newark.

Red Smith

In fact, the brains of Navy athletics, Capt. Howard Caldwell, director; Assistant Rip Miller, and George Sauer, coach, were among luncheon guests of Joe Byrne, Notre Dame's No. 1 boy in the East.

"We're going to be a little better," Sauer was saying. "We've got some pretty good kids coming along. Some kids who've got it. They've got it here."

He thumped his large bosom.

"They're rough and unpolished," he said, "but they've got it. We had a good spring practice for six weeks. Spring football is no fun; it's just plain work. But these kids still had some of the lift they got out of the Army game, and they made it look good.

"THEY MADE it look so good that we're toying with the idea of putting in the two-platoon system. That doesn't mean we're loaded. It means we have two, three and in a few cases four players who are all about even in ability at the same position. Maybe none of 'em is a real good football player yet, but if they're all even there's no reason why they shouldn't all play.

"For instance, we shifted Billy Earl to quarterback. He's a great kid, eager and sincere, always trying, always asking how he's doing, what he can do to get better. Well, there's a kid out of Algoma, Wisc., named Zug Zastrow, who has been pushing Earl for the job. I didn't put him on the first-string unit because he's a plebe and it's tough for a plebe to be in there with experienced men.

"But this Zastow is 205 pounds, 5-foot-11, and when he takes a football in his hand you don't see much of the ball. He can really throw.

"We scrimmaged Villanova and at the start their first team clearly outplayed our first unit. I called in the No. 2 unit, and when the first unit came back against Villanova's No. 1 crowd, we had Zastrow at quarter. We must have pushed up and down the field three or four times before losing the ball.

"I NEVER STICK my head in the huddle but I had a spy listening in. He told me about a hot-headed end of ours who came back into the huddle and said, 'For crying out loud, let's run . . .' That's as far as he got. This kid Zastrow said, 'Shut your big yap. I'm running this team, and if you don't like it, get the hell out.' At Annapolis, plebes don't talk like that to second-classmen, but this plebe did. He's a quarterback.

"Then watch for a kid named Allison at fullback. He's another plebe, 185 pounds, 6-foot-2, and a champion high hurdler. He's got it. He's really fast, which is what we have to have on those wide sweeps.

"One day in practice he went wide, got around the corner, started toward the open end of the field and then cut back away from the sideline, right into the middle of the pack.

"I told him, 'Look, Bob, with your speed you should go for the outside when you've got around the corner. You could go all the way.'

"He said, 'Yes, sir.' That's the way he is. But on the way back to the huddle he passed an assistant coach and muttered to him.

"'What the hell,' he said, 'Out there wide, there's nobody to hit.'" work, is looking for a job is astonishing news.

"Yessir," he slushes through his cigar, "I'm tryin' for a position as Boxing Commissioner of Florida. They don't have none now. Just waiting for the Legislature to drore up a bill creating a commisioner and making me it."

During his stay here Mr. Finkle, the only man in history who spent five years in Florida without going bathing, will make "The Eye" available to any athletic group except the Washington baseball club. "Even my talented glimmer won't help them," he says.

Remember, if you want "The Eye" turned on an opponent, it comes in three sizes, suitable to the occasion. There's the Slobodka State, the Zinger and the Double Whammy.

Mr. Finkle himself can barely stand the Double Whammy.

Earl Himel Stops Charging Papa Bear

Earl G. Himel, of Forest Hills, L. I., tells this story. "My brother and I had a close call while hunting bear near Marshall's Creek, Pa. A big 'blackie' caught us by surprise and charged us, growling. Two fast shots from my lever action Marlin 30-30 stopped him. A cub scampered away. Our bear, it turned out, was not his mother, but a protective papa!"

New 'Quake May Hit West, Scientist Says

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

The forces which caused the San Francisco earthquake in 1906 have steadily reformed until they are now ready for another major eruption, a seismologist said here yesterday.

Exactly where and when the shock might come cannot be foretold, said Dr. Beno Gutenberg, professor of geophysics and meteorology at California Institute of Technology and director of its seismological laboratory.

It may be in Mexico, or in the Pacific just west of Oregon, or, as in 1906, in the San Francisco area, he later explained.

Dr. Gutenberg spoke at the annual scientific session of the National Academy of Sciences, 2101 Constitution ave., in lieu of his assistant, Dr. Hugo Benioff, who was unable to attend.

Energy Rates Conflict

Dr. Gutenberg said that seismographic records since 1906 show a steady decline in the rate of underground energies released.

At the same time, however, he said, calculations kept by geologists show that land movements which built up to the 1906 'quake have continued at the same rate. Land movement involved, he explained, is the drifting apart of mountain ranges along each side of the intervening fault.

Dr. Otto Struve, astronomer of Yerkes Observatory of the University of Chicago, told the scientists of his "exciting" observations that offer new proof of the continuing evolution of stars and planets.

The astronomer said his observations bear out and strengthen the theory advanced in 1944 by a German physicist, Dr. C. F. von Weizsaecker, who contended that stars gave off matter that reformed into other stars and into planets.

Double Stars Support Theory

Telescopic observations since made on the so-called double stars appears to bear this out, reported Dr. Struve. And since these stars number about half of the stars within the Milky Way galaxy of some hundred billion stars, it is likely that the universe contains suns and planets in unlimited numbers, he said.

The star and planet spawning process works something like this, according to Dr. Struve's report:

Each double star is actually two stars revolving on their axis in opposing directions, with one star about twice the size of the other. As they whirl in space, they create terrific updrafts and downdrafts within their common atmosphere, an envelope of hot gas.

The turbulence, the shooting out of tremendous gas geysers containing matter continues till the process wears down the parent bodies and slows their rotations until the two bodies coalesce, the smaller merging with the larger. This can happen, he said, in the relatively brief astronomical span of some 200 million years to about a billion years.

Before the merger, however, the matter thrown off in the process is pocketed in the calms between the whirlwind movements, is cooled and become planets, with the unified star their sun. Matter not accumulated and formed into planets becomes stellar dust, which over billions of years can condense into new stars.

Along Our Street

with Aunt Penny

I always enjoy shopping in town for the first hour or two. But I seldom look forward to walking home when my shopping bags are filled with parcels.

This afternoon I was on my way home, carrying a dozen bundles or more, when Cy Stubbs appeared. He'd been working in his garden on the other side of the street. But he stopped and came over to help me home with my packages.

Cy is a good neighbor—always ready to go out of his way to help "the other fellow." He's the same way on our telephone party line. He always answers his ring promptly and never interrupts when the line is being used. He'd give up the line in a second if someone needed it in an emergency. Like most folks on party lines, he knows that courtesy and consideration mean better telephone service for everyone.

$45,000 every Tuesday....!

It's not a Top-the-Townsend plan, or an up on Upton Sinclair's EPIC platform...

But taking in that amount of money in the first two days of the week is something of an epic in any circulation department!

For $45,000 represents the average receipts by mail every Monday and Tuesday, for subscriptions to Nation's Business ... all three-year term, at $15, and more than half renewals!

No get-acquainted offers, club rates, special prices, this-month-only deals with cuckoo clocks, insurance policies, or gold embossed portfolios thrown in free...

For $15 a subscriber gets 36 issues of this magazine, and nothing else but.

There is no compulsion to subscribe to Nation's Business.

It positively will not publish your picture, speeches, life story or your wife's social notes.

The subscribers wear no badges, rate no salute from traffic cops or precinct captains, enjoy no club privileges, have no priority for new cars or watch repairs, get no kind words from clergymen or headwaiters.

The notoriety value is nil, net...

Yet more business men pay more money for Nation's Business than for any other business publication ... some 650,000 of them, in every industry classification, type of business, state of the Union, small town and big city.

The circulation of this one magazine alone includes the men responsible for a majority of US business!

No other business publication offers more of the business market ... or more attention and interest to advertising addressed to that market. Because Nation's Business has its own niche, utility and value in the minds of its readers.

There is more business news published today than anybody can read, and much of it adds only to the confusion and blood pressure of its readers.

Nation's Business leaves to other journals the reports of business—looks for the reasons behind the reports ... skips the chronicle, seeks causes.

It takes the long view, focuses on factors that will affect business, points out possible consequences.

Its articles are carefully compiled, documented, checked ... competently written for non-specialist readers, have a common objective of authoritative interpretation rather than sensationalism, scoop, or matching current content of other magazines.

In consequence, the reader looks to Nation's Business for direction rather than data ... is rarely surprised, usually aware of the turn of events before they turn!...

And since Nation's Business comes out only once a month, never crowds him, he has time enough to read every issue!

Few publications can provide a better reception for advertising ... and no publication provides better prospects!

Possibly you don't know as much as you might about Nation's Business? Call any office for a current evaluation...

CAA Reorganization To Be Announced; Many Job Shifts Due

That long-awaited plan to reorganize the Civil Aeronautics Administration is about to be made public. Insiders say it will bring about shifts of both officials and employes and the abolition of a few jobs. No over-all reduction in jobs, however, is anticipated.

CAA was given a slight increase in jobs in its 1950 budget as approved by the House. A management engineering firm that made a survey of the agency indicated that upwards of 1000 jobs could be abolished. Most of the people in these jobs would be shifted to expanding units if its recommendations are carried out.

CENSUS is in the switches on its business census project. Most District offices have been ordered to cease hiring and headquarters here has stopped expanding until Congress approves the deadlocked first deficiency bill.

No layoffs are now planned. But if the money is tied up for another week employes on the project will be urged to continue on their jobs and to take a chance that Congress eventually will okay the money to pay them. There is no controversy between the Senate and the House and Census funds are regarded as certain of approval when the deadlock is broken.

PUBLIC HOUSING ADMINISTRATION also is in a quandary. It's faced with firing between 200 and 300 of its administrative employes at a time when it may be compelled to hire at least 500 more workers than it now has. This is the picture:

In approving its 1950 appropriation bill, the House gave PHA a 12 per cent slash in administrative funds. But last week the Senate approved the Administration's public housing bill and there's good reason to believe the House will go along with the measure. If that bill becomes law, PHA would go back to Congress for funds to hire several hundred additional employes to get it into operation.

FHA: Congress is giving Federal Housing Administration more work to do and no money with which to do it.

Two weeks ago FHA warned its employes that it was "broke" and that they would have to gamble on Congress approving funds to pay their salaries. Not a single one of FHA's 5000 employes has refused to gamble—but Congress still hasn't approved the deficiency bill and there's no telling when it will. Meantime, FHA is worried over meeting its payroll.

Congress extended Section 608 of the National Housing Act to June 30—but FHA has no money to carry it out. The FHA staff is being urged to work overtime to get out the additional work. It's estimated that the extention of Section 608 will bring into the Treasury more than a million dollars in fees between now and July 1.

PAY RAISE: AFL President William Green called on Congress to give postal and classified employes a flat $650 pay raise at an employe rally held over the week-end in New York City. Senator Langer (R., N. D.) promised the employe gathering that he would do what he could to get Senate approval of the pay bills. The Administration is opposed to the proposed $650 flat increase.

NOTES: Henry S. Chick, executive assistant of Veterans Administration's claims service, will retire Saturday after 43 years of Federal service. His successor will be Vester S. Garrett of the Columbus branch office. . . Civil Service has suspended the Hatch Act for Federal employes in the town of Forest Heights, Md. Employes there may participate actively in elections to fill town offices and they may be candidates for the offices . . . Civil Service has ruled that a veteran who wins an appeal from it may be restored to his job retroactive to the date he was fired.

UP AGAIN: There was an increase of 1300 Federal employes in the executive branch here during March. The total on April 1 was 214,000, an increase of 12,800 over the past year. The big increases were reported by the Army and Post Ofice Department and the VA. More than 8000 more Federal people were added during the month in the entire country. Navy had the one big decrease. The five agencies that reported more than 1000 increases were Air Force, Army, Post Office, Agriculture, and Treasury.

Perez's Wife Absolved in Death of Man She Pushed

Coroner's Jury Told Confessed Slayer's Spouse Was Trying To Aid Taxi Driver

Red-haired Eunice Elizabeth Jones, common-law wife of self-confessed slayer Crispin Perez, was freed by a coroner's jury yesterday in connection with the death of a man she shoved from a taxicab fender last Saturday.

Miss Jones

The jury ruled that the fractured skull of John A. Mayhugh was accidentally inflicted by the woman. Mayhugh, 39, of 4050 1st st. sw., died in Casualty Hospital following the incident at 1:45 p. m. Saturday.

Miss Jones, the 28-year-old, 150-pound defendant, lives at 314 E st. nw. Her common-law husband, Perez, is awaiting sentence for the slaying of Charles Hines of Madison, Wis., in an Ambassador Hotel room last December.

Detective Sergt. John K. Baker said Miss Jones told him she happened to be in the 200 block of G st. nw., when a man who looked staggering drunk came out of the Purity Lunch and approached a cab parked in front.

She said she knew the driver, Daniel Ripple, was a cripple and went over to ask him if he wanted the man, who was leaning on the cab fender, to get away from there.

When Mayhugh refused to go, she shoved him by the shoulder, she told police. He fell to the curb, and she then left when told an ambulance was coming, Miss Jones said.

Dice Player Held for Jury In Slaying of Youth

The coroner's jury yesterday held John S. Harris, 42, of 42 Myrtle st. ne. for action of the grand jury in connection with the slaying of a 17-year-old youth last Saturday.

Harris

The youth, Henry Hurst, alias James Payne, of 101 I st. nw., died in Gallinger Hospital of a bullet wound in the chest, following a crap game disagreement.

Harris admitted the shooting, according to Detective Thomas I. Herlihy, who captured the man with Detective John Hayes, as he attempted to flee the scene. Herlihy said Harris told him the dead youth had "tried to take his money away from him."

Testimony revealed a fight between friends of Payne and Harris had preceded the shooting.

McGrath Urges Students to Take Part in Politics

Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), chairman of the Democratic National Committee, yesterday urged students at Catholic University to participate in politics to "spread the moral culture" received at college to "help preserve and extend the American way of life."

Addressing a student assembly, McGrath declared that political parties can do good or evil. Keen minds and intellects of educated young men and women are needed to avoid corruption and bad government, McGrath said.

"Hitler's rise to power was not by the will of the German people but due to a small group of men in a party," he said. "The evils of communism are not due to the Russian people but grew out of the bad influence of the Communist Party."

7 Men Named In Gambling Indictments

The District grand jury yesterday indicted seven persons on gambling charges.

Four of the defendants were charged with setting up a crap table. They are John M. Wallace, 54, whose address was listed as 1609 4th st. nw.; John D. Foster, 18, 1508 15th st. nw.; Lee Ward, 40, 144 Thomas st. nw., and James N. Pearson, 1629 4th st. nw.

Charged with operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips was Jacob Rubin, 53, of 4901 5th st. nw. According to police, Rubin took numbers bets at the liquor store he operates at 3125 Mount Pleasant st. nw.

William H. Scott 26, operator of a gas station at 2313 Pennsylvania ave. se., was charged with accepting horse-race bets there.

Roy H. Sansbury, 50, of 2325 Pennsylvania ave. se., was charged with operating a lottery, possession of numbers slips and setting up a gaming table for horse-race bets.

Two persons were indicted on manslaughter charges. They are Frances (Lillie Mae) Walker, 32, of 823 3d st. se., charged with fatally stabbing James M. Posey, 49, of the same address, and Bill Gaskin, 28, of 918½ Desmond's ct. sw., charged with beating Mrs. Aurelia Mosby, 40, of the same address, to death with a stick.

Probe Report On Long Jail Detention Due

Results of an investigation of the four months imprisonment without bail or a court hearing here of Scott W. Fuller, 23, will be made known to the United States attorney today.

Meanwhile, the prisoner, who is a suspect in a $120 larceny, appeared briefly in District Court yesterday and was sent back to District Jail after May 4 was set for argument on his motion to dismiss the indictment.

An investigation of procedure in the case is being conducted by Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray. He said he will make his report to his superior, George Morris Fay.

Fuller, who resides in Sedalia, N. C., was arrested in that State last December and brought here to the jail on a warrant charging him with stealing $120 from a filling station operator last summer.

Since his arrest, Fuller has remained in jail. He obtained an attorney this month. Inquiries then were made about his case at the courthouse, and he was indicted April 18.

The lawyer, T. Emmett McKenzie, has filed a motion to dismiss the indictment. He contends the prolonged detention without bail, court hearing, arraignment and trial is illegal.

No Parade

Georgetown To Clean Up Minus Show

Georgetown will have to clean itself up without a parade.

That was the conclusion of area civic leaders yesterday after they reflected on a chain of events that deprived them of a "clean up" parade which was originally touted for yesterday.

Promoters cancelled the parade when they thought they had been denied a permit by police.

Actually, no permit was turned down because none was applied for.

Capt. Beverly Beach, commanding officer of the Seventh Precinct, who lives at 2300 41st st. nw., said he opposed the parade, but did not deny the paraders a permit because he had no authority to do so.

A letter from Beach attacking the parade idea was written by him as a member of the area "clean-up" committee, he said, and not in his official police capacity.

Mrs. Frank Allen West, head of the sponsoring committee, said plans for the parade were dropped after Beach's letter was received. Before this, high school cadets and, bandsmen and other school children had been alerted and the Board of Trade importuned for a float.

Beach believes that violators of refuse ordinances will not be cajoled by such pageantry. "Firm action" through "routine and effective enforcement" will do the job, he said. He promised to continue his efforts in this regard.

He also said publicity of this nature would give the area a bad name.

"The remainder of the city could well assume from extensive publicity that Georgetown is inhabited by careless and thoughtless people who need constant surveillance to keep their premises clean," Beach wrote.

"There are only isolated locations in this precinct in which persons of high repute do not live and own property."

He also said that parades were a nuisance to participants, pedestrians and police officers.

ADA Appeals For Young's Replacement

Group Challenges Commissioner's Fitness, Objects To Home Rule Stand

President Truman was urged yesterday to replace John Russell Young as District Commissioner when his term expires May 17.

The plea was made by the Washington Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action in a letter to the President. The letter signed by Chapter President Benjamin C. Sigal, said that Young should not be appointed to a fourth term on grounds that: (1) he is not in sympathy with home rule for the District, and (2) is not qualified.

Meeting Tonight on Candidates

Sigal advised the President that the organization was not supporting any candidate for the office at this time, but hoped to have some recommendations soon. It is understood that the group's executive committee will meet tonight to consider a list of candidates.

Key paragraphs of Sigal's letter follow:

"At this juncture in the history of our city and our country, it is our conviction that persons holding high office of Commissioner should believe firmly in home rule for the District and your program of civil rights. The brand of democracy we have in the District is universally used as a criterion evaluating the quality of democracy in our country.

Qualifications Doubted

"In the light of these considerations, it is the conviction of the Washington Chapter, Americans for Democratic Action, that Mr. John Russell Young should not be reappointed as Commissioner of the District when his term expires. We believe that he is not in sympathy with the principles set forth above. We believe, furthermore, that he does not have the qualifications necessary for a Commissioner of the District.

"We are not supporting any other candidate at this time. However, we are investigating the qualifications of various persons ourselves, and hope that we shall have some recommendations soon. Our only interest in this matter is that a qualified person be appointed who vigorously supports your program of home rule for the District and your program for civil rights."

Girl Seriously Bitten by Dogs Near Home

The 5-year-old daughter of an Army colonel was attacked and badly bitten by two dogs last night near her home at 100 Lee ave., Wellington, about four miles south of Alexandria.

The child, Candice Temple, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Harry D. Temple, was found bleeding about 7:30 p. m. by her mother, who went looking for the child after her maid reported she heard dogs barking in the neighborhood.

The child was taken to Alexandria Hospital and later transferred to Walter Reed Hospital, where doctors said she was in serious condition with multiple lacerations and deep puncture wounds about the ears, legs and shoulders.

Fairfax County police said they believed the dogs belonged to someone in nearby Tauxemont. A check will be made today, police said, to determine the circumstances of the attack and find the owner of the dogs.

House Group Votes $10,000 To Cabbie Shot by Policeman

BULLET'S COURSE—Mrs. June C. Dollar points to spot where bullet entered right side of her husband's neck and the spot in the back of his left shoulder, where the bullet now rests

By John London
Post Reporter

The House Judiciary Committee yesterday approved a $10,000 grant to a cab driver maimed by a District policeman's bullet—in an argument over the cabbie's headlights—seven years ago.

It has taken June C. Dollar, 52, of 5300 Gallatin st. nw. that long to get any action. Even now the Commissioners oppose the bill, introduced by Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.), as an "undesirable precedent."

The bullet crashed through Dollar's neck, severing a vein and artery. Never removed, the bullet recently inched down toward his left shoulder blade.

The vein and artery have hooked together, causing arterial blood to pump through the vein, according to his doctor. As a result:

Dollar's left hand is largely paralyzed, his left eye and left ear function poorly, the veins on the left side of his face appear to be bursting, and frequently snap and bleed when he coughs or sneezes; he suffers dizzy spells, nausea and nose bleeds, especially in the summer; his neck, once comfortable in a size 14½ shirt, requires an unbuttoned size 17.

Pvt. Warren V. Wilson halted a cab in which Dollar was riding about 2:30 a. m. February 28, 1942, and demanded to know why only the cowl lights and not the headlights were on.

The policeman was off duty, in civilian clothes, and Dollar thought he and his friend who was driving, Jack C. Collins, 3537 11th st. nw., were being held up.

Dollar protested about being stopped, thinking the headlights were on. Then, he recalls:

"This fellow came around to the right side of the cab where I was sitting and asked: 'What you got to do with it?'

"I locked the door—he grabbed the handle and shouted 'Open the door or I'll shoot you.'

"Then he fired through the closed window, glass shattered . . . next I knew I was in the hospital."

The policeman told police Dollar raised the cab window on his left hand, that he couldn't reach his badge in his left hand. So, the officer said, he produced his revolver "for identification purposes." And the gun just accidentally discharged.

Officer Wilson was discharged from the police force. He was sentenced to 8 to 24 months for assault with a dangerous weapon—but the sentence was suspended. He never served time.

Meanwhile, Dollar's wife, Eva, 49, drives a cab to keep up payments on the home they're buying, to pay for food, and doctor's bills. Dollar rents a cab, drives until he gets dizzy spells, or nosebleeds.

Jury Refuses To Indict Kelley In Fatal Quarrel

The District grand jury refused to indict Robert Franklin Kelley, 24, of 1412 Decatur st. nw., in the death of his father-in-law, James E. McKeever, 46, of 904 Hamilton st. nw., following an argument.

According to a coroner's report, the cause of McKeever's death was heart failure. He had been suffering from a chronic heart condition. It had been testified that excitement from the argument could have brought on the man's death.

The fatal quarrel began after Kelley had begun an argument with his estranged wife, Mrs. Patricia Ann Kelley, according to a spokesman of the United States Attorney. McKeever then intervened and dropped during a tussle, reporters were told.

Society Unit Meets Today

The training section of the Society for Personnel Administration will meet at 7:30 p. m. today at the National Archives auditorium, 8th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

First Trial 'Unfair'

Rehearing Ordered in Traffic Suit

A re-hearing of a $70,000 damage suit by a former inmate of Virginia prison camp against a truck company for injuries suffered in a traffic accident was ordered yesterday by the United States Court of Appeals.

The appellate court's opinion asserted that the plaintiff, Raymond Hockaday, 24, was not given a fair trial in District Court "by reason of the kind and extent of the cross-examination and the admissions elicted thereby." In the lower court proceedings, heard by Judge Jennings Bailey, the suit was not allowed.

The opinion, written by Judge George C. Sweeney, visiting from Boston, specified that cross-examination relative to the condition under which the suspended sentence was revoked, and reference to Hockaday's failure to enter military service were not properly a part of the impeachment process against his testimony.

Hockaday, a construction worker, was struck by a truck owned by the Red Line, Inc., on August 10, 1945, while he was working with a road repair gang on Lee hwy. near Falls Church. He was hospitalized for six months with a broken leg and head injuries.

Hockaday was arrested May 16, 1943, on an assault charge and received a suspended sentence on the provision that he enter military service. The suspended sentence was later revoked when he did not enter service and he was sentenced to three years in jail.

High School Music Contest Launched by Hamilton Bank

Two announcements yesterday gave impetus to the cause of music in Washington schools.

William J. Waller, president of the Hamilton National Bank, announced plans for a city-wide contest of musical talent in Washington high schools. Station WOL will broadcast a series of 26 programs which will go on the air next fall.

Solo performers, both instrumental and vocal, may compete. Students in all public and parochial high schools in the District of Columbia will be eligible, regardless of race, color, or creed.

Two winners will be selected at the end of the 26 broadcasts—one vocal and one instrumental. Scholarships to any accredited college of their choice will be awarded to these two students by the Hamilton National Bank. There also will be trophies for runners-up and recognition for the schools providing the winners.

The Hamilton Bank hopes this contest will provide a stepping-stone for outstanding talent. The bank will present the semifinals and finals in live shows from one of Washington's auditoriums, and also to be broadcast.

Two representatives of the women's committee of the National Symphony orchestra announced that the orchestra would take steps to increase its contribution to the student musical scene in Washington.

A recent meeting in Pittsburgh of the association of women's committees for symphony orchestras disclosed that Washington lags behind other cities in its symphony programs for students. Mrs. Theodore W. Dominick, chairman of the women's committee, and Mrs. Warren E. Ege, recording secretary, brought back details on student concerts in other cities.

Mrs. Ege's report states that, of the 24 cities represented at the Pittsburgh meetings, only Washington provides student concerts solely in schools. Other cities' orchestras present concerts in regular halls or in both concert halls and schools.

A meeting of the governing council of the women's committee of the orchestra will hear suggestions from Mrs. Dominick and Mrs. Ege for a committee to study local needs and possibilities and for a young artists' contest.

Howard Mitchell, newly appointed conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra, was enthusiastic about both announcements. He said, "The more interest is aroused in these student concerts, the more the orchestra can do for its younger adiences. These organizations and contests are a fine thing for young music students and naturally they help to build interest in the orchestra just as the orchestra increases the love of music in the youngsters."

Job Loser Sues to Collect On Truman Election Upset

Garland E. Taylor, an attorney at 910 17th st. nw., claimed in a District Court suit yesterday that he lost his job after President Truman's election victory and asked $32,250 damages.

Defendant in the suit is American Enterprise Association, Inc., 1614 K st. nw., which according to the suit supplies to members of Congress "objective" analyses of pending national legislation and digests of major economic subjects.

Taylor said he was hired to do legal and quasi-legal work for a year's term by the association beginning October 15, 1948, under contracts to aid in the information program which he said was devoid of political implication.

According to the suit, on November 18, Guy E. Wyatt, executive vice president of the association, breached the contract. Wyatt said the association would not continue its contract because of the "surprising results of the 1948 presidential elections," the suit relates.

The "surprise" made it necessary that Wyatt employ persons prominently connected with the incoming administration and Congress, the suit quoted Wyatt as saying.

Taylor is represented by Attorney David S. Allshouse.

GI Cleared In Family Crash Deaths

A Camp Lee private was cleared of responsibility yesterday in the Easter Monday truck-auto collision near Clarksburg, Md., which left only a 7-year old boy alive out of a family of four.

Trial Magistrate Alger Y. Barbee freed Pvt. Robert J. Coleman, 18, of three charges of manslaughter and one of reckless driving after a preliminary hearing in Rockville Police Court.

The jurist said he was giving the soldier the benefit of a reasonable doubt.

Private Coleman was the driver of the Army tractor-trailer which collided with a car driven by Lewis E. O'Hara, 33, a Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone repairman of 10116 Brunett ave., Silver Spring.

O'Hara, his wife Catherine, 29, and their 5-year-old daughter, Sandra, were killed. Their 7-year-old son, Lewis, jr., was seriously injured but is now in satisfactory condition in Suburban Hospital. The family was returning home from an Easter outing.

Barbee said he could only guess what happened, since there was no direct testimony and there was no skid marks on the road, which was wet at the time of the accident.

New Members Sought By Handicapped Club

The Physically Handicapped Club, local unaffiliated group conducting a membership drive, will meet at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the Willard Hotel.

The club, which tries to aid the handicapped in solving personal and employment problems, will hear Miss Anita Blair, young blind woman on a nation-wide tour, discuss "Safety." Election of officers also is scheduled.

Also to be displayed are a model doll house, and examples of art, crocheting, ceramics, soap carvings and collections, Mrs. Waller said.

Tenant of Naylor Gardens Wins in Cooperative Fight

The Municipal Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that a cooperative purchaser of an apartment at Naylor Gardens could not evict a leasehold tenant there.

The right of the tenant, Charles P. Liff of 2830 31st st. se., to keep his apartment, had been challenged by George W. Owens of 2656 15th st. nw., who purchased the unit. Owens appealed a Municipal Court decision by Judge Nadine Gallagher, made on February 2.

Liff has occupied his apartment since 1943, when the Government's Defense Homes Corporation owned the Naylor Gardens development. Naylor Gardens was sold in February, 1948, to the Veterans Cooperative Housing Association.

However, tenants' leases were renewable at the option of the tenants under the new ownership until termination of rent control in the District of Columbia, according to a lease amendment quoted by the court.

The decision, written by Associates Judge Brice Clagett, stated that "Veterans Cooperative bargained away the right to dispossess" Liff until the conclusion of rent control, and that Owens was "bound by that bargain."

More than 300 of the 748 units in Naylor Gardens still are occupied by "holdover" tenants. Some tenants are unable to join the cooperative because they are not veterans.

Pushcart Sleeper Transferred to Jail

Charles L. Staples, 48-year-old junkman, is quite fond of his pushcart.

Arrested as he slumbered in his pushcart off Massachusetts ave. nw., Saturday, Staples was found guilty yesterday in Municipal Court of drunkenness and was sentenced to pay $30 or serve 30 days in jail.

Police Pvt. R. J. Glover testified that he had vainly attempted to awaken Staples and finally wheeled the defendant in his pushcart to the First Precinct.

Staples lacked the money to pay his fine and as he turned to go to jail, he asked the officer:

"Will you please look out for my pushcart while I'm gone?"

Falls Church Warns Tax Delinquents

Falls Church will crack down on its 750 delinquent taxpayers if they don't pay their personal property taxes by May 31, the Falls Church City Council decided last night.

In another action, the council elected Dr. John Robert Miles, 210 S. Lee st., to the city school board, to take the post vacated by resignation of Samuel Dennis. Miles is chairman of the education committee of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and president of the combined Parent-Teachers' Association of Falls Church.

Miles was elected by a 6 to 3 vote over Joseph Seay, 809 Hillwood ave., a real estate man, whose name had been proposed by Leon Horowitz of the Falls Church Chamber of Commerce.

The council action on delinquent taxes came after City Treasurer James E. Ferguson told the council that over the past five years there were $9980 in delinquent personal property. About 750 taxpayers were said to be delinquent at present.

The council picked John Graham, a member of the City Planning Commission, to a vacancy on the Northern Virginia Regional Planning Commission.

Painting Bill Introduced

A pictorial history of aviation would be painted in the blank spaces of a historical frieze inside the Capitol Rotunda under legislation introduced in both Houses yesterday.

Sponsors of the legislation are Senator Theodore Francis Green (D., R. I.) and Representative Aime J. Forand (D., R. I.) .Their bills would authorize up to $20,000 for the job.

The frieze now shows such scenes of America's past as Columbus' Discovery of the New World, Landing of the Pilgrims and Discovery of Gold in California. Of the 300-foot strip, about 26 feet are vacant.

Judge's Dog Lost

Municipal Court Judge Aubrey Fennell's namsake "Boofer" has gone astray and the judge, Mrs. Fennell and their nine grandchildren want him back.

Boofer is an 8 or 9-year-old brown-and-white collie wearing tag number 2814. He was last seen heading for Rock Creek Park Saturday.

Judge Fennell used to be called "Boofer" himself in his younger days and the dog was given the judge's old nickname.

Anyone knowing of Boofer's whereabouts has been asked to notify the Fennells at 1843 Lamont st. nw., Adams 6817.

North Capitol

Published charges that delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations are using their position in the federation to further their private business interests were emphatically denied last night by the federation's first vice president.

Speaking at a meeting of the North Capitol Citizens Association, federation Vice President Baxter Smith, said the published charges were "completely untrue" and that he intended to bring the matter under discussion at a meeting of the federation.

Forty-three members attended the meeting in the Atonement Lutheran Church, N. Capitol st. and Rhode Island ave. ne. They voted agreement with Baxter that federation delegates had not misused their positions.

Dartmouth Club Elects Harwood To Presidency

Herbert H. Harwood, executive assistant here for the New York Central Railway, last night was elected president of the Dartmouth Club of Washington. He succeeds Percy H. Russell jr., who was named to the executive board.

The election was held at a dinner attended by about 200 alumni in the Hotel 2400.

Other officers elected unanimously were: Harold H. Leich and Lawrence C. Reeves, vice presidents; Karl M. Dollak, secretary, and Donald H. C. McKay, treasurer.

Alexandria Charter Unit Elects King as Chairman

Stanley King, a lawyer and United States Commissioner in Alexandria, was elected chairman of the Alexandria Charter Commission at its organizational meeting last night.

Other officers named by the seven-man commission which was appointed last week to overhaul the city's 17-year-old charter, are: Charles M. Jones, Alexandria manager of the Virginia Electric & Power Co., vice chairman; and Thomas Moncure, lawyer, secretary.

Other members of the commission are W. Bruce Silcox, government business specialist; Edmund F. Ticer, railroad official; Don K. Price, public administration specialist, and Edward S. Holland, jr., surveyor.

One need for the commission's work became apparent early in the meeting when it was learned there is no such thing as an up-to-date copy of the city charter.

Amendments made by the General Assembly are listed only in the acts of the General Assembly, the commission was informed. The commission asked the city to compile complete copies.

The commission tentatively agreed that its schedule will include a few weeks of familiarizing itself with various city charters and with city problems traceable to the Alexandria charter.

In other actions, the commission (1) Agreed that all suggestions from individuals or groups be submitted to the commission in writing; (2) Voted to ask for a joint meeting with the City Council next week to discuss the job to be done and the appropriating of money to finance it; and (3) Agreed tentatively to meet weekly on Wednesday evenings.

Natives Favor 4 More Aides For West

The Society of Natives last night went on record as favoring the appointment of four additional assistant corporation counsels for the District of Columbia.

The resolution, adopted at a meeting at the Mayflower Hotel, favored increasing the number of new assistants to seven should a sales tax be enacted. The additional three would be assigned to handle sales tax regulations.

The society's action followed a discussion by Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West on the history and functions of the corporation counsel's office.

The group also favored the Harris bill to erect a stadium in the District and opposed sections of the Kefauver home-rule bill which grant suffrage to residents with voting status in the States and with city provide congressional review of legislative acts of the local council.

Georgetown

The Georgetown Citizens Association last night resolved to petition Congress for $159,000 for restoration of beds for tuberculosis patients in the Glenn Dale Sanitorium.

The action followed an appeal by Dr. James Gannon of the Citizens Committee to Aid Tuberculosis Control. The association meeting was held at St. John's Parish Hall, Potomac and O sts. nw.

Mid-City

The Mid-City Citizens Association, meeting last night at Thomson School, 12th and L sts. nw., voted to urge the Senate and House District Committees for immediate action on a District slum clearance program.

The group also went on record in favor of the Kefauver home-rule bill and the Harris bill for a District stadium.

Shipley Terrace

More than 80 members of the Shipley Terrace Citizens Association last night met at their new headquarters, 2503 Southern ave. se., and nominated officers for the coming year.

Howard Williams, 3449 23d st. se., was nominated to oppose the incumbent Frederick Belen. Other officers were renominated without opposition. Elections will be at the group's May meeting.

President Belen said the group agreed to match a proposed $200 gift of Builder Paul T. Stone for equipping a playground that Stone has offered.

Oldest Inhabitants

"President Truman is the greatest friend the Negro ever had," Senator Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) told the Association of Oldest Inhabitants, Inc., last night at its annual Ladies' Night meeting at the Odd Fellows Hall, 9th and T sts. nw.

The Democratic Party is trying to carry out the President's platform in the Eighty-first Congress, he also told more than 250 listeners at the meeting.

The association honored Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, Washington civic leader, as the "Outstanding Woman of the Age." Mrs. Terrell was present at the meeting.

Postlude

Agi Jambor Mixes Music And History

By Paul Hume

History, novelty and great music appeared in unusual measure on Agi Jambor's piano recital last night in Phillips Gallery.

History came in several shapes: a sonata by an unknown composer who composed it shortly before his death in the concentration camp at Auschwitz must have brought unhappy memories to the performer. Three Etudes by Franz Liszt, numbered Opus 1, proved gracile, though overshadowed by his later study in F Minor. His Chapel of William Tell was revived but found the light of day too strong.

Novelty, in addition to the Auschwitz sonata and the unknown pages from Liszt, was present in an Elegy Dance of George Rochberg of Philadelphia. Rochberg's music has been heard here before both at the Phillips and National Galleries, but this was the first hearing of his recent dance.

Miss Jambor, who has pever before played as well here or with as much variety in color and dynamics, arranged her program with keen intelligence. The most recent music came first, then Beethoven, Liszt, and finally Bach. More program builders shoul examine the content of their repertoire rather than to proceed in the customary chronological order.

Beethoven was represented in his C Major sonata, named for Count Waldstein. Its first movement was broadly outlined with good tempos. The slow movement was sung as gently as it is possible to deliver it. Here Jambor's tone was at its most beautiful. The finale has always seemed a bit repetitious in its insistence on the dminished seventh chord and its empty recounting of the rondo theme. Steadier pacing would have given it more solidity.

The program closed with the B Flat Partita of Bach. Here the pianist accented form rather than color differences. The music is cool, but can be varied more than it was last night and still remain within proper Bachian bounds. Miss Jambor's audience was large, enthusiastic, and faithful to the point of standing throughout the program.

Mazzeo Rites To Be Held Here Today

A requiem mass for Salvatore Mazzeo, 69, founder of the S. Mazzeo and Sons, Inc., who died Sunday, will be said at 9 a. m. today at the St. Francis de Sales Church, 20th st. and Rhode Island ave. ne. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Private Perrus, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Perrus, 1323 Spring rd. nw., was a native of Connellsvill, Pa., and a graduate of Connellsville High School.

He moved to the District in 1936 with his family and worked as a bartender at the Showboat Restaurant here till he entered the Army in 1941.

He is survived by his wife, the former Angeline Nichols whom he married in 1943, and a 5-year-old daughter, Louisa, both of Aliquippa, Pa.

Five brothers also survive: Constantine of 2246 Washington ave., and Photy, Teddy, Harry, and Chris, all of the Spring rd. address.

Dr. R. D. Moore Dies at 66, Former Anthropologist

Dr. Riley D. Moore, 64, Washington osteopath and former Smithsonian Institute anthropologist and explorer, died unexpectedly Sunday night at the Washington Sanitarium.

Dr. Moore

Funeral service have been set for 2:30 p. m. Wednesday at All Souls' Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Dr. Moore, a native of Cherokee, Iowa, was graduated from the American School of Osteopathy, Kirksville, Mo., in 1907, and entered practice at Grand Junction, Colo. He came here in 1912 and joined the Smithsonian's Department of Anthropology. His home was at 3421 Brown st. nw.

In 1914, he visited Alaska under Smithsonian Institution auspices and, according to the United States Museum Report for that year, gathered a 630-piece ethnological collection on St. Lawrence Island which was the most thorough of its type ever presented the museum.

During his career here as an anthropologist, Dr. Moore practiced osteopathy in the evenings. In 1918 he resigned from the Smithsonian and devoted full time to osteopathy. His offices were at 1025 Connecticutic ave. nw.

A man of varied interests, he specialized in collecting Chinese coins as a hobby. At the time of his death his collection contained more than 2000 coins. A charter member of the Washington Lion's Club, he addressed that group on Chinese coins last Wednesday.

Dr. Moore, who taught himself Chinese to facilitate his coin collecting, also was an amateur magician and a former president of the Society of American Magicians. He had authored various magazine articles on subjects ranging from osteopathy and Eskimo life to history and medicine.

Although he never practiced law, he was a graduate of National University Law School here. He was a member of All Souls Unitarian Church and belonged to various osteopathic, anthropolical and exploring clubs.

Dr. Moore is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ruth Collette Moore, of the Brown st. address; a daughter, Mrs. Juan Yriart, whose husband, formerly first secretary of the Uraguayan Embassy, now is stationed at Annecy, France; a sister, Mrs. Margaret Thornton, Salt Lake City, and three brothers, Berwyn T., Louisville, Ky., Gilchrist, San Francisco, Calif. and Zene Moore, of Oakland, Calif.

Harris & Ewing

First Lady at Annual Lunch Of YWCA

By Genevieve Reynolds

Mrs. Truman greeted 475 women leaders, diplomatic and official wives in 25 minutes yesterday when she appeared as guest of honor at a reception preceding the Young Women's Christian Association's annual luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel.

The First Lady, an honorary member of the Y.W.C.A., wore a black dress, black straw sailor and a white gardenia corsage. Because she was entertaining at luncheon at Blair House, Mrs. Truman dashed away to welcome her guests.

"America needs to teach better understanding of ourselves as well as better understanding of other people," Miss Mabel Studebaker, president of the National Education Association, told the luncheon audience in a discussion of "What America Can Teach."

According to the educator, America also needs to teach a greater sense of civic and community responsibility plus a greater willingness to help others help themselves.

Deploring the overemphasized materalistic phase of American life shown to other peoples, the educator called upon the Christian women to help interest the moral and spiritual qualities of this Nation to foreign countries.

Need Free Press

Miss Studebaker said that she did not agree with the advocates of a censored press. "We need to keep free discussion as a basis of our own life so that we may share our freedom with others," she explained.

Americans need three types of bones, suggested the speaker. She enumerated them as (1) a wish bone for people of sterling character and true values to understand other peoples; (2) a jew bone to share our ideas with others; (3) a backbone for courage when discouraged.

Miss Mabel R. Cook, executive director of the Washington YWCA, assisted by 25 staff and class members, portrayed various services offered by the YWCA in a brief fashion show.

Assisting Miss Cook were Miss Irne Gooch, representating Strong Residence where some 7355 transients from every State in the Union and several foreign countries found a room in 1948, in addition to 211 permanent residents: Miss Zelma Mellott, room registery service that helped find rooms for 3580 girls last year.

Others depicting the various services offered by the Y included Eleanor Harris, fencing; Eleanor Edwardson, golf; Mrs. Lissa Cooley and her son Larry, family night swim and ladies night out: Jean Hunger of Western High School, Y-Teens; Ann Browne and Nancy Jean Rhoades, Kamp Kahlert; Buddy Prosise, Club Teen; Mrs. M. S. Dillingham, art classes; Mrs. Thornton Owens, cooking; Mrs. Elizabeth M. Williams, millinery; Mrs. Stuart Rice, dressmaking; Margaret Holdeman, Helen Johnson, Mrs. Doroth Haltiwanger, Olga Bloecher, Rosemary Subcasky, Jean Batty Lolita Rueca, world fellowship.

Mrs. Morgan Reports

In her annual report, Mrs. Sidney Morgan, treasurer, revealed that the YWCA has a 1948 deficit of $10,958.78 despite the fact that over 800,000 people received individual services. She attributed the deficit to a decrease of funds given by the Community Chest, which failed to make its quota in the annual 1948 drive.

Mrs. Howard G. Nichols, president, YWCA board of directors, presided and introduced the distinguished guests at the head table, among whom were Representative Edith Nourse Rogers.

Supreme Court wives present included Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice; Mrs. Wiley Rutledge, Mrs. Robert Jackson and Mrs. Harold Burton.

Cabinet wives at the head table were Mrs. Julius Krug, Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, Mrs. Charles Brannan, and Mrs. Charles Sawyer.

From the diplomatic corps came Lady Franks Senora de Dillon, Senora de Castro, Lady Berendsen, Mme. Ala, Mrs. Norman Makin, Mme. Tan Sonora de Gonzales Arevalo, Mrs. Corea, Mme. Reuchlin, Mme. Berard, Mme. Bruggmann, Mme. Le Gallis, Mrs. Charles King, Senora de Diaz, Senora de Acosta, and Countess Moltke-Huitfeldt.

Health Program Opposed

United States Daughters of 1812 yesterday joined the Daughters of the American Revolution, Daughters of American Colonists, and Daughters of Colonial Wars in opposition to Federal aid to education an dthe national compulsory health program.

The action was taken in the third day of the society's Fifty-Seventh Associate Council which closes today at the Shoreham Hotel.

The society, whose members trace their lineage to persons who served America during the War of 1812 also urged Congress to fortify Alaska against possible attack or infiltration from Communists.

In other resolutions announced by Mrs. H. B. Diefenbach, resolutions chairman, the organization suggested Congress include all important documents of the 1812 period in the collection on the Freedom Train, with full recognition of the Treaty of Ghent, 1814.

Also the group requested that the 1950 census cover every family in this country instead of just every twentieth family, as has been proposed. The patriotic women asked Congress for legislation making it compulsory that the American flag occupy the place of honor whenever displayed on American territory, except at Lake Success where the United Nations flag has the honor spot. And they asked for laws protecting the flag.

In another resolution the society protested employment by the Government of any persons affiliated with the Communist Party or any of its branches.

At the society's banquet last evening, James E. Palmer, jr., special assistant to the Attorney General, traced parallels between the War of 1812 and modern thinking.

He emphasized the urgency of the Government's "house cleaning" program then as well as now, stating that the President's Loyalty Board is a "wall of strength in ferreting out undesirable elements in the Government."

During the morning sessions, which were presided over by the first vice president national, Mrs. William L. Bond of Schenectady, N. Y., membership increase awards were given the Florida and Pennsylvania chapters. The Georgia and Kentucky chapters won awards for their publicity during the past year and other membership prizes were given the New York and Florida groups. Then reports were read by the national officers, chairmen of standing committees and State presidents.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Young Wife Who Is Happy in Her Home Life With Husband and Children Has Strange Fear Of Guests, Whether Kin, Neighbors or Salesmen

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young mother of two small children who are very active, and we have a small two-room home that is very crowded, yet cozy and pleasant. I work pretty hard to keep things orderly and clean, but I don't mind that.

I have a very nice husband who is ambitious and kind to us. His folks and mine all live close by. John's folks are quiet people, but mine are two-faced and jealous of each other, each trying to be a little "bigger" than the other. It may be that I also am one who is jealous or tries to be "big," but I don't think so. I don't think that is my problem.

Would Finer Home Ease Her Tension

I AM afraid of people. If a salesman or neighbor, or even my sister or mother comes into my home I tremble and feel ill and do silly things. I blush, put things in the wrong place, look at them like I want them to leave immediately, etc. I don't want to be rude and I try very hard to hide my discomfort, but it can't be done.

Once in a while I let down and enjoy company, but soon my interest fades and I feel shaky again. I appear very happy when I am outdoors, but I get this tight nervous feeling indoors. I tell my family and any others—if they seem interested—that a bigger house is what I need to calm my nerves. But I honestly think that is just an alibi to excuse my actions.

What do you think? Would it help if I had a bigger house with more conveniences, or maybe lived in another environment? Please help me understand myself, or give me some advice.

E. A.

Childhood Hurts Underlie Anxiety

DEAR E. A.: You describe your folks as being two-faced and jealous, each trying to make a bigger showing than the other, which is another way of saying that they all suffer from inferiority feelings.

In trying to build themselves up, they tear the next fellow down, and in the course of this struggle they knocked all the fight out of you long before you were grown. That's why you are afraid of people—salesman, neighbor, mother and sister included.

It is my impression that you are sensitive, open-hearted, eager to please; that your instincts are finer than your family's, more civilized; that you are in all probability the nicest person on your side of the house, and consequently just never could stand up to their harsh, brutal, aggressive attitudes.

A child's experiences in relation to family determine his expectancy of life in general. He expects to get from the world at large the same treatment his family dealt him. And if you were conditioned to fear derogatory remarks and other rude trampling of your personality, in the bosom of your family, it is inevitable that you would feel unstrung in facing "company" as time went on.

Needs Expert Help in Getting Growth

YOUR nervous reaction to guests is shame-faced as well as fearful; as if you felt (in your bones) unfit for social interchange,—unable to speak with others on equal terms, or to make any move without becoming a target of scorn or ridicule. In short you feel threatened and stymied—wanting to be friendly and not daring to try.

Your hunch is correct: a bigger home, better furnished, isn't the cure for your distress, although it might give you more pleasure on the side. A home in another environment, far removed from your family, might ease your anxious tensions somewhat—but only temporarily, while the family stayed away. Their visits would be as frightening as ever.

You need two forms of psychological help, namely: 1. Help in arriving at a valid appreciation of your really superior self. 2. Help in outgrowing childish dread of what others may think or say. Then you'll be free within, free to enjoy life in the simplest circumstances.

M. H.

Women From Latin America To Study Here

With the arrival here of Miss Graciela Escuedero Moscoso, Ecuadorian social service official, the State Department has announced an international exchange program in cooperation with the Children's Bureau of the Labor Department. There will be a series of three-month tours by Latin American women to observe social and civic work techniques as practiced in the United States. Five other women from three Latin American Republics are scheduled to arrive this month.

The latter group includes Miss Maris Luiza Moniz de Aragao of Brazil, Mrs. Carmen Gordea Rigossa of Mexico, Mrs. Lucia Armand Ugon de Gardiol of Uruguay, and Mrs. Aurelia Rocha Lozano and Mrs. Ana Berta Romero de Campos, also of Mexico.

After a short period of basic orientation in Washington, each of the visitors will follow a separate itinerary until mid-June for field studies and observations, living as guests in the homes of members of the sponsoring organizations in the different communities visited.

From June 16 to July 5 they will be in New York, where a joint program has been planned for the entire group. Following their stay in New York, the visitors will reassemble in Washington for a few days to discuss their observations, exchange ideas and evaluate their programs before returning home.

Bridge Club and Bake Sale To Benefit Cancer Drive

A bridge party and bake sale sponsored by three clubs to raise funds for the cancer drive was held yesterday at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Harry V. Schnabel. This is one of the benefits planned by the Women's division of the current cancer drive, of which Mrs. Louis H. Renfrow is chairman.

Mrs. Schnabel represented the Political Study Club for this triple-club benefit, Mrs. Herman Ward represented the Pro Bonata Club and Mrs. Charles P. Keyser represented the Tuesday Canteen Club.

Mrs. Joseph Robert Brewer, the former Miss Clara Lucy Ann Colella, was married Sunday afternoon at St. Gabriel's Church. The Rev. John Roeder performed the ceremony and a reception followed at the Knights of Columbus Hall. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy J. Colella and Mr. Brewer is the son of Mrs. Frank Brewer, all of Washington. Following their honeymoon in Atlantic City, the newlyweds will live in the Capital.

Mme. Rybar Entertains at Tea To Show Daughter's Portrait

Mme. Vladimir Rybar entertained at cocktails yesterday to show a recently painted portrait of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Geauque, by the noted artist, Alfred Jonniaux. The party was held from 6 to 8 o'clock at Mr. Jonniaux's studio, and Mrs. Jonniaux and Mme. Rybar received the guests together.

Mrs. Geauque's portrait is one of the most beautiful in Mr. Jonniaux's outstanding collection, and it is the artist's most recent work. The subject's fair hair and lovely coloring are admirably set off in green velvet portrait dress against a gray background.

Diplomats and their wives and residential and official society attended the party yesterday. In the gathering were the Dominican Ambassador and Senora de Thomen, the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de la Colina, the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Dillon, the Ambassador of Yugoslavia, Sava N. Kosanovic, Mme. Mica Trbojevic of Yugoslavia, and Dr. Vasillije Perendija, second secretary of the Yugoslav Embassy.

Also, the French Counselor and Mme. Dreux, Mme. Thor Thors, wife of the Icelandic Minister; Emile Mattar of the Lebanese Legation, Senora de Corominas, wife of the Argentine Ambassador to the AOS; Senator and Mrs. Clinton P. Anderson, Senator and Mrs. Dennis Chavez, Representative and Mrs. John Davis Lodge, Representative and Mrs. Clinton D. McKinnon, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon P. King.

Mme. Rybar was assisted at the party by two daughters, Mrs. Rowe Saltzman and Mrs. Robert Blake.

Visitors From Siam Entertained at Lunch

The Siamese Under-Secretary of State for Commerce, P. Narraj, and Kenneth Patton, advisor to His Majesty's Government in Siam, whose visits to Washington coincide, shared honors yesterday at a luncheon given at La Salle du Bois by the First Secretary of the Siamese Embassy Chao Dilokrit Kridakon.

P. Pibulsonggram, newly arrived Second Secretary at the Siamese Embassy, was a guest, as well as Miss Dorothy Ward and S. Rips.

Anzac Day Celebrated By New Zealand Envoy

The usual Anzac Day ceremonies were held this year at the New Zealand Embassy, esterday's gathering was in the garden, with the Ambassador, Sir Carl Berendsen, and Lady Berendsen acting as host and hostess. Addresses were made by Ambassador Berendsen, Gen. John Chapman, head of the Australian Military Mission, and the Australian First Secretary, Owen Davis.

Anzac Day ceremonies celebrate the day the Australian-New Zealand Army Corps landed on Gallipoli, Turkey, in 1915. Those in attendance yesterday included staff members and their wives of the New Zealand and Australian embassies. After the addresses, tea was served.

Israel's President Feted at Blair House

The flag of Israel is flying high above the Shoreham. Dr. Chaim Weizmann, President of Israel, and Mrs. Weizmann arrived in town Sunday evening, and are stopping at the Shoreham Hotel. A luncheon in their honor was given yesterday by President and Mrs. Truman at Blair House.

Other guests were the Secretary of State and Mrs. Dean Acheson, Vice President Alben W. Barkley, Mrs. Max O'Rell Truitt, Senator Margaret Chase Smith, the Speaker of the House, Sam Rayburn, the Naval Aide to the President, Capt. Robert L. Dennison, and Mrs. Dennison, and the Ambassador of Israel, Eliahu Elath and Mrs. Elath.

Miss Mary Reid Engaged to Wed

Mrs. Harry Fielding Reid has announced the engagement of her grand-daughter, Miss Mary Fielding Reid, to Boyd Edward McKnight of New York, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKnight. The wedding will take place in Washington on June 25.

Miss Reid studied at the Bryn Mawr School in Baltimore, and was graduated from the Brearley School in New York. She made her debut at the Bachelors Cotillion in Baltimore and for a time appeared on the stage. She is now in regional planning work.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Dr. Francis Fielding Reid of Baltimore and Mrs. M. Fielding Reid of New York.

Dr. Katz Talks at Luncheon Given by City of Hope

Over 350 persons were present at the City of Hope Auxiliary luncheon yesterday at the Hotel 2400 held for the benefit of the streptomycin and bed fund of the Washington Auxiliary.

Following a short talk by Dr. Sol Katz, the movie, "The Greater City of Hope" was shown, which depicted the new sanitorium at Duarte, Calif. Mrs. Benjamin Brill was chairman of the luncheon.

Play Series To Honor Embassy Tots

The Children's Studios of Speech and Dramatic Arts are holding an international drama festival honoring Great Britain, Ireland, China, Russia and the Netherlands, starting April 28 and lasting through May 8.

Children from the five embassies will be guests of honor for the particular performance about their country. An English play, "Princess and the Players," will be presented Thursday, April 28, at 8:30 p. m. in the little auditorium at the Studios; a Chinese play, "The Jade Heart," will be presented Saturday, April 30, at 8:30 p. m.; an Irish play, "Piping Tim," on Wednesday, May 4, at 8:30 p. m.; a Russian play, "Baba Yaga and the Dancing Bears," on Saturday, May 7, at 2:30 p. m.; and a Dutch play, "Market Day in Amsterdam," on Sunday, May 8, at 4 p. m.

Guests at the various plays will be presented with American children's books to be sent to the libray in the capital of their country. The books will bear an inscription inviting the readers to write to the students, thus starting an international correspondence. Four years ago the children at the studio gave a play honoring the Netherlands, and presented the embassy guests with children's books. The books were sent to The Hague and a brisk correspondence has been continuing ever since.

More than 100 children, aged 3 to 12 years, will take part in the plays. Admission is by invitation.

Mr., Mrs. Givan To Entertain for The Rofstadters

Mr. and Mrs. James Givan, of Glenbrook rd., Bethesda, will entertain at dinner Friday for their brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Hofstadter. Dr. Hofstadter is professor of nuclear physics at Princeton University. He will be in Washington to attend the Physicists' Annual Convention.

Dr. Robert Herman of the Carnegie Foundation, Silver Spring, also attending the convention, and Mrs. Herman, will be guests, as will Mr. and Mrs. Warren Price of Bethesda, and Dr. and Mrs. Murray Shear.

Other guests will be Dr. and Mrs. Henry B. Collins, jr., of Washington. Dr. Collins, anthropologist at the Smithsonian Institution, will be leaving in three weeks for Cornwallis Island, Canada, for extended research among the ruins of the prehistoric Eskimos.

Summer Fabrics in Wide Variety

For this summer's vacation wardrobe, you can really pick and choose among a wealth of styles and fabrics, says the May issue of Charm, the magazine for the business girl.

New material improvements have developed a quick drying nylon lastex for bathing suits, soft fluffy terry cloth for active sports wear, and a whole range of hard-wearing, easily washed cottons.

Crisp cottons, which look—and even sound—like taffeta and surah are available. All are washable and easily packed. Iridescent fabrics, chambrays, denims, make up into complete weekend ensembles, with bra-top, shorts, skirt and jacket of matching fabric. Denim this summer will be seen in both city and country fashions.

Good news for fashion-conscious, but budget-wise business girls are the new bare shoulder dresses with jackets, suitable for office wear. Sans jacket, they become fun-in-the-sun outfits for weekend resort wear. These fashions come in cotton, rayon and butcher linen.

Gay Tones for Summer Wear, Says Armour

Color, in vibrant, bold tones, is the mark of distinction in the new summer collection of New Yorker Charles Armour which will be shown today at Woodward & Lothrop's.

Mr. Armour, making his annual trip to Washington for the local showing of his collection, will be commentator for the two presentations at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m., respectively.

Dark, somber colors should be reserved for fall and winter, in the opinion of Mr. Armour, who disapproves of too much black, brown or navy in a woman's wardrobe during the torrid months.

"Summer calls for gay tones, for that is the spirit of the season, the time when the sun is at its height and the foliage at its prettiest," he explains.

The recommended Armour silhouette is slim and fluid because the designer feels the pretty, fluttering skirt with plenty of motion, but minus bulk, is needed for the active life of summer. Chiffons, high favorite of most of the collections this year, has a place in the Armour group. Other fabrics stressed are pure silk crepe and shantungs and a wide range of the new, soft cottons.

The Northeast Chapter of Women's American ORT sponsored a "Parade of Summer Fashions," at its anual Member-Bring-A-Member meeting last night at 8:30. The meeting took place at 1601 Rhode Island ave., ne. and fashions were presented by Elaine's, Inc.

Mrs. Ann Heller, regional membership chairman, opened the meeting with a brief talk on the history of ORT.

Mrs. Mesta Is Hostess

Homebody Trumans to Dine Out Saturday; Details Come Afterwards

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

MOST NIGHTS the President of the United States tucks in his napkin at home, so its real news when he dines out. Next Saturday, Mrs. George Mesta will kill the fatted calf, figuratively speaking, in Mr. and Mrs. Truman's honor. This most elegant of prandial events will be carefully veiled from advance press notice and details are to be revealed only the day after.

Mrs. Mesta, like the local gardens, is burgeoning with spring activity and, scarcely pausing to catch breath, will feed another group of distinguished panjandrums, with Secretary of Defense and Mrs. Louis Johnson as scintillating attraction.

A Demonstration of Unity

AT CARNEGIE HALL May 5, Common Cause, Inc., is sponsoring a meeting of all the exiled leaders of behind-Iron Curtain countries. The last freely elected spokesman for every political and national group, representing some 350 million subjugated people, will be present.

The meeting's purpose is to create a dramatic affirmation of their condemnation of communism and their determination to join together in a new unity for the restoration of the independence of the satellite countries. The speakers' subject will be, "The Future of Democracy in Europe," and many of the speeches will be broadcast behind the Iron Curtain by our Voice of America.

Heading up the invitation list for the exiled leaders is former Ambassador to Poland Arthur Bliss Lane. Many of the exiled leaders have settled temporarily in Washington or the surrounding countryside, among them Poland's Mikolajczyk, Bulgaria's Dr. George M. Dimitrov, Hungary's former Premier Nagy, Romania's Visoianu and Cretzianu.

Common Cause is the American anti-Communist citizen organization which, for the past two years, has fought Soviet aggression abroad, exposed Communist propaganda and infiltration at home. Last summer, by obtaining a habeas corpus writ for Mrs. Oksana Kasenkina, the Russian school teacher who jumped out the USSR consulate window, Common Cause made international headlines.

Her Majesty's Cigarette

OUR Ambassador to Great Britain, "Lew" Douglas, has a 21-year-old son who, until recently, has been working in a Texas oil-field. He arrived in London not long ago, to visit his distinguished parents, and soon afterward found himself guest at an-intimate-as-possible-under-the-circumstances royal dinner party.

To his utter consternation young Douglas, fresh from the oil-field life, was seated next to Dowager Queen Mary. He was practically frozen with fear during the meal and knocked for a loop when, after dessert, the imposing octogenarian Queen accepted a cigarette.

Noticing Douglas' amazement, Her Majesty explained "I've taken up smoking quite suddenly. I realized only lately how much it embarrassed my son's guests if I didn't."

Turtle Derby, Carnival Sport Fair to Feature Pet Show,

A "turtle derby," pet show of unusual varieties, clowns, jeep rides, hot dogs and popcorn, soda pop and ice cream, all makes for a carnival atmosphere for the Seminary Fair, to be held Saturday, May 7.

Ponies will again carry the young fry around the ring while miniature golf will entertain mother and dad.

The third annual invitation sweepstakes for turtles for Northern Virginia will be a feature of the afternoon. Any type of tortoise will be eligible for this event which starts at 1:30.

An outstanding entertainment will be the first and only presentation in this area of the "Fairfax Ferocious Felines," a comic acrobatic act which will please old and young alike.

The pet show, another highlight, is under the direction of Mrs. William Kirk who will receive entries delivered in bowls, boxes and crates. The most unusual pet will be chosen by the judges, and the most popular by a vote of those attending the show.

Seminary students, losing their academic serenity for the day, will participate as clowns, jeep drivers, and vendors.

The fair will be held in the grounds of the Virginia Theological Seminary, Quaker lane and Seminary rd., from 1:30 to 5:30. In case of rain the fair will be held the following Monday.

Windsors Named Godparents of Son Of James M. Becks

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor are godparents of the son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Beck of New York, who was christened Edward Ridgely Carter Beck last week at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York.

The baby is the grandson of Mrs. James M. Beck of Washington, and the late Solicitor General Beck.

The Duke and Duchess who are now in England, were represented by the British Consul General, Sir Francis Evans, and Mrs. Evans.

Mrs. Beck is a godmother for her grandson and other godparents are Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Miss Virginia Carter, William W. Hoffman, Odgen Hammond, Thomas J. Watson, Livingston Biddle and Mary Pickford.

THIS garden furniture of distinction was designed in California by Hendrik Van Keppel and Taylor Green. The lightweight chairs are of rustproof, tubular steel. Cooking Cues . . .

To pan-fry link sausages put them into a skillet with a little water; cover them tightly and let them steam over low heat for about five minutes. Drain off any water remaining and then cook the sausages, continuing to use low heat, until they are well browned; turn frequently during cooking to brown all over.

It is not necessary to remove the skins of mushrooms that are fresh and in good condition. Just wash them well, slice off and discard the tough end of the stem if you like, and they'll be ready for cooking.

Stretch poultry for a creamed dish with cauliflower that has been cooked only until it is tender-crisp; garnish with fine strips of green pepper or parsnip and add thin slices of hard-cooked egg, lightly sprinkled with paprika.

If pie dough is chilled thoroughly before it is rolled out it will be much easier to handle. Use the leftover scraps by cutting them out with a cooky cutter and sprinkling with finely ground nuts and sugar and cinnamon. Or cut in strips and sprinkle with grated yellow cheese and paprika for cheese straws.

Ever use coarsely grated parsnips in a salad? Try combining them with green cabbage and carrots and toss with a well flavored French dressing.

Many modern cooks like to use low temperatures in roasting duck—a 325-degree F. (slow) oven, allowing 30 or 35 minutes per pound. It is not necessary to prick the skin.

Variety meats such as liver and kidneys should be used as soon as possible after purchasing . . . buy and serve them on the same day.

Finnan haddie may be broiled but before doing so it should be allowed to stand in hot water for about 10 minutes, then drained well and spread with softened margarine or butter.

Ask Anne About Recipe for Hard Rolls

Will you print a recipe for hard rolls, the kind that have a hard, crisp crust and are soft inside? F. A. G.

HARD ROLLS

¼ cup water (boiled and cooled to lukewarm)
¾ cup all purpose flour
2 cups water (boiled and cooled)
1 teaspoon salt
5 to 6 cups all-purpose flour
1 egg white
1 tablespoon cold water

Soften the yeast in ¼ cup of lukewarm water, add ¾ cup flour and knead into a ball of dough; cut across the top in both directions and drop into 2 cups of lukewarm water. It will sink, but in about 20 minutes it will rise and float, a light, puffy sponge. Turn this sponge and water into a mixing bowl, add salt and five cups of flour; mix into a dough and use the rest of flour to knead. Turn the dough onto a floured board and knead at least 15 minutes. At the end of that time the dough should be smooth and elastic and not stick to hands or board. Place dough in a large bowl, grease the top lightly and cover. Let stand in a warm place until doubled in bulk, then form into rolls. Allow to stand until light and bake in 425 degree F. oven for 20 minutes. Mix the egg white with cold water, brush the rolls, and return to oven to glaze.

I am taking a moment off to jot down a suggestion that immediately occurred to me when I read the inquiry in your column from H. L. about making a "Lazy Susan" from a large metal platter. I have an attractive wooden Lazy Susan which was given me, but my objection to it is that the platter part is not quite large enough for the type of serving which I use it most for, such as the various dishes served with curry—coconuts, peanuts, onions, chutney, bacon, etc.—and for hors d'oeuvres. I have often thought of screwing a larger platter on the wooden part, but haven't because it was given me by a friend who might be startled at the change! I don't know why this idea wouldn't be thoroughly practical for H. L., though. I think my Lazy Susan cost around $12, which would certainly be much less than having one "custom-built." All the mechanics of having the turntable part especially made would be eliminated. D. Y.

I accidentally spilled some tincture of methiolate on my blue studio couch, making a spot about 3 inches in width. I've used some white vinegar a few times, but it seems to have little effect. Could you suggest how I may be able to remove the spots? M. K.

Because the stain is on upholstery and has probably soaked into the padding underneath, it may not be possible to remove it completely. However, try this: Sponge the stained area with equal parts of alcohol and water. Next, work a little liquid shampoo into the stain and rub with a soft brush or cloth to develop suds. As the suds become colored with the stain, wipe away with an absorbent cloth and add fresh shampoo. Be careful not to use any more liquid than is absolutely necessary, to avoid soaking and driving the stain into the padding. When no more stain can be removed with the shampoo soap, rinse thoroughly by repeated wiping with a cloth wrung out with clear water.

If enough stain remains to leave the spot still conspicuous, the remaining solution is to bleach it. For a bleach, use sodium perborate. Dampen the stain with clear water, dust the perborate powder into it and let stand 20 minutes. Remove by sponging with clear water. This can be repeated if the stain is lightened, but not entirely removed, by first treatment. The bleach may affect the color of the couch, so be sure to test its affect on an under part before trying it on the stain.

Inquiries and contributions to the "Ask Anne" column must be in written form. We regret that time does not permit handling them by telephone! Address letters or cards to Anne, Room 403, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

Air Crash Rescue Network Proposed

Despite Divorce

Army Officer Loses Appeal On Support

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday upheld a District Court award of separate maintenance to the wife of an Army colonel despite a Florida divorce subsequently obtained by him.

The appellate court sustained the view of the lower court pointing out that the Florida divorce was obtained fraudulently and thereby the court would not set aside prior maintenance ordered here by the District Court.

The lower court had ordered Col. John Sherman Gullet to pay $125 monthly maintenance to his wife, Mrs. Mary M. Gullet, of 4707 Connecticut ave. nw., in February, 1941. Colonel Gullet obtained a divorce in Florida in August, 1943.

The District Court ruled the divorce invalid, ordered the payments continued and imposed a 60-day jail sentence for contempt arising from failure to make maintenance payments. Colonel Gullet has not entered the court's jurisdiction since and has not served the sentence.

A nation-wide network of civilian "paratroop" squadrons, specializing in rescue and first aid work on air crashes and other accidents in remote areas, was proposed yesterday by an international group of rescue and first aid experts.

The plan was outlined by Dominic Giannetta of Medford, Mass., wartime paratrooper and later chief of disaster plans in Japan. It is under study by the International Rescue and First Aid Association, which closed a two-day meeting here yesterday.

The association represents some 4200 members of public, industrial and volunteer rescue units throughout the United States and in Canada, Mexico, the West Indies and Brazil. It was formed last fall to coordinate and standardize rescue work.

Secretary of Defense Louis A. Johnson made an unscheduled appearance and praised the association's objectives in a brief talk. His brother, Dr. Marcellus Johnson, Roanoke, Va., surgeon, has been head of the association.

The paratroop plan would save lives, alleviate suffering and save the Government considerable expense in rescue operations, according to Giannetta.

Twelve-man squadrons would be established in various parts of the country, each to be responsible for an area of six States, he said.

The paratroop squadron, he said, could be searchers as well as rescuers in a plane crash and could jump immediately to aid accident victims. Ambulances and any other needed equipment could be sent later.

Members of the squadrons would be selected from former paratroopers and each group could be paid (and equipped) by the six States covered, Giannetta said.

The association elected David Slayback, president of the New Jersey First Aid Council, as president; Dr. Herbert J. Stack, director of the New York University Center for Safety, first vice president; Capt. Julian S. Wise, director of the Roanoke (Va.) Life Saving Crew, 2d vice president, and Capt. Roger W. Wheeler, chief of the Rhode Island State Division of Life Saving, as national coordinator.

Newcomer Is Among 93 in Ticket 'Fix'

A newcomer to the United States was one of 93 persons in Washington for whom traffic tickets were adjusted last week, police reported yesterday.

A ticket for violation of the Pedestrian Control Act was changed to a warning for Heinz H. Burghart of 605 Otis pl. nw., after he explained he was a newcomer to this country and did not know of the regulations here, police said.

Tickets were canceled for the following persons because of diplomatic immunity: James L. Findley, New Zealand Embassy, parked in entrance; Floro Lavalle, Argentina Embassy, two tickets for parking in a "no-parking from 7 to 9:30 a. m." zone and standing in a "no standing from 4 to 6:30 p. m." zone; Fernando Paraud, Peruvian Embassy, two tickets for parking overtime and parking by a fireplug; Yasin Unmar, Embassy of Iraq, parked in a "no parking from 4 to 6:30 p. m." zone; Paul C. LaFond, French Embassy, parked in a "no parking from 4 to 6 p. m." zone, and Andrew Fitzharris, British Embassy, parked in a "no parking from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m." zone.

Fairchild Polls Stockholders of Hagerstown Firm

New York, April 25 (AP).—The success or failure of a postcard poll to stimulate the interest of stockholders in the company they own will be tested Wednesday in a Maryland manufacturing town.

Sherman M. Fairchield, the founder and former chairman of Fairchild Engine & Airplane Co., doesn't like a pension contract which the company's directors voted to give the present chairman, J. Carlton Ward, jr. Fairchild is the company's largest stockholder.

A few weeks ago, Fairchild decided to submit his case, by postcard, to the company's 10,500 stockholders prior to the stockholders' meeting Wednesday in Hagerstown, Md.

The company countered with a letter to stockholders which stated that Fairchild's views "should not mislead anyone."

In the past week, Fairchild says he has received around 3000 replies. Fairchild's strategy is to postpone the annual meeting in order that he can either persuade the board of directors to change its mind about Ward's pension or actively to solicit proxies. With sufficient proxy votes, Fairchild could control the company's policies.

Court Wipes Out Rail Union Case Over Injunction

Three railroad unions failed yesterday to get a court ruling on the legality of the injunction that blocked their threatened strike over wages last summer.

The United States Court of Appeals wiped out the 10-month-old case, saying the whole issue "has become moot" because the controversy is ended.

The three unions — locomotive engineers, firemen and switchmen — had appealed the injunction to test the legality of the Government's action.

President Truman seized the railroads last May 10 under an emergency law of World War I, making the workers Federal employes. Federal District Justice T. Alan Goldsborough first issued a temporary order halting the strike and then made the injunction permanent.

U. S. Tour Brings Dice Room to Monte Carlo

Monte Carlo, Monaco, April 25 (U.P.).—The Monte Carlo Casino announced today that it has completed a special craps-shooting room and will unveil it in July.

The room was built to the specifications of Louis Ceresol and Albert Joffret, Casino experts who made a two-months' study of the American indoor sport in the United States.

2 Students Held For 'Maneuvers' With 20-Ton Tank

Athens, Ga., April 25 (U.P.).—Six Athens policemen today had won unofficial field maneuvers involving a 20-ton tank, two college students and police prowl cars.

Before dawn Sunday, the police blockaded roads with prowl cars and closed in on foot. The tank was surrounded, but it veered off through a wheat field. It overturned in a creek bed and caught fire.

That brought out Lloyd Alexander, jr., 20, Dublin, Ga., and Robert J. Hollomon, 20, Atlanta, students who admitted taking the tank from the University of Georgia armory. Alexander said he wanted to practice some maneuvers.

The two are held, awaiting FBI agents who were expected to file charges.

Liberalize Parole Laws in Virginia, Prison Head Urges

Little Rock, Ark., April 25 (AP). Liberalized parole laws were advocated today by the superintendent of Virginia's penitentiary.

Supt. W. Frank Smythe, jr., of Richmond, spoke at the joint convention of the Southern States Prison Conference.

Smythe expressed opposition to a practice of waiting 35 years for a life-termer to become eligible for parole, explaining:

"If a man hasn't straightened out in 11 or 15 years, there is not much hope for him because by then he has become institutionalized to such an extent that he more or less depends on others."

One on the Aisle—

Delinquency Film Is Rough on Law

By Richard L. Coe

THE HEART OF "Knock on Any Door" is certainly in the right place, but its head is unfortunately in a fog.

The Warner's new picture is concerned with juvenile delinquency and the shameful conditions that do exist all too frequently in our land. Humphrey Bogart has acted as a coproducer as well as its star, playing defense attorney for a lad accused of killing a policeman.

Now one of the flaws in this picture is its attitude toward the law, which is, in turn, a reflection of our inherent national attitude toward persons concerned with law enforcement.

For the more one studies our national character—and there are few more fascinating studies—the more one is struck with our national characteristic of being suspicious of those whose job is to protect us. As a people we somehow do not like these righteous folk. In older lands they are respected; there is still so much of the pioneer age in us that we accept them on sufferance, but we do not honor them.

And so, in treating this story of a young man whose lawyer lays his misdeeds to his environment, "Knock on Any Door" does not dignify the prosecuting attorney as a human being. As written and as George Macready plays him, the prosecutor is a soulless machine, representing, by indirection, the villain of the piece.

This, in turn, has the effect of making the youth and the case itself sniveling and foolish. For all his sordid background, one keeps thinking, others have risen to respect from the same tawdry street. This young man cannot be excused on the basis of his environment, however both picture and Lawyer Bogart may try to persuade us.

Mawkish Handling

What I assume both the original book and the present movie sought to do was to turn the spotlight on the breeding grounds of the criminal mind. To a certain extent it does this, and the society we represent certainly reaps what it sows. But the screen play by Dan Taradash and John Monks, jr., stacks the cards too heavily in the young man's favor. He has so many chances, his wife, his friend the lawyer, that we lose sympathy for him.

Nor is the picture particularly interesting purely as a movie. It is filled with the usual cliches of such stories, nor is it especially well acted. Frequent flashbacks give it a jerky pace and its desire to persuade rather than to present pushes reason too far.

Bogart is efficient as the helpful lawyer, and a newcomer, John Derek, is the "pretty boy" killer. The cast is large but the result is simply a mawkish, lurid attempt to state a case that deserves less fuzzy presentation.

DANCE DAY is what Local 161 of the District Federation of Musicians is calling May Day . . . Sunday night, May 1, the Musicians' Welfare and Recreation fund will benefit from a dance in the Hotel Washington ballroom, and among the orchestras taking part will be Sam Jack Kaufman and his Capitol Theater orchestra. The five-hour fete will employ bands from most of the clubs and radio stations in town and such disc jockeys as Eddie Galliher, Mike Hunnicutt, Jackson Lowe, Art Brown and Johnny Bradford will be on tap.

"GWTW," which used to be the abbreviation for "Gone with the Wind," is still doing fine at the National—so fine, in fact, the classic of all the movies is holding on for a third week.

"THE COMMON GLORY" will be reopening soon at Williamsburg, which means that Wednesday night's concert by the choir of the College of William and Mary in Lisner Auditorium will be the final trip out of Williamsburg for the chorus which sings Paul Green's score . . . The a cappella group's tour profits go into cultural funds of the college . . . Tickets at Lisner.

The Lyons Den

NEW YORK.—President Weizmann of Israel told some New Yorkers this week a story of how music became an instrument of war last winter. It concerned Leonard Bernstein, the composer-conductor, who flew to the Middle East to conduct the Palestine Symphony. His concert was given in Beersheba, in the heart of the Negev, and it drew record crowds . . . An Egyptian reconnaissance plane saw thousands of soldiers and civilians streaming into the desert from all directions, and reported this mass-movement. Arab troops immediately were deployed against the coming offensive—for surely, they felt, this must be a military maneuver, because who'd take time out in war to listen to a Mozart Concerto.

Joe Di Maggio sat in Toots Shor's one day reading the many news-dispatches about his injured heel. "They tell me," said Di Maggio, "that I've made this guy Achilles famous." . . . Leonard Finder, the New Hampshire publisher who became front-page news in his preconvention exchange of letters with Gen. Eisenhower, is expected to retire from his newspaper next month because of a disagreement with his associates. . . . Philip Hamburger is at work on a New Yorker profile on Secy. of State Acheson.

Robert E. Sherwood, Moss Hart and Irving Berlin were discussing the type of musical their "Miss Liberty" will be. Sherwood suggested that its trend be towards the American operatic. Hart dissented, and said that inasmuch as Eddie Albert would have the leading male role, the show's trend should be towards light-comedy . . . Then Author Sherwood and Director Hart asked Songwriter Irving Berlin for his opinion. "I disagree with both of you," said Berlin. "I just want it to be an old-fashioned commercial smash."

Margaret Truman has become the most influential lady in New York. She's been able to get seats for "South Pacific" three times, and was to see the show a fourth time on Monday night. She has a hometown neighbor in the show, William Ferguson, of Independence, Mo., who plays a Marine. Ferguson's wife plays a Navy nurse in the musical. Ferguson sang in the church choir with Miss Truman, who invited him and his bride to visit the White House. Next week, in recognition, she'll visit their apartment for tea.

The backers of Sidney Kingsley's hit, "Detective Story," will have been paid off and start collecting profits next month . . . Two of A. Atwater Kent's legatees, Lucille Leiment and Verbena Hebbard, have completed their first book, about the public relations business. Its title is "Forgive Us Our Fun."

HEDDA HOPPER says:

"David Selznick's 'Portrait of Jennie' is indescribable. You must see it. It's a love story that brings beauty and spirituality to the screen.

"The hurricane at the end is the sort of stagecraft that would have made the late David Belasco green with envy."

Colton Takes Post as Head Of D. C. Bank

By S. Oliver Goodman

Coincidental with an extensive remodeling program, Barnum L. Colton took over yesterday as president of the National Bank of Washington.

Colton, former vice president of the National Savings & Trust Co., succeeded J. Frank White who is now chairman of the board.

Over the weekend, the bank's lobby at Seventh and C sts. nw., was transformed. The glass and bronze work on the tellers' cages on the left were removed and officers desks in the front were moved to the rear.

The bookkeeping department, formerly in the rear on the right, has been moved to the second floor and the trust department will be shifted to the rear. Much new equipment has been installed and more work remains to be done.

Colton's new office was swamped in flowers from well-wishers.

The change in president followed acquisition of stock control by new interests. Identity of the new owner or owners of Washington's oldest bank has been shrouded in mystery. Speculation has centered on the possibility that the United Mine Workers may be the new owners. Also mentioned has been the Equity Corp. of New York, an investment trust. Scott B. Appleby, local financial and former head of the Seaboard Finance Co., spiked one report that he was involved.

ELEVATED: Raymond J. Wise, formerly of Washington, has been elected a vice president of National Dairy Products Corp. Wise, son of one of the founders of Wise Brothers-Chevy Chase Dairy in Washington, started as a route man in his father's company. He later became sales manager and finally president of the local company, Wise which some years ago became a unit of National Dairy. He has headed various National Dairy units and most recently was an assistant vice president and a member of National Dairy's operating committee.

SEARS' TREND: First quarter sales of Sears, Roebuck & Co. will be about 8 per cent under the first 1948 period, stockholders were told at the annual meeting yesterday. The decline in sales of hard goods has been greater than that of soft lines. Although expectations are that prospects for the full year 1949 are not as good as 1948, officials said, the Sears' management is "not unduly concerned."

WHO'S WHO TODAY: "The Impact of Television on Marketing Methods" will be discussed today by John K. West, vice president

West in charge of public relations for RCA-Victor at a luncheon meeting today of the American Marketing Association in the Willard . . . Bruce Hunt, Washington men's store, has been awarded a certificate of honor by the Apparel Arts Brand Name Committee "for outstanding service to consumers" . . . Philip L. Gore, Washington, has been named by the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association as a member of its committee on public relations.

DECISION: Penn Central Air Lines (Capital Air Lines) 3½s were the day's most active bond issue, closing unchanged at 59¾ on volume of $211,000. The lien was up fractionally at one time, but backed down to Saturday's closing price when the United States Supreme Court refused to review a lower court decision that the Civil Aeronautics Board had refused rightly to make retroactive readjustments in Capital's airmail pay rates. Capital estimated that about five million dollars was involved.

ODD LOTS: The Union Trust Co. yesterday welcomed visitors to its remodeled trust department offices. Vice President J. Wesley Clampitt is in charge . . . Mergenthaler Linotype Co. reported net sales of $11,437,775 and net income of $1,791,289 for the six months ended March 31 . . . Federal Court at Jacksonville has ordered Florida East Coast Railway Co. to pay three semi-annual interest coupons aggregating $3,375,000 on its issue of first mortgage bonds . . . More than 40 members of the Bank Women's Club of Washington last night heard James R. Kirkland, counsel for the Senate District Committee, at a meeting in the Burlington Hotel . . . Humble Oil & Refining Co. yesterday listed a 25-cent-a-barrel cut in price of crude oil in three oil fields in East Central Texas.

EARNINGS: North American Co. reported net income of $10,555,000, or $1.25 a common share, for the 12 months ended March 31, 1949, compared with $12,698,000, or $1.48 a common share, in the 12 months of the previous year. Other earnings statements:

GNCC Goal Set for Drive

A campaign goal of $120,000 for next year's operation of the Greater National Capital Committee of the Board of Trade was announced yesterday by Joseph C. McGarraghy, committee chairman.

The drive will get under way May 1 with Bruce Baird as leader and Clark G. Diamond as vice chairman. The campaign organization will meet Friday to outline procedure for raising the funds.

In outlining the needs of the GNCC for the next fiscal year, McGarraghy emphasized that more than three and a quarter million visitors and more than 230 conventions came to Washington during 1948.

REQUEST FOR BIDS
for
$1,600,000. FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS, SERIES B of
THE WASHINGTON TERMINAL COMPANY

The Washington Terminal Company hereby requests bids for:

$1,600,000., principal amount, First Mortgage Bonds, Series B, to be dated May 1, 1949, to mature May 1, 1974, to bear interest at a rate to be named by the accepted bidder, to contain a provision for a Sinking Fund of $67,000., per annum, and to be subject to redemption as a whole, or in part, prior to maturity at the option of The Washington Terminal Company.

The Bonds will be issued under the First Mortgage of The Washington Terminal Company dated February 1, 1945, as supplemented by Supplemental Indenture to be dated May 1, 1949. The proceeds of the sale of the Series B Bonds will be used to reimburse the Company's treasury for capital expenditures made since the date of the First Mortgage and to provide for additional capital expenditures to be made, to the extent of 75% thereof, as provided in the Mortgage.

The First Mortgage Bonds, Series B, will be guaranteed as to principal, interest and Sinking Fund payments by The Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington Railroad Company and The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, as provided in Guaranty Agreement to be dated May 1, 1949.

Bids must be made in triplicate on forms furnished by The Washington Terminal Company on request, and delivered by mail or messenger at or before 12:00 o'clock Noon, Eastern Daylight Saving Time, on Wednesday, May 11, 1949, to the President of the Terminal Company, in plain, sealed envelopes bearing no indication of the name of the bidder or amount of the bid, addressed to The Washington Terminal Company, c/o M. W. Clement, President, Room 1811, Broad Street Station Building, Philadelphia 4, Pa., such envelopes to be marked: "Bid under Proposed Contract No. 1 of 1949". Bids so received will be opened at such office immediately after 12:00 o'clock Noon, Eastern Daylight Saving Time, on said date, and persons or representatives of persons making bids may be present if they desire and examine each bid received.

Either a bank cashier's check, a trust company treasurer's check, or a certified check for $30,000., payable to The Washington Terminal Company, in New York funds, must be furnished with each bid for the Bonds, said check to be returned except to the accepted bidder. The check of the accepted bidder will be held by the Terminal Company as security for performance of the contract of purchase and applied on the purchase price.

Terms of the bidding and of the Bonds, requirements with respect to settlement to be made by the accepted bidder, the time and place of settlement, information relating to The Washington Terminal Company and its First Mortgage dated February 1, 1945, and the Supplemental Indenture to be dated May 1, 1949, financial statements of The Washington Terminal Company and its proprietary companies and other matters relating to the Bonds and the bidding are set forth in a Circular relating to the proposed First Mortgage Bonds, Series B. Persons desiring to bid should obtain copies of such Circular and of Form of Bid at the office of The Washington Terminal Company, Room 253, Union Station, Washington, D. C., or at Room 1811, Broad Street Station Building, Philadelphia, Pa., or at the agency of the Terminal Company, Room 1304, 2 Wall Street, New York, N. Y. Copies of the applications to the Interstate Commerce Commission and accompanying exhibits may be examined at any of the said places. On request, the Terminal Company will furnish copies of the First Mortgage dated February 1, 1945, draft of Supplemental Indenture to be dated May 1, 1949, draft of Guaranty Agreement to be dated May 1, 1949, and Agreements between The Washington Terminal Company, its proprietary companies, and its tenant companies, pertaining to construction, operation and maintenance of its properties.

Bids for less than the total of $1,600,000. of Bonds will not be considered.

Issuance and sale of the Bonds and the guaranty to be endorsed thereon require authorization of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Acceptance of any bid is subject to and contingent upon such authorization.

The Washington Terminal Company reserves the right in its discretion to reject any and all bids.

PUC Weighs Decision on Pepco

The expected clash over competitive bidding on Potomac Electric Power Co.'s proposed common stock issue materialized yesterday at a Public Utilities Commission hearing.

After listening to sharp differences of opinion, the PUC took the case under advisement with no indication of when a decision will be handed down.

Otis & Co., Cleveland investment house which has championed competitive bidding in numerous other cases, offered testimony purporting to show that competitive bidding brings utilities a larger return "because of lower underwriting spread and a narrower discount from the market value and offering price to stockholders."

Glenn R. Miller, Otis' executive vice president, claimed there is a growing acceptance of the application of bidding on utility stock issues. In the last nine months, he added, 10 to 13 such issues were sold competitively by utilities.

Thurman Arnold, acting as counsel for Otis & Co., said in his summary: "This case has tremendous importance with the Commission's future policy. If you grant Pepco exemption, you will have repealed your competitive bidding rule." He added that it was important for Pepco to get every last cent it can out of this deal. "If you have two people willing to buy your house why shouldn't you find out what the other man will give you?"

R. Roy Dunn, vice president and treasurer of Pepco, testified that under the proposed negotiated deal estimated compensation for underwriters will be less than 3 per cent.

Dunn also pointed ou that present Pepco stockholders have preemptive rights to buy the proposed new shares. He explained that Dillon, Read & Co. of New York will head an underwriting group of nine Washington investment houses which have agreed to underwrite any part of the proposed issue that is not bought by present stockholders.

The nine local houses, he said, will handle 86 per cent of the issue and the rest will be handled by the New York firm.

Miller, the Otis official, was asked if he thought that a 14 per cent interest amounts to domination of the nine local investment houses.

Replying in the affirmative, Miller said: "The fact that the dealers went to Dillon, Read & Co. rather than any other large firm indicates they are a clique. Dillon, Read is the traditional banker for the system of which this company was a part. In going to Dillon, Read these firms (local investment bankers and Pepco) were maintaining the traditional relationships on the basis of which Dillon, Read is now subject to an anti-trust suit with 16 other houses . . . ."

James F. Reilly, counsel for Pepco, in summing up said he didn't see how a 14 per cent interest by Dillon, Read would amount to influencing local dealers. He said it was in bad taste for the Otis Co. to talk of influence. "None of the other parties in this action have attempted to influence the commissioners by a telegram to a newspaper."

(Reilly referred to a telegram sent Friday by Otis & Co. to The Washington Post, in which Miller said that Otis & Co. was prepared to bid if the PUC enforces its competitive bidding rule. The telegram was embodied in a news story published in The Post on Sunday.)

Reilly added that if the waiver request is denied by the PUC, Pepco will have to amend its registration statement with resultant delay and additional expense.

Dunn, recalled to the stand, estimated it would cost $50,000 in printing costs if the waiver is denied. He told the commission Pepco will be in urgent need of the additional funds "immediately after May 1."

The PUC hearing yesterday was on Pepco's proposed issue of 10 million dollars of first mortgage bonds at competitive bidding and 592,250 shares of common stock without competitive bidding. Proceeds of the proposed two issues, expected to be in the neighborhood of 17 million dollars, will be used for construction needs this year.

Supreme Court Tie Keeps Ban On Basing-Point Price System

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

A 4-to-4 tie vote in the Supreme Court yesterday broadened the ban on industry basing-point prices but prevented a hoped-for clarifying opinion on this important business practice.

The vote upheld a Federal Trade Commission order outlawing the basing-point system of identical prices anywhere in the country even when the firms involved have set the prices without agreement among themselves.

Shortly before the court announcement, the Senate Judiciary Committee approved a bill introduced by Senator Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.) for a moratorium until July 1, 1950, on Government action in basing-point cases.

The moratorium will not affect any Federal Court proceeding pending on the date the resolution is approved nor the Supreme Court's decision yesterday.

The House Judiciary Committee already has approved a similar bill. Yesterday's court action is likely to help speed enactment of such a measure.

Conspiracy Not Changed

Exactly one year ago today, the Supreme Court, by a 6-to-1 decision, outlawed the cement industry's scheme to fix the price of its product. This case grew out of a Federal Trade Commission finding that the industry was acting in restraint of trade and in violation of antitrust laws.

In that case FTC charged the cement firms had acted together to set prices.

In the case acted on yesterday, FTC had not charged a conspiracy to fix prices. But the Nation's major manufacturers of conduits were charged with employing the basing point system of setting prices and doing so with the knowledge that parallel action was being taken by others in the same business.

"Drastic" Results Feared

Under the basing-point system, a manufacturer evens out freight charges for delivery to various parts of the country so he can quote the same delivery price regardless of where the buyer is or how far the product has to be shipped.

In fighting the FTC, the conduit manufacturers contended they would suffer drastic consequences if they could not thus "absorb" transportation costs and set equal prices—prices based on one point in the country.

The firms include such companies as General Electric, Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube, all of which make conduits or pipe to protect electric wiring. The firms contended the FTC order in effect would prevent them from competing with each other wherever another firm had a freight advantage.

But the Circuit Court in Chicago upheld the FTC and yesterday's tie vote in the Supreme Court does the same.

Both business and Government—legislative and executive branches included—had hoped for a decision in the conduit case outlining the court's interpretation of the extent of its ruling in this and the cement case.

Instead, the court merely announced that by a tie vote, Justice Robert H. Jackson not participating, the lower court action was upheld. Vote of other justices was not announced.

After last year's cement decision, the steel industry dropped the basing-point system it had long maintained. There followed a drive to get a bill through Congress to make basing-point practices legal for all businesses, but such a bill never reached the floor of House or Senate.

This February Senator Myers and Representative Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.) introduced bills to prevent any further FTC action against business over the basing-point issue until Congress could have time to consider what would be the best public policy. The committees cut the time limit but approved the principle.

The FTC did not object to this move and, in fact, suggested some technical changes in the language of the Myers bill.

The drive for legalizing the basing-point procedure was sparked in the last Congress by Senator Homer Capehart (R., Ind.).

In other actions yesterday, the court:

1. Upheld by 5-to-4 a California law requiring State licenses for "travel bureaus." The ruling reversed a lower court. Justice Harold H. Burton wrote a 15,000-word dissent.

2. Upheld by 6-to-3 court-martial convictions of two soldiers convicted of rape while serving in Europe during the war. The majority opinion held there was no double jeopardy despite transfer of trials.

3. Refused to review a Michigar law forbidding threatening, molesting or interfering with workers. The law was attacked by CIO union officials sentenced to jail on a charge of trying to upset ar auto during a back-to-work movement.

4. Agreed to rule on power of Congress to limit trade between Puerto Rico and the mainland. The court also agreed to consider a suit involving the basis of Agriculture Department sugar-cane allocations in Puerto Rico.

What is the AUDOGRAPH?

Have you seen it? Heard it? Tried it?

Do you know what it can do for you?

Here is an entirely new kind of electronic Business Recorder especially created to help you get things done more easily, quickly, conveniently. Here is an instrument that records dictation, telephone conversations, meetings and conferences on paper-thin, virtually indestructible plastic discs you can slip in an envelope and mail—discs that cost but a few pennies yet record for over 60 minutes. Moreover, the AUDOGRAPH is incredibly light — the smallest and lightest of all dictating instruments, lighter than most portable typewriters, taking far less space than a letter tray. No turntable. No recording or playing arms to manipulate. Just simplicity itself — a masterpiece of American manufacturing resourcefulness, star-studded with revolutionary new features never before available in any instrument.

Before you decide on any dictation instrument be sure you see the AUDOGRAPH in action! Phone or write for FREE demonstration and FREE TRIAL in your office on your desk, no obligation, of course.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Is British Imperialism On the March Again?

Col. Breckinridge A. Day of 2801 31st st. nw. forwards a clipping from this newspaper which tells of a meeting of British Commonwealth prime ministers.

In attendance, according to our dispatch, were "Canada's foreign minister and the prime ministers of Australia, Ceylon, India, Pakistan, New Zealand, South America and the United States."

Colonel Day is mildly surprised to learn of England's new dominions.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I disagree with your item about parents being responsible for those pin-sticking youngsters you wrote about.

Surely you don't think the parents teach their children to do such things. It's obvious that this is something the kids picked up outside the home—and something the parents would punish them for, if they knew about it. Why blame the parents?

Do you realize how much harm is done by all this talk that "it's the parents who are to blame"?

The only way to build character in children is to teach them to accept responsibility for their actions. It's not the parents who are to blame—it's the children.

Name Withheld

Dear Madam:

A great deal depends on the age of the children, and their ability to make independent decisions.

But I'm a great believer in the theory that we can't hope to teach our children how to respond to every one of the thousands of specific situations which may some day confront them.

Instead, we must lay a general moral foundation or, if you prefer "create a moral climate" which will preclude the possibility of their becoming involved in such barbarous acts.

There's no such thing as "company manners" for a child. He can only react to specific situations in a manner consistent with his training and environment.

And, for that matter, even we adults can't get away with a phony "front" for very long. We can pretend to be something different than the person we were raised to be, but we succeed in fooling only ourselves.

Bill

GIVE-AWAYS

"Pair of kittens with personality will be ready for adoption in two weeks." (Wisconsin 3737.)

"Great schnauzer, 3 years old, needs home with children for companionship." (Wisconsin 3701.)

SUGGESTION

Robert A. Rockwell of 4104 53d ave., Hyattsville, Md., observes that we don't have enough intersections properly designed to expedite right-turn traffic.

In a few places (17th and H sts. nw. for example) there are signs which order that "Cars in Right Lane Must Turn Right." But too many other corners have been neglected.

The result is that very often the right lane is blocked by some bird who is waiting for the straight arrow.

The cars behind honk in vain, and miss their right arrow while they wait. But a couple of strategically placed signs could be a world of help.

WHERE'S SUPERMAN?

Everett Lane of Comorn, Va., forwards a classified ad which appeared recently in the Orange (Va.) Review:

"SALESMAN WANTED—A man of vision and ambition, to work all day, stay up all night, and appear fresh the next day. Must be a model husband, plutocrat, Democrat, Republican, New Dealer, Old Dealer, technician, politician, mathematician and mechanic. Must be good credit manager, correspondent, attend all funerals, visit customers in hospitals and jails. In spare time look for new business and attend all conventions. Must have unlimited endurance, and belong to all clubs. Must be an expert driver, talker, liar, hunter, fisherman, dancer, traveler, bridge player, poker player, golf player, diplomat, financier, capitalist, philanthropist and authority on chemistry, palmistry, dogs, cats, horses, blondes, brunettes and redheads. Salary commensurate with ability. W. A. Sherman Co., Orange, Va."

W. A. Sherman, jr., one of the partners in the firm, tells me that they run an electric appliance store, and what they actually wanted was an appliance salesman.

They got a lot of calls from curious people (like me), and four applicants for the job.

I think the Shermans could have saved themselves some money by running a shorter ad, like this: "Wanted—Former insurance salesman."

PERSONAL NOTES

Red Ware, 9920 Rogart rd., Silver Spring, Md.: We'll be out to pick up the stuff for Children's Hospital. Hope you're feeling better.

THIS IS WASHINGTON

They seemed to be out-of-town students, here to see the sights. It was Saturday night, and the show was just "breaking" at the Capitol.

The kids shoved their way noisily down the center aisle, bucking the stream of patrons who were leaving. Inevitably, the gang got separated in the crowd.

"Aw, what's the difference?" replied the first. "They expect teen-agers to be obnoxious."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Postwar China Story of Tragedy

By Drew Pearson

If and when the State Department opens its secret files on China, they will reveal one of the great human tragedies of post-war reconstruction. The files will also tell a story that will make this Nation think twice about pouring more U. S. dollars down the yawning maw of China.

PEARSON

The diplomatic files show that, with most of China's 400,000,000 people in desperate need, the Chinese Nationalist hierarchy insisted on controlling supplies, and even discouraged U. S. purchases by other Chinese.

Powerful in this hierarchy were T. V. Soong and M. H. Kung, both brothers-in-law of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Both are also among the wealthiest men in China or the world, and there is little evidence that they have dipped into their own pockets to help their fellow citizens.

The State Department's files, so far unpublished, show that at exactly the same time the Chinese government was pleading for more ships to import relief supplies, the Chinese government's Board of Supply, of which T. V. Soong was chairman, was actually stopping the delivery and sale of United States merchant ships.

Reason: The ships had been purchased from the United States by private firms, thus cutting out any profit for Soong's Board of Supply.

This caused the United States Foreign Liquidation Commission, operating under the State Department, to make the following official protest:

"We have had complaints from several prospective purchasers of maritime property that they are unable to obtain permission from the Board of Supply to purchase vessels from our Manila office.

"In conference with us on 19 September of 1946, it was agreed that private shipping concerns in China would be permitted to purchase vessels in Manila . . . Several interested parties, whom we have notified of this arrangement, have informed us after contacting the Board of Supply that your organization will not issue certificates but require that all vessels be purchased from the Board of Supply."

Says He's Gambler

This letter of protest was sent direct to Soong's representative, General P. Kiang. However, he did nothing about it. At a round-table conference between Chinese and American officials, therefore, the State Department raised the matter again.

The minutes of that meeting are still secret. However, they state:

"The question of the Chinese restriction on ship purchases was next brought up by Mr. Stetson (J. B. Stetson of Stetson hats, then FLC field commissioner). He explained that part of our project was to help the economy of China and that individual buyers who wanted to bring in ships should be allowed to do so.

"General Kiang (Soong's agent) explained . . . if there is to be any ship brokerage business done, the Chinese government wants to do it . . . 'I am your exclusive agent for China,' he said."

Meanwhile, Soong's Board of Supply offered to purchase the ships for private companies at the black-market rate and for an additional 5 per cent "handling fee." In other words, the Chinese government was offering to deal on the same black market it had declared illegal.

The situation became steadily worse until Monnet Davis, United States consul general in Shanghai, advised the Secretary of State in a secret cable:

"Executive Yuan of Chinese government has placed ban on importation of 'American Army surplus goods' . . . Ban imposed to prevent purchase of surplus goods by private firms in competition with the government . . ."

Note—After one conference between T. V. Soong and FLC Field Commissioner B. A. Johnson, the American official wrote in his confidental report: "Dr. Soong then told me that he had been a gambler all his life, but in this deal (surplus property) he was handling very heavy and important money. He was inclined to gamble because the chances to be derived by China from surplus property judiciously bought and correctly sold should be enormous."

Envoy From Brooklyn

Brooklyn is noted for a lot of things—in addition to the Dodgers. But probably most Brooklyn residents don't realize that this city has sent an official ambassador to Washington.

He happens to be Dr. Oscar Gans, and although he is Cuban Ambassador to the United States, he was actually born in Brooklyn.

Ambassador Gan's father was also a Brooklyn-born American, who went to Cuba during the Spanish-American War as aide to Maj. Tasker Bliss, later United States Chief of Staff. Young Lieutenant Gans liked Cuba so well he remained on after the Spanish-American War, married a Cuban girl, and then came back to Brooklyn. There the present Ambassador was born.

In his youth, Ambassador Gans had the reputation of being about as belligerent as Leo Durocher, late of the Brooklyn Dodgers. At the age of 20 he fought two duels in one day.

"It paid," explains the Ambassador, "because after I got the reputation of being quick to challenge, people let me alone.

"Dueling in Cuba is not very risky," says Ambassador Gans, "for the reason that the seconds place you a long distance apart and only let you fire between the counts of 'two and three,' which they reel off so rapidly that you scarcely have time to fire."

Swiss Kilroy Club

One man who pays great tribute to the American GI is Florian Niederer, known as the man who guided 300,000 GIs through Switzerland.

After VE-Day, with several million GIs restless in Europe, Niederer, who is an executive of the Swiss Tourist Office, conceived the idea of helping the American Army travel through Switzerland.

Niederer is now in the United States organizing the "Swiss Kilroy Club" on the theory that a GI who visited Switzerland once, would like to go back with his bride. A lot of them, he finds, do.
